CITY MAY HOLD PAY DAY, PASS UP TEACHERS

Lack Cash to Meet Both Rolls.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The first pay day in three months appears to be in prospect for city employés shortly. But for the teachers and school employés, to whom more than $20,700,000 in back salaries is owing, none is in sight.

The school board has been unable to borrow because its $90,180,000 budget is looked upon by the bankers as excessive. The board has been told by the Sargent committee on public expenditures that its tax levies are "$15,000,000 at least" too high. A new law which is being tested in the state Supreme court makes its tax anticipation warrants unmarketable. And, in addition, its tax levies for 1932 have not been adopted by the city council.

The board's only hope of borrowing money is by utilization of the city's credit. City Controller Szymczak said yesterday that the city will be able to borrow money to pay its back salaries.

Appeal to Cabinet.

Some time ago Mayor Cermak said that he would endeavor to borrow money for the teachers' pay whenever he borrowed for city employés. The teachers have been insisting they be paid whenever city employés are paid. They have asserted that the mayor promised them "that no salary payments would be made to any city employés unless the teachers are paid at the same time."

When the mayor went on an extended vacation following his illness last week he appointed Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, City Controller Szymczak, Corporation Counsel Sexton, and Ald. Sonnenschein to carry on in his absence. The south side teachers' massmeeting in Grant park, through its secretary, Robert P. Russell, sent a telegram to the four cabinet members saying: "We (the teachers) feel sure his cabinet will not take advantage of the mayor's illness to break his pledge."

Firemen Send Protest.

Then the City Firemen's association, of which William S. Johnston is president, sent a letter to the city council saying that the firemen have been going quietly about their "task of protecting life and property in the face of reduced man power, increased physical hazard, a 21 per cent cut in salary, and the hardships attendant upon payless pay days." The protest goes on:

"We have not shouted from the housetops nor browbeaten the city officials, taxpayers, civic and business leaders. We now vehemently protest against the attempt of the Chicago school teachers to dictate the conditions under which city employés shall receive their back pay.

"We urge that the school teachers be advised that the pay of the city employés is the business of the corporate government and that the pay of the school teachers is particularly the business of the board of education. We further urge that the school teachers be advised that public employés exist solely for the benefit of the public, and not the public solely for the benefit of the employés."

City Can't Pay Both.

The problem of city pay and school pay was discussed at a meeting of the council finance committee yesterday morning and Victor Petterson, deputy controller, told the aldermen that if the city uses its credit for both city and schools, there will be no money for either pay roll after Aug. 15. At the council meeting yesterday afternoon, Ald. Orlikoski [39th] submitted an order directing the controller to discontinue financing the school board. Ald. Mills [37th] objected and the order was referred to the finance committee.

After the council session, a meeting was held in Commissioner Sprague's office, attended by Controller Szymczak, representatives of the Harris Trust and the Continental Illinois banks, President Myers and Attorney Ralph Condee of the school board, Johnston of the Firemen's association, Patrick Kelly of the firemen's pension board, Police Chief Allman, and Attorney Thomas Mason for the Chicago Teachers' federation. It was intended to have legal representatives of all the teachers' organizations present, but the plan missed fire. So another meeting will be held this afternoon.

Ask School to Act.

While the meeting was executive the apparent purpose was to get the school board to do its own financing and to prevail upon the teachers to

COUNCIL KEEPS LOOP PARKING BAN IN FORCE

Outlying Wards Beat Plea of Stores.

The city council refused yesterday to relax the ban on loop parking and permit one hour parking in the downtown business district from Aug. 1 to Jan. 1 as an experimental measure by loop merchants. A motion to suspend the no parking ordinance for that period was defeated, 29 to 19.

ALD. GOVIER.

The roll call found the aldermen from districts bordering the loop in favor of parking, but an overwhelming number of the representatives of outlying wards killed the proposal. The opposition was strengthened by the statement of Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the committee on traffic and public safety, that the parking ban has resulted in a marked decrease in accidents in the loop, as well as in speedier traffic.

Charge 'I Gotta Drag' Parking.

Ald. Sheldon W. Govier [9th] and Thomas J. O'Grady, who favored one hour parking, said that they did so because taxicabs as well as office holders and other possessors of official "drag" park their cars in the loop anyway, while ordinary citizens are given arrest tickets if they do so.

The roll call on the motion to suspend the no parking ordinance was as follows:

	YEAS.
Anderson	Keane	Pacelli
Bowler	Keils	Sloan
Crowe	Leahy	Sutton
Corr	Landmesser	Terrell
Coughlin	O'Grady	Waller
Govier	Nelson	Wilson

Feigenbutz	Mills	Rowan
Hartnett	Moran	Schreiber
Healy	Morris	Sonnenschein
Horlien	Moreland	Toman
Hodes	Northrup	Williston
Konowski	Orlikoski

There was a second roll call on the question of permitting one hour parking, which proposal practically lost effect after the motion to suspend the anti-parking ordinance had been lost. On the second roll call Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th] and Frank H. Landmesser [38th] changed their votes from yea to nay, making the vote 31 to 17 against the motion.

Ald. Massen, who voted yesterday against one hour parking, cast the vote for the measure in his committee which broke the tie and sent the matter to the council. He explained at the time that he was doing so only to permit a vote of the full council on the matter.

Defends No Parking Rule.

The recommendation of the committee on traffic and public safety that the parking ban be lifted was presented by Ald. Massen.

"It is my own opinion," said Ald. Massen, "that it is a mistake to destroy the no parking rule from the standpoint of public safety. Accidents have decreased since loop parking was forbidden. In an average year before the parking ban there were 631 nonfatal and 8 fatal traffic accidents in the loop. In 1931, when parking was forbidden, there were 295 nonfatal and 4 fatal accidents.

"Trucks, taxicabs, street cars, and buses have been able to increase their speed through the loop since parking was forbidden. On the other hand, the loop business people tell us they are having a hard time getting along as conditions are now, and they want parking restored so that they can get customers to their store doors."

"The loop taxpayers are entitled to their say on bringing people into the loop," said Ald. John Coughlin [1st].

Attacks Committee Report.

"The committee report is a lot of hooey," declared Ald. Govier. "It reminds men of a report on prohibition by Mabel Willebrandt while she was working for the government, or by Bishop Cannon.

"It's a surrender to the taxicab companies and the loop garage owners. The man who pays for the streets isn't allowed to park on them."

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [45th] said that he also favored parking because "the little fellow doesn't get a chance" under the present no parking

Two more days of extreme heat for Chicago and the suburbs are forecast by the weather bureau.

"Tomorrow will be partly cloudy and the temperature may not climb quite as high as the 97 of today," said Forecaster C. A. Donnell last night. "My guess is that it will reach 95. Rains are on the way, but are moving slowly. Thursday also will be hot, but there should be lower temperatures by Friday."

Yesterday's high was reached at 2:40 p. m. It was four degrees under the highest ever recorded for July 19—101 in 1930. The maximum ever noted in the city was 103 on July 21, 1901.

Record Set for Year.

Only once before has 97 been reached this year; that occurred last Friday. Yesterday set another record for the year. It was the first time in 1932 that Chicago had two successive days with maximum temperatures beyond 90.

Since the weather bureau was established sixty-two years ago there have been a total of thirteen days on which the mercury climbed to 100 or more.

The official temperatures of yesterday, taken as they are on a shaded and elevated spot at the University of Chicago, do not show the heat suffered on the streets. A government thermometer at Adams and Dearborn streets during the afternoon registered 104.

Downstate Region Suffers.

Downstate points and cities in other midwestern states, as usual, had maximum temperatures even higher than Chicago's. Virtually the entire area east of the Rockies was suffering in temperatures far above normal. West of the Rockies the temperature was sub-normal.

Mr. Donnel said there appeared to be little possibility of a shift of the wind to the east, which would bring the cool air from Lake Michigan over the city. Several times during the last week such a change in wind direction has saved Chicagoans from temperatures near 100 degrees.

Lake steamship companies reported a heavy business carrying heat doggers on long trips. Radio messages from midlake stated that thermometers were registering in the low sev-

Illinois River Jobs Cause of Blazing Guns

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Marseilles, Ill., July 19.—[Special.]—A labor feud, smoldering for weeks, flared into a battle in this prairie town today. In half an hour of sharp fighting, one man was slain, two were severely wounded, fourteen others received gunshot wounds of varying seriousness, and twenty more were clubbed and beaten.

Tonight, 127 of the rioters were in the county jail at Ottawa. A heavy guard was posted over the dam under construction on the Illinois river waterway here where the outbreak occurred and state police patroled the town. Sheriff E. J. Welter and his men held themselves in readiness in fear of another clash as groups of union men gathered on the street corners and muttered vengance against the non-union workers whose shotguns, rifles and pistols had driven off the first attack upon the dam.

Fear Further Clashes.

Town officials suggested calling for the state militia but Sheriff Welter, a calm officer, said he could handle the situation with his deputies. Chief W. L. Moody of the state highway police arrived tonight and asumed command of his men. All representatives of the law agreed that more trouble was impending.

The slain man was Steve Sutton, 45, of Joliet. He was one of the mob of 400 which, armed with clubs, advanced shortly after noon today upon 130 dam workers who had barricaded themselves behind heavy trucks and electrically charged wire. The attackers were largely made up of recruits from Grundy, LaSalle and Will counties, summoned here by union officials to picket the dam and stage demonstrations.

Name Worker as Slayer.

Sutton was felled by a blast of buckshot from a shotgun. He died half an hour later. An inquest will be held this morning. Questioning of the 127 men under arrest continued tonight in an endeavor to discover who fired the fatal shot.

Charles Mendelson of Morris, one of the unionists, identified Dwight Wallace of Seneca, a construction worker, as the man who shot and killed Sutton. Wallace asserted his innocence, claiming that he had not fired a shot during the fray, although he was close behind the wire entanglements.

The most seriously wounded were E. L. Chambers, Villa Park, Ill., shot in head and arm, and Cecil Hopton, Marseilles, shot in eye and head. All those wounded were union workers who were in the mob advancing upon the barricaded dam workers.

Agree on Peace Before Riot.

One of the strange features of the riot was the fact that the squabble which caused it had just been ironed out in a conference between Herbert W. Miller, superintendent of the Miller-Hutchinson Construction company, which is building the dam, and Tony Augustino of Joliet, business agent of the laborers' union, which was seeking to organize a local in Marseilles and put union laborers to work on the dam.

When the construction company put nonunion workers on the dam last spring there was much ill feeling. The dam laborers were paid 35 cents an hour. The local scale hitherto had been 75 cents an hour.

The fight came into the open yesterday morning when 300 union men, many of them imported from Joliet, advanced upon the dam, but were pacified by Miller, who agreed to a peace meeting last night.

Mob Seizes Superintendent.

Miller met Augustino at the Ottawa airport this morning and agreed to permit a union to be formed and to pay his laborers 40 cents an hour. Miller drove back to Marseilles with the agreement in his pocket.

As he neared the dam Miller met the mob, now grown to more than 400. His car was halted and he was pulled from it.

The workmen had no escape. The river was at their backs and the current is swift, due to narrowing of the stream by the dam. They said later that they believed they would be clubbed to death if they did not defend themselves.

Foreman Rescues Superintendent.

Foreman J. E. Walters saw Miller a captive and asserted he was being clubbed. Walters dashed out and fought his way to Miller. The two men cleaved a passage through the mob. Some one threw a rock at the two men.

That was the signal for the firing from the workmen. A burst of shotgun and revolver fire threw the attackers into confusion and there was a mad scramble to escape.

When the sheriff and his men arrived ten minutes later the workmen threw their weapons to the group and submitted meekly to arrest.

Gunmen Fight Police in Two Towns; 2 Shot

Two gunmen, accompanied by a girl, deliberately shot a Morton Grove county highway policeman just outside of Des Plaines early this morning.

They then speeded to Cicero, where they abandoned their car and continued their flight in another auto. A short time later two gunmen, believed to be the same pair, encountered a police squad in Berwyn. A gun battle followed. One of the hoodlums was shot and both he and his companion were captured. The girl was not found.

The highway policeman wounded is Philip Romano of the motorcycle division. With Policeman Frank Reikowski, he sighted the two men and girl speeding 60 miles an hour south in Rand road. The policemen flagged them down at route 58, northwest of Des Plaines.

Policemen Romano and Reikowski alighted from their motorcycles and walked up to the car as the two men, both wearing riding breeches, stepped to the pavement.

Suddenly both men drew revolvers. They forced Romano and Reikowski to raise their arms. The girl in the car looked on smilingly. One of the men took Reikowski's revolver away. The other man disarmed Romano.

Nothing was said. Then, as Romano still held his hands in the air, the man who had disarmed Reikowski fired at him. Romano fell to the highway with a bullet in his right hip.

Reenter Car and Drive Away.

The gunman walked over to the fallen policeman, leaned over, and said: "Now stay there!" Then the hoodlums reëntered their car, still menacing Reikowski, and drove away.

Reikowski summoned a passing motorist and had him drive Romano to the Des Plaines hospital. He then followed the disappearing hoodlums on his motorcycle. He was outdistanced.

Not long afterward the gunmen abandoned their automobile at 28th street and Cicero avenue, and got away in a second car. Half an hour later they were sighted by Berwyn policemen at Ogden and Harlem avenues. They ignored commands to halt and exchanged shots with the squad. The battle ended with one of them being shot and the other surrendering. The wounded man was taken to the Berwyn hospital.

Lioness Roams in Polish Town; Captured in Net

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KIELCE, Poland, July 19.—A lioness escaped from a visiting circus and loped through the main streets, causing a panic today. Pedestrians dashed to cover, shopkeepers closed and barricaded their doors. The lioness finally hid in the city park. After several hours of siege by police and the local garrison the beast was finally captured in a net.

CHICAGO PLEA FOR 10 MILLION RELIEF ON WAY

Hoover Delays Signing of Bill.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Federal relief for Chicago and Illinois was one step nearer today with Gov. Emmerson's request for a $10,000,000 loan on its way to the capital and President Hoover delayed only temporarily from signing the 2 billion 122 million dollar relief measure.

GOV. L. L. EMMERSON.

The President is expected to sign the bill not later than Thursday and probably tomorrow. Failure to complete the reorganization of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in keeping with legislation passed by congress delayed his signature today.

Once the bill becomes law Illinois will be one of the first states to ask a portion of the huge fund. Gov. Pinchot sent Pennsylvania's application for a $45,000,000 loan yesterday and 28 other commonwealths have indicated they wish to dip into the pot for direct relief.

Illinois In Best Spot.

But Illinois has the advantage of having a strong lobby already in Washington to press its claims. Corporation Counsel William Sexton of Chicago, C. B. Goodspeed of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, and Dewitt Billman, representing Gov. Emmerson, have been on the ground almost a week.

Advices reaching Washington indicate that direct relief loans wanted by only twelve of the 48 states are nearly $175,000,000, based on these expected requests:

Arizona, $45,000,000; Idaho, $1,500,000; Illinois, $10,000,000; Indiana, $8,000,000; Kansas, $2,750,000; Michigan, $11,800,000; Missouri, $2,000,000; New York, $45,000,000; Pennsylvania, [illegible],000,000; Utah, $2,000,000, and West Virginia, $500,000.

Other Loans for Building.

In addition many other states will ask for loans under the self-liquidating project section, for the operation of which congress increased the corporation's bond issuing power by an additional billion and a half dollars. A number of other states have not yet decided whether to ask for loans and are conducting surveys to ascertain their need, while several others may be prevented from applying for the federal money because of restrictions in the state constitutions.

Gov. Emmerson's present request by no means indicates Illinois' total needs. In recent weeks the Emergency Relief commission has been expending more than $100,000 daily to 160,000 families. The governor thus estimates that the $10,000,000 will supply relief needs for a three months' period. That the needs will be greater as cold weather sets in is asserted.

600,000 in State Get Aid.

The Illinois department of labor has estimated that there are 1,150,000 workers unemployed in the state. About 600,000 persons are now being furnished sustenance by the state commission, the governor wrote in his request.

The board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation concurred in the plan to ask only for immediate needs and urged the Illinois representatives to limit their request for the present in the hope that future needs would not be so great.

The reorganization which is delaying all applications for loans under the new bill is being made in accordance with changes adopted under the relief measure as it was passed.

New Division for Loans.

A division of the finance corporation is to be set up to administer the 300 million dollars which were appropriated for direct loans to the states to take care of the needy and unemployed.

The relief measure also authorized the elimination from the corporation's board of directors of the governor of the federal reserve board and the farm loan commissioner, who now sit as ex-officio members. President Hoover will probably wait to sign the bill until he can announce the appointees who will fill the places on the board now held by Gov. Eugene Meyer of the federal reserve board and the farm loan commissioner, Paul Bestor.

In his capacity as chairman of the senate committee recently authorized to inspect Reconstruction Finance corporation loans, Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] visited the offices of the corporation for two and one-half hours this morning. Prior to his departure he stated that he intended to inquire into certain of the larger loans made by the corporation. These presumably included the loan said to be for $80,000,000 made to Charles G. Dawes Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago. After his trip of inspection Senator Couzens said that he had discovered nothing to criticize.

LISTS JOBLESS' NEEDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Louis L. Emmerson today made a formal request to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $3,350,000 a month for three months for unemployed relief.

The formal request, which was forwarded to Washington follows:

"In accordance with title I of the emergency relief and construction act of 1932, I, Louis L. Emmerson, governor of the state of Illinois, hereby make application for funds to be used in the state of Illinois in furnishing relief and work relief to needy and distressed people and in relieving the hardship resulting from unemployment.

For Unemployment Relief.

"Prior to Feb. 1, 1932, funds raised by political subdivisions and private contributions were sufficient to relieve distress caused by unemployment. In Cook county (in which is located the city of Chicago) these funds became exhausted at the date mentioned. This included $10,500,000 raised by private subscription in November, 1931.

"The general assembly, called in special session for this purpose by legislation approved Feb. 6, 1932, authorized the sale of $18,750,000 state of Illinois notes to provide funds. Of the sum authorized, $17,950,000 of these notes have been sold and the proceeds expended in Cook county and in forty-one other counties (of the 102 counties) where private and local governmental funds have been inadequate.

Methods of Distribution.

"This relief legislation also created the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, consisting of seven persons appointed by the governor, to administer the state funds so provided. With this application are submitted reports, audits and other documents prepared by said commission relating to unemployment needs in the state and detailed methods of relief distribution.

"The state relief so provided will be entirely exhausted in Cook county July 22, 1932, and in the other counties by Aug. 1. I hereby certify that the resources of the state of Illinois, including moneys then available and which can be made available by the state, its political subdivisions and private contributions, will be inadequate after July 22, 1932, to meet its relief needs.

"It has been estimated by the Illinois department of labor that there are 1,150,000 workers unemployed in the state of Illinois, 160,000 families [about 600,000 persons] are now being furnished sustenance at a cost averaging about $20 per family per month and aggregating $3,350,000 per month. This is the minimum monthly requirement estimated to be necessary for relief purposes in the state of Illinois for the three months beginning July 22, 1932, and as governor of Illinois I certify the necessity for funds and make application at this time for the amount per month stated for this period.

Will Receipt for Funds.

"Upon the approval of this application by the corporation in whole, or in part, I shall deliver to the corporation a receipt for funds paid to me, stating that the payment is accepted subject to the terms of section [1] of title 1 of the emergency relief and construction act of 1932.

"Any funds so made available will be administered under my direction and upon my responsibility, and I shall file with the corporation and with the auditor of public accounts of the state of Illinois a statement of the disbursements of any funds so provided.

"If, after the corporation has made available funds for the immediate needs of the state of Illinois, a standard form of application is required to be substituted for this application, I agree to file an application in such form as may be so required."

CHARGE POLITICS RULES GIFTS OF RED CROSS FLOUR

Farm Board Inquiry Will Include Exchanges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Charges that farm board wheat recently ordered distributed for relief purposes was being converted to political uses were contained in letters received today by Senator William E. Borah [Rad. Rep., Idaho]. The letters came from Herbert N. Griffin, secretary, and William E. Kalb, commander, post No. 11, and C. E. Alexander, secretary, and H. H. Fisher, commander, post No. 6 of the Loyal Order of America of Memphis, Tenn.

REPRESENTATIVE EDWARD H. CRUMP. [Acme Photo.]

They asserted that unemployed in Memphis were unable to obtain flour made from the farm board wheat unless they pledged their support to the Democratic organization, headed by Representative Edward H. Crump of Tennessee's Tenth congressional district. The flour had been turned over by the Red Cross to the local relief organization, which was under Crump's political domination, the letters claimed. They stated that there were 18,000 unemployed in Memphis.

Widen Farm Board Quiz.

The projected inquiry into the federal farm board will not stop with the board, but will embrace a study of the country's grain and cotton exchanges, it was announced today by Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the senate agricultural committee and of the sub-committee which will conduct the investigation. Senator McNary made he announcement after a meeting of the sub-committee, at which a program was laid out.

"We hope to be able to present to the senate next December a report showing every transaction carried out by the board and its agencies," Senator McNary said. "We have decided to extend the inquiry to the wheat and cotton exchanges and it was agreed this morning to employ experts who will conduct a study of the exchanges during the summer.

"The question to be settled is where the government's money went. In order to trace it down, we believe we cannot confine ourselves to a mere study of the farm board."

Board Submits Loan Data.

The inquiry, Senator McNary said, will go into the farm board and its subsidiaries, the Farmers National Grain association, the Grain Stabilization corporation, and the American Cotton Cooperatives' association.

The board has already submitted to the committee a detailed statement, showing its loans, to whom they were made, in what amount, at what rate of interest and what repayments there have been. An accompanying explanatory letter "takes up the various charges that have been made against the board and gives the board's answer to them."

No hearings are looked for until some time in the fall.

"We can not now forecast where the investigation will lead," Senator McNary declared. "We do not intend to investigate the activities of every single cooperative to which the board has made a loan, but if the record discloses transactions which warrant inquiry, we shall investigate."

JOBLESS ARMY ASKS INDIANA LEGISLATURE FOR RELIEF FUNDS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 19.—[Special.]—Several hundred unemployed men from different parts of the state assembled on the east steps of the statehouse here today after a peaceful march through downtown streets. Wendell Stocker, Hammond, spokesman, then went inside and appeared before the house of representatives and presented seven demands of the self-styled Indiana unemployed workers' council.

After parading to the statehouse, the group marched around the building. Those in the front rank carried a red flag and a banner demanding release from the Indiana state farm of Theodore Luesse, convicted communist leader.

Stocker told the legislators that Gary workers were dying and that "mass starvation and suicide" would be the result unless $25,000,000 in relief funds were voted.

A detail of sixty policemen armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs was on duty at the statehouse yesterday and today.

LOCK UP BINGA JURORS AFTER DAY'S DEBATE

Deadlocked after nearly a day of deliberations, the jury trying Jesse Binga, Negro banker, on a charge of embezzlement last night, was ordered locked up for the night by Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court.

Binga is charged with embezzlement of $39,131 entrusted to him by depositors of the Binga State bank several years ago for the purchase of stock in a proposed national bank. The Binga State bank was closed on July 31, 1930. The proposed bank was not formed.

The defense of the banker hinged, apparently, on a technicality. The prosecution asserted that the money placed in Binga's care was not accounted for when the state bank ceased business. However, Binga's counsel, John Cashin Jr., contended under the law funds to be used for the purchase of national bank stock cannot be placed in deposit in a state bank, and that no evidence existed that Binga had embezzled the funds from the bank.

COUNCIL GRANTS NEW FRANCHISE TO TUNNEL CO.

By a vote of forty-three to four the city council last evening passed the tunnel ordinance, granting a 30 year franchise to the Chicago Tunnel company.

It provides that the company must pay $710,000 to the city within thirty days. That sum represents a compromise of the claims of the city against the company under the old franchise. Those claims amounted to $1,400,000. The new franchise also specifies that the tunnel company shall pay to the city 3 cents per car for every trip, 3 cents per ton on certain classes of merchandise, and 6 per cent of all other revenues. The old franchise, which expired in 1929, provided for a flat 12 per cent on all revenue.

Opposition to the new franchise was led by Ald. James B. Waller of the 43d ward. He asserted that it was not a good bargain for the city. His negative vote was supported by Ald. Thomas A. Doyle [13], Wiley W. Mills [37], and Albert E. Loescher [44].

French Unemployed Storm Border to Buy Cheap Bread

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, July 19.—Four hundred French unemployed today rushed to the Belgian frontier near Tourcoing to buy Belgian bread at 1 franc 45 centimes a kilogram (about 4 cents for 2.2 pounds). A small riot threatened when frontier guards refused to allow them to reënter France.

ordinance. He was followed by Ald. O'Grady.

"In the committee meeting," said Ald. O'Grady, "Ald. Massen asked me how I stood on the proposal. I said, 'Come with me, and I'll show you.' We went out on La Salle street after the meeting, and there were 25 or 30 cars parked in violation of the law. Across the street were 15 or 20 taxicabs.

"Poor Fellow Gets Ticket."

"If the poor fellow parks, he gets a ticket. But a judge, or a county commissioner, or an alderman or deputy clerk of the Municipal court parks and gets away with it."

Ald. O'Grady paused, and said, "May I have a drink of water . . . I guess that's all I can get here."

"I'll buy you some beer when we get out," offered Ald. James B. Bowler [25th].

Ald. Coughlin stepped up with a thermos bottle and he and Ald. O'Grady had a drink together. They both insisted it was beer, but a later investigation convicted Ald. Coughlin of carrying ice water on his hip.

Wilmette to Seek $600,000 U.S. Loan for Water Works

Willis D. Nance, village attorney for Wilmette, was delegated by the village board last night to go to Washington to make application for a loan of $600,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the construction of a proposed water works system for the community. He was instructed to ask the corporation either to make the loan or to purchase that amount of a village bond issue.

Grant Company Right to Run One Man Cars on 21 Lines

The Illinois Commerce Commission yesterday refused blanket permission to the Chicago Surface lines to install one man street cars on their lines, but permitted the installation of the service on 21 less traveled lines after establishing new safety rules for one man cars.

For the protection of passengers, the commission, in its order issued at Springfield, provided that no operator of a one man car shall collect fares, make change, issue or accept transfers, tickets or money or make any entry in his records while the car is in motion. Citizens charged before a city council committee several months ago that these practices by operators of one man cars endangered the safety of both passengers and of pedestrians and occupants of other vehicles on the street, by distracting the operator's attention.

An Economy Measure.

The company asked permission to use the one man cars as an economy measure, pointing out that the surface lines carried 161,000,000 fewer revenue passengers in 1930 than in 1929, and that gross earnings decreased $11,032,445 in the same period.

The one man cars will permit a reduction in operating personnel, although the company promised that the one man cars will be run more often over the lines in question than two man cars are run now, with a consequent decrease in waiting time for passengers. The operators of one man cars get 3 cents an hour more than those on two man cars.

The Lines Affected.

Under the commission's order the company may operate the cars all the time on 13th stret, 26th street, Pershing road, Root street, 51st-55th street, 59th-61st street, 67th-69th street, Windsor Park, South Deering, Hammond, Whiting, Morgan-Racine and Montrose avenue lines.

On the 79th street, 35th street, Wallace-Racine, Van Buren street, North Damen avenue, Elston avenue, Chicago avenue and Lawrence avenue lines, one man cars will be permitted only for the night or "owl car" service. On the Elston avenue and Van Buren street lines, however, they may also be used on Sundays.

The commission retained jurisdiction on all phases of the case, so that future orders may be entered if necessary.

MR. WEIGLE MAY NOW BUILD A LOT OF CHICKEN COOPS

Edwin F. Weigle, chicken fancier, was authorized by the Deerfield village board last night to go ahead with the building of his seventh chicken coop.

The ruling was given by Village President James H. Hood, himself a former chicken fancier. It followed a long hearing in which six neighbors of Weigle protested against his farm of 400 chickens and hens and six coops.

President Hood looked up the law. The Deerfield code, he said, authorized scientific chicken farms. Moreover, the code allowed six coops to each acre. Thus, he said, Weigle could go ahead with his seventh coop.

"In fact," added President Hood, "Weigle, under the ordinance, can have more than seven coops. He has a five acre plot of ground. That would mean thirty coops."

Drowns in Puddle of Wine in Basement of His Home

Percy, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Herman Ruehkorff, who lived near here, drowned in a puddle of wine in the cellar at his home, a coroner's jury decided today. Ruehkorff's widow testified that when she found her husband's body his face was submerged in a puddle of wine that had gathered in a hole in the concrete floor of the cellar. Ruehkorff had been drinking heavily, she said.

Bandits Rob Grocer as He Cashes Check for $209

D. J. Worth, a grocer at 1900 St. Charles avenue, Melrose Park, visited the office of Herman Weiss at 136 Broadway in the suburb and cashed a check for $209. Just as Worth pocketed the money two gunmen entered, took $1,700 from Weiss, and also took the $209 which Worth had received a minute before.

VETERANS AGAIN CLOSE GATES AT WHITE HOUSE

Rumor of "Picketing" Is the Cause.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—For the second time within a week the potential menace of the disgruntled "bonus expeditionary force" caused authorities today to clang shut the great iron gates of the White House grounds and throw a heavy cordon of special police about the executive mansion.

The precautions were taken following persistent reports that a large delegation of veterans were on their way to picket the White House. The information, however, seems to have grown out of the movement of about forty veterans from one billet to another, and no picketers appeared at the White House, although special guard was maintained throughout the day and only persons who could establish their identity were permitted entry to the grounds.

Butler Tells Them to Stay.

In a characteristically vigorous speech liberally punctuated by "hells" and "damns" Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired commander of the Quantico marines and defeated candidate for the senate in Pennsylvania, exhorted the veterans at the Anacostia encampment today to stay in Washington and fight it out.

"They are trying to get you to go home," he said. "You ought to keep some one here in the front line trenches. You have as much right to a lobby in Washington as the United States Steel corporation. Don't take a step backward. Remember, as soon as you pull down the camp flag this movement will evaporate. Those of you who do go home vote to kick hell out of your enemies."

Radical Visits White House.

Late in the afternoon, Urbain Ledoux, New York social worker known as "Mr. Zero," presented a personal petition at the executive offices calling upon the President to convene a special session of congress to enact bonus legislation, and demanding that the veterans now in the city be cared for by the government pending congressional action. Ledoux was fined $40 in Police court yesterday.

Before he left the White House, Ledoux told reporters that he would "wait twenty-four hours for the President to act, and if the veterans do not picket the White House I will do it myself." His picketing, he said, would be done on his constitutional right to "walk around the block."

Deny Abuse of Loans.

Meanwhile the exodus of veterans from the capital on transportation money loaned them by the government continued. By the end of the day the ranks had been diminished by nearly 4,000.

Reports that large numbers of veterans are taking advantage of the government loans to obtain free transportation to other cities to recruit new bonus forces were denied today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs. It had been reported yesterday that many veterans, having obtained the loans, skipped off the train several miles from Washington.

UNEMPLOYED FORCE MILLS EMPLOYING 6,000 TO SHUT DOWN

High Point, N. C., July 19.—(AP)—Roving bands of unemployed took advantage of a strike of hosiery workers here today and forced the shutdown of virtually every manufacturing plant in high point. Approximately 6,000 workers were thrown into idleness as 100 plants closed.

The groups marched from plant to plant here and in Thomasville, six miles away, turned off the power and refused to let it be turned on again. Thousands of workers left their posts in orderly fashion. Police stood by with tear gas bombs, but they were not called into action.

After bringing about an almost complete shutdown in High Point, the strikers and unemployed turned their attention to Thomasville and soon the 15 or 20 textile, chair and furniture factories there were idle.

GOLD BRICKS FOR SALE NO LONGER JOKE IN FRANCE

Ingots and Coins Dealt In Like Groceries.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 19.—Selling gold bricks is no longer a joke in France. It is big business.

Thousands of persons throughout Europe are buying gold because they want something which will not fluctuate or depreciate.

They are paying more for the gold than it is worth on the official market. And if it is minted gold that can be hidden and if it is in small units that can be used for exchange in case of need they are willing to pay an even higher premium.

Sold Like Groceries.

The exchange of gold as a commodity instead of as a measure of commodities has become a new business. In Paris they sell gold retail, like groceries.

There are scores of banks, brokerage firms, and small money lenders who are doing a boom business selling gold to people who have lost faith in paper money. Paris is the center of this traffic. It obtains gold from America and distributes it throughout the continent.

Europe's craze for the precious metal is one reason why gold movements across the Atlantic continue even when the dollar exchange is favorable. In the case of American double eagles, the most preferred form of gold because of its handiness, there is a certain premium over and above the official exchange rate of at least twenty centimes [about one cent] on the dollar. On ingots the premium is less. That twenty centime premium—and in certain sections of Europe it often rises higher—is enough to insure a profit above shipping and insurance costs. If the dollar happens to be below the gold point there is a profit to be made on the exchange rate in addition to the premium.

Demand Is Great.

So great is Europe's demand for gold that the supply cannot be satisfied. That forces the premium to rise and business gets better.

Americans in France are among the biggest customers of the "gold grocers." These expatriates have lost confidence in the dollar. A responsible American banker in Paris said that some of his richest clients have liquidated the bulk of their wealth and purchased gold. It is difficult to import gold ingots into France because they do not come in sizes smaller than 10,000. That is why coins sell at a higher premium.

But, according to this banker, many wealthy American families in Paris have purchased gold ingots from the Bank of France and keep them in safes in their homes. Most purchasers of ingots place them in safe deposit boxes, but the banker said that he knew at least one American family which has buried gold bars in the cellar.

Gold Is Disappearing.

The importance of the gold traffic is illustrated by the official statistics on gold hoarding in France. During 1930 about $1,000,000 disappeared from circulation every month. In 1931 it climbed to $18,000,000, and in September, after England went off the gold standard, it was $36,000,000. Since then it has fluctuated back and forth, but the last figures—April—show that the hoarding overshadowed the production of gold throughout the entire world. It was over $50,000,000.

The small dealers, who have profited by the widespread lack of confidence in paper currency, obtain their gold by banding together and ordering the metal from America through some large bank.

STOCK RUNS WILD IN STREET AFTER TRUCKS CRASH

Police squads turned cowboys yesterday and staged impromptu rodeos in the streets of the southwest side to round up steers and hogs which had escaped when two farmers' trucks bound for the stockyards collided with street cars.

At 22d street and Springfield avenue a truck containing 14 hogs, driven by Dudley McDonald of Winnebago, collided with a street car. Two street car passengers were hurt. Joseph Ziolowski, 59 years old, 1617 West 19th street, suffered a fractured shoulder, and Martin Hallberg, 29 years old, 2237 South Homan avenue, was cut in the neck. Sergt. Louis Loula led a squad to round up the hogs which had escaped from the smashed truck.

The other collision was at 63d street and Homan avenue, when ten hogs and several steers were recaptured by Sergt. John Hogan and his squad, equipped with clothesline lassos. The animals escaped from a truck owned by C. A. Sandberg of Greenville.

Unable to Sell Produce, Farmer Gives It to Poor

P. H. Kiehne, who has a truck farm at 17th and North avenues, Melrose Park, arose before dawn yesterday and loaded a truck with spinach, kohlrabi, beans, carrots, and other vegetables. He took them to the Randolph street farmers' market in Chicago, but stood all morning without finding a buyer. On his way home he decided that rather than waste the vegetables he would give them away. He stopped at the Melrose Park police station and asked police for the names of deserving persons. Members of the police and fire departments notified families on the unemployment relief rolls.

Holstein Cow Breaks World Milk Producing Record

Breckenridge, Minn., July 19.—(AP)—A nine cow-power milk producer is Holstein Lady Pride Pontiac Lieuwkje, owned by F. E. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune. She has just broken the world's record for combined milk and butter production at Femco farms, with a yearly output of 35,626 pounds of milk—about nine times that of the average cow—and 1,483 pounds of butter. She gives 50 quarts of milk a day. She has no dainty appetite, consuming about 94 pounds of feed and 25 gallons of water a day. She weighs nearly 1,900 pounds.

GIRL PLANS FLIGHT TO GREECE

SEA FLYER TO HOP TO ATHENS WITH WOMAN CO-PILOT

New York, July 19.—[Special.]—Roger Q. Williams, who flew the Atlantic with Capt. Lewis A. Yancey in 1929, will try it again, this time with the world's distance record as a goal and with a woman flyer, Miss Elvy Kalep, 26 and blonde, Estonian transport pilot, as co-pilot. Their plans call for a nonstop flight about Aug. 15 from Floyd Bennett field to Athens or beyond.

Williams said today his plane for the flight would be the Liberty, in which Holger Horlis and Otto Hillig flew to Europe last year. It will be rechristened the Olympia and painted light blue and white, the Greek colors.

"We will have about 5,500 miles range in this Bellanca and will carry 720 gallons of gas," Williams said. "The Wright 300 engine burns about fifteen gallons of gas an hour. If we still have fuel when we reach Athens we will keep straight on."

Miss Kalep has 350 hours' flying and has studied navigation.

HUSBAND SENT TO ALIMONY ROW FOR $156 DEBT

Thomas M. Lee, 4003 Drexel boulevard, was sentenced to six months in the county jail by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday because he is $156 in arrears in payment of temporary alimony to Mrs. Evelyn Lee, 6402 South Sangamon street.

"Eight years ago I got $500 a week as a cattle broker," Lee told the court. "Now I can't make enough money to pay my wife $5 a week for my child. I'm just getting a start as a tipster on the horse races and I soon will be able to pay all that back indebtedness to her if she'll just give me a chance."

Attorney Harry X. Cole, counsel for Mrs. Lee, informed the court that Lee had failed to reveal that he was working when he had appeared at an earlier hearing. He said his client wished to see her husband in jail. The judge then pronounced his sentence.

Passes Stop Light on Way to Be Wed; Wins Acquittal

Attorney Abraham Teitlebaum, 6040 Winthrop avenue, appeared before Municipal Judge Leon Edelman yesterday, charged with driving his automobile past a stop light on May 21. "Your honor," said Teitlebaum, "perhaps I wasn't watching my driving so closely that day. You see, my fiancée and I were on our way to Crown Point to be married. We have just got back from our honeymoon." Judge Edelman dismissed the case as a wedding gift. Mrs. Teitlebaum was Miss Esther Melnick, who is also a member of the bar.

Wilmette Board Orders Inquiry Into Oil Fire

The Wilmette village board last night ordered an investigation into the explosion and fire which wrecked three fuel oil tanks on the property of the Kutten Brothers Coal company early yesterday. The property is located in west Wilmette. Joseph Kutten, an owner, said he believed the blaze was caused by a bomb, but admitted he knew of no motive for it. Fire Chief Walter Zibble said he was advised by a fire expert that hot weather rather than a bomb caused the fire. Both angles will be investigated.

JUDGE'S RULING GIVES DIVORCED MAN TWO WIVES

Gustave Boyens becomes a man with two wives as a result of the ruling of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, who yesterday set aside a divorce granted to Boyens on April 6. The judge acted when Mrs. Lazetta T. Boyens, 6758 South Emerald avenue, appeared in his court and charged that her husband's decree was fraudulent, since he failed to serve notice of the action upon her.

Mrs. Boyens said she learned of the divorce last Saturday when she discovered that her husband had married Mrs. Rose Halley, a divorcée. She said that she wished to obtain the divorce, charging that her husband had deserted her.

CANADA AGREES TO ADMIT BRITISH STEEL; U. S. HIT

Empire Conference Opens at Ottawa Tomorrow.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19.—Tremendous enthusiasm featured the arrival at Ottawa today of the British, South African, Rhodesian, and northern Irish delegations for the imperial economic conference. Special trains carrying the delegates and their staffs of experts arrived here at 10:30 a. m. and were met by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and other Canadian ministers.

R. B. BENNETT.

The delegates rested at the Château Laurier this afternoon after a sleepless night on the train from Quebec. The train jerked to a stop frequently in an effort to consume time so as not to arrive at Ottawa too early.

Although the conference does not open until Thursday, various interests are busy arranging outside deals. It was reported today that Canadian and British steel manufacturers have reached a tentative agreement by which Canada will admit British steel of kinds not manufactured in Canada.

Directed at America.

This transaction is directed at the American steel trade, which now supplies Canada. Britain is almost totally excluded. Details have not yet been announced and the agreement must first be accepted by the conference.

The most sensational side of the conference and the one causing the greatest gossip is the dispute between the Irish Free State and Great Britain over the oath of allegiance to the British crown and the payment of land annuities which may develop into a first class quarrel.

It was previously reported that the Irish delegates intend to vote against sending a message of loyalty to King George, which will be the first business of the conference. This, it has been learned, is not so. The Irish delegates are not willing to raise so acute an issue and will follow other delegates in accepting the resolution when it is put to a vote.

Unwilling to Talk.

Sean O'Kelly, vice president of the Free State; Sean F. Lemass, minister of finance, and James Ryan, minister of agriculture, are not willing to talk while the situation remains "delicate." They have great hopes of settling the economic quarrel between the two countries by negotiations, thus avoiding arbitration or litigation, which usually leaves the loser with a sour taste.

So far no agreements have been reached, but matters are in line for private discussions. J. H. Thomas, British minister for dominions, today said that no statement on the Irish question would be made by him or any other British delegate while they are in Canada.

This does not imply that there will be no negotiations. Any statement to be made on results achieved would naturally be made by Prime Minister MacDonald in London and President Eamon de Valera in Dublin.

Stress Parley's Importance.

Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the British council, leader of his delegation, said that this is the most important conference in history for two reasons:

"First, Britain never before has been in a position to negotiate with a free hand from the electorate, and, second, never before was the trade of the world so depressed."

The spirit of the whole delegation is that of the cricket team when none cares two pins who makes the runs so long as the side scores well.

ENDS LIFE IN GARAGE OFFICE.

Charles F. Schalk, 51 years old, committed suicide yesterday in the office of his garage at 1640 Seward street by inhaling illuminating gas. Police said he was despondent over financial difficulties.

Gen. Owen O'Duffy, police commissioner of Ireland and president of the Irish Olympic council, arrived in Chicago last night with a party of Irish athletes. They are bound for the Olympic games in Los Angeles and will leave today. The general and his associates were met at the Dearborn street station by Deputy Police Commissioner John Alcock and representatives of the Irish-American society of Chicago, headed by Joseph Prendergast.

Jury Convicts Gambler of Kidnaping Mrs. Donnelly

AUTO COLLISION INJURES PRIEST; 2 NEWSBOYS HURT

The Rev. Father Ernest Harvath, 9241 Chauncey avenue, pastor of Our Lady of Hungary Roman Catholic church, was cut and bruised and John App, 30 years old, 535 Ingram avenue, Calumet City, suffered a fractured skull yesterday when their automobiles collided at 92d street and Anthony avenue. Both were taken to the South Chicago hospital.

Joseph Maloney, 10 years old, 9226 Baltimore avenue, and Harold Kulak, 11 years old, 9243 Baltimore avenue, newsboys, were hurt yesterday when a driver lost control of his car and pinned them against their news stand at the trisection of 93d street, Commercial, and South Chicago avenues. They were taken to the South Chicago hospital by Mrs. Mathilda Bloom, 551 East 89th street, whose car had hit them.

Paraguay Recaptures Fort from Bolivia in Chaco 'War'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 19.—It was officially announced today that Paraguayan troops had recaptured Fort Pitiantuta from Bolivia in the disputed Chaco region. Several casualties were reported. The recent capture of this fort, sometimes called Carlos Antonio Lopez by Bolivians, caused Paraguay to withdraw from the Washington boundary conference.

Another Fort Attacked.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 19.—(AP)—An official communique from Bolivian headquarters in the disputed Chaco region today told of an attack by 300 Paraguayan soldiers on the Bolivian fort, Mariscal Santa Cruz, on July 15. The communique added that fighting was continuing.

The courier who brought the message from Fort Munos, Bolivian headquarters in the Chaco, which has been in dispute between the two countries for many years, said that two soldiers, presumably Bolivians, had been killed when he left.

Not long after this communique was published 10,000 persons gathered in the square before the presidential palace and protested against "Paraguayan aggression."

Bolivian Cabinet Meets.

In answer to their cries President Daniel Salamanca told the throng that if the latest advices are true, the Bolivian people would know how to carry out their duty against an aggressor. He urged them to be ready to serve their country if needed. The cabinet met tonight to consider the situation.

[The Chaco is a three-cornered strip of land bordered on the north by Bolivia, on the east by Paraguay, and on the southwest by Argentina. The Argentine line is well defined, but the Bolivians and Paraguayans have long been unable to agree on their boundaries. Both sides have erected forts over the Chaco and there is no no-man's land.

A POLICE TRAP FAILS TO CATCH A BLACKMAILER

Police waited for hours yesterday in the Greyhound Bus station at Wilson avenue and Broadway in an attempt to trap a blackmailer demanding $500 from Joseph Diebler, operator of the Chrysler North Shore Auto agency, 22 South 1st street, Highland Park.

On Saturday Diebler received a letter from Chicago advising him to place $500 in $20 bills in a package addressed to Mr. Bill, and to leave the package at the bus offices at 11 a. m. Tuesday. He was warned that "the penalty will be yours if you fail."

At 11 o'clock yesterday Diebler placed a decoy package in the bus offices. Sergt. Marc E. Kopp and other detectives waited nearby but no one called for the package.

2 Buses of Fair Ground Fleet Are Christened

Two of the fleet of sixty buses for carrying passengers through the World's Fair grounds were christened and put in operation yesterday in front of the exposition's Administration building. Sidney Gorham, chairman of the traffic control committee of the fair, poured water from the lagoon into the radiators of the buses, and Rufus C. Dawes, president of the exposition, made a brief speech of dedication.

TOKIO WAITRESS TO VISIT CHAPLIN; BUYS TROUSSEAU

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 20.—[Wednesday.]—A 20 year old waitress in Salon Haru [the Spring], a Tokio café, announced last night that she will sail for Hollywood early in September to visit Charlie Chaplin. Her name is Miss Eneko Suzuki.

According to gossip here, she expects to marry Chaplin. Komakichi Tateishi, who is taking a party of 20 Geisha girls to Hollywood at Chaplin's invitation, will act as foster father to Miss Suzuki. It is reported that Chaplin is sending $10,000 to pay for Miss Suzuki's passage. Tateishi is arranging the purchase of a trousseau, which, according to the Japanese custom, indicates a formal engagement.

Chaplin met Miss Suzuki on his recent tour of the Far East. Before sailing for the United States, the movie actor is reported to have told Tateishi that he would be "happy to marry Miss Suzuki if she came to Hollywood."

START NEW YORK DRIVE AGAINST OLD MAN BUDGET

Citizens' Committee Asks 75 Million Slice.

Ask 20 Million Cut

New York, July 19.—[Special.]—The citizens' budget commission, which has been studying the city's finances with a view to discovering how the 1933 budget may be reduced by $75,000,000 to $100,000,000, urged Mayor Walker today to ascertain the extent to which civil service employés were willing to turn back voluntarily a part of their statute protected salaries to the city.

The commission suggested that, without discharging any employé now on the pay roll, 20 million dollars could be saved if the civil service employés would coöperate voluntarily in rebating a portion of their salaries.

It was recommended that an effort to enlist this coöperation should be made before the alternative method of reducing salaries is considered. This alternative would mean appealing to Gov. Roosevelt to call a special session of the legislature to attempt to repeal the existing legislation freezing the pay roll at its present figure.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., July 19.—[Special.]—Following a pledge from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt that he intended recommending drastic reductions in the state's expenses, steps were taken here today for the formation of a central citizens' committee to aid in slashing 75 million dollars from the budget to be voted in October.

The only way to reduce government costs is to reduce the functions of the various bureaus. Gov. Roosevelt told the more than 200 real estate, industrial, and business men gathered at a state economy conference in the red plush carpeted executive chamber of the capitol.

"I personally believe," said the governor, "that the state can and should eliminate many of its existing functions of government. Don't worry. I'm going to make recommendations for a very substantial cut. There are going to be some drastic reductions, but you people have got to help me."

Two Ways of Coöperating.

Then Gov. Roosevelt outlined the coöperation he wanted before assuming leadership in budget trimming. The two main points were:

The formation of a major committee representing the various civic and business organizations of the state to work with him on an economy program.

The careful study of available data concerning the functions of the different governmental departments by those interested in cutting expenses and concrete information from them concerning the functions they desire to be curtailed.

For a while during the afternoon session it appeared that the governor was endeavoring to pass the buck to the citizens' organizations and that they were trying to pass it right back to him. In the end, however, definite pledges of coöperation were exchanged.

A reduction of at least $75,000,000 in next year's expenditures was demanded by Merwin K. Hart, representing the New York State Economic Council, Inc.

He Tells the Governor.

"Business has fallen off and incomes have been cut in half or even more," said Mr. Hart, "but the cost of government remains as high as ever. There has got to be a reduction commensurate with our reduced incomes. The reduction is a problem of governmental and legislative bodies. It is your problem, Mr. Governor, and you and the legislature have the responsibility on your shoulders. My organization asks that:

"The state government's expenses be reduced at least 25 per cent and that the legislature, at the earliest opportunity, repeal all mandatory expenditure laws."

Barbed shafts were aimed at the governor's liberalism in "wanting the people to directly rule expenditures," and one drew fire.

"I'm not refusing leadership," snapped the governor as he pounded the table, "but I am going to put you people on record. I'm no Mussolini. You don't want a Mussolini. You've got to go fifty-fifty with me on this problem."

Rochester Is Critic.

The Rochester Chamber of Commerce delegation criticized the governor for not taking the initiative in cutting expenditures. The Rochester spokesman called attention to the many state employés who get their food, clothes, and lodging, and still receive boom time salaries.

"Why," asked Rochester, "is the ratio in government pay fixed when everywhere else the ratio has been lowered?"

This chamber demanded that the budget be cut 25 per cent, that state salaries be reduced, jobs eliminated wherever possible, and furloughs be given during the slack seasons.

George McLaughlin of the state chamber of commerce told the governor that it was up to him to assume leadership in an economy program.

"If you want help from us," said Mr. McLaughlin, "all you have to do is have Mark Graves, the budget director, draw up a sample budget fixed at about 200 million dollars (last year's budget totaled 271 million dollars) and then let us shoot at that. You'll get our backing on a budget of that sort."

Governor Tells Them When.

"Nobody ever reads the budget bill," said the governor, a bit sadly. "That is one thing we will have to remedy. Let me tell you something about the functions of the state government and then when we have another round table discussion—and I am going to call one in three or four weeks—you can tell me exactly what governmental functions you want eliminated and what you want curtailed.

"Of the tax dollar, the federal government gets 40 per cent, 48 per cent goes to localities in this state, and 12 per cent is used to run the state's government. Now we are going to try to cut that 12 per cent and will save 10 or possibly 15 million dollars. You can't do much about the federal 40 per cent, and the 48 per cent that is handed back to the taxpayers in this state is mostly for education. It is up to you to decide whether or not you want to reduce the funds available for educational purposes.

"Now we had 271 millions appropriated last year. Right away 118 millions of that amount were turned back to localities. Then 24 millions were expended for debt service. We turned back more than 10 million that we saved. That leaves only about 128 million dollars in which we can make cuts.

Begins with Functions.

"The opinion of one individual in the matter of which governmental function should be eliminated should be checked against the opinions of others who actually know. By ordering economy on every hand we will be able to save 10 to 15 million dollars this year. That is not enough. We will have to bring it down a lot more, but we will have to eliminate governmental functions in order to accomplish further reductions.

TRANSPORT TRUCKS OVER 35 FEET LONG BARRED ON HIGHWAY

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—(AP)—Chief of Highway Police Walter L. Moody announced today that effective tomorrow all automobile transport trucks more than 35 feet long will be barred from state highways.

The law banning such vehicles was enacted by the 1931 legislature and became effective last year but a federal restraining order granted the Contract Cartage company delayed its enforcement.

Decisions in the eastern federal court, however, have upheld the act and a decree dissolving the injunction has been signed by United States Circuit Judge Samuel Alschuler and District Judges Walter C. Lindley and Charles E. Woodward.

Arrests, Chief Moody said, will be made beginning tomorrow and a tractor and trailer together measuring more than 35 feet will be considered one vehicle.

15,000 ATTEND DEDICATION OF WHEALAN POOL

The Emmett Whealan swimming pool at Milwaukee and Devon avenues was formally dedicated last night. More than 15,000 persons listened to the speeches and watched the swimming and diving exhibitions. The pool cost $224,000 and will accommodate several thousand bathers.

One of the events was an entertainment staged by Sophie Tucker, comedienne, and sixteen bathing chorines appearing in a loop theater. Judge Frank M. Padden acted as master of ceremonies, and introduced Mr. Whealan, president of the forest preserve commissioners, who made a brief talk.

The highest piece of structural steel was put in place yesterday on the new Chicago postoffice, completing the 15 story tower on the northwest corner of the struoture. Following their old custom, the steel workers put an American flag on the highest piece of steel. The building is 45 per cent finished, officials said, and the steel work is 75 per cent completed. The building, which will cost $22,000,000, is scheduled to be finished on May 1, 1934.

Detroit City Employes on 5 Day, 40 Hour Week

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—(AP)—By a vote of 6 to 3 the city council tonight placed employés on a five day, 40 hour week, reducing salaries 14.5 per cent and paving the way for coöperation by the city in an economy program advanced by large taxpayers who have agreed to help finance the city through the 1932-'33 fiscal year. Prepayment to taxes in sufficient volume to permit issuance this week of July 16 pay checks now is expected.

PRIVILEGES GO WITH U. S. JOB; BUSINESS PAYS

How Federal Stores Put Others "in the Red."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., July 19.—[Special.]—Evolution of a bureaucratic theory that federal pay rollers as a privileged class are entitled to lower prices and lower cost of living than the ordinary taxpaying man emerged out of today's hearings by the Shannon congressional inquiry into the inroads of government into business as active competitor with private enterprise.

A procession of merchants from Leavenworth testified that they were being driven to the wall by the competition from new government stores in the two federal penitentiaries and by the activities of the post exchange and book department at Fort Leavenworth. Approximately 10,000 persons, they maintained, are now buying from government stores which pay no taxes and have no overhead, while approximately a million dollars a year of trade is being diverted out of regular business channels.

To a community of some 15,000 the million dollars, they said, meant an important purchasing power, and merchant after merchant declared he was being put in the red by the government as a business rival.

Public Aroused by It.

The situation has stirred up great protest, not only in Leavenworth but in Kansas City, St. Joseph, and Atchison, and the day's hearings attracted interest as being typical of the spreading of bureaucracy and the mushroom growth of government in business.

Especial attention was directed to the two federal penitentiaries now overflowing with gangsters, bootleggers, and bankers. Here the complaint is that in the name of "Sweetness and Light" the bureaucrats are even trying to establish the 5,500 convicts themselves as a privileged class, entitled to buy necessities for less than the ordinary law abiding, tax paying citizen has to pay.

"The bureaucrats, as usual," commented Congressman Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, chairman, "say it is in the interests of 'welfare and efficiency.' Those two words are the cold chisels of the bureaucrats."

Leavenworth merchants declared that until recently outsiders could buy gasoline at the government filling station, evading a three cent state gas tax, and could buy cigarets without paying the tax. Civilian employés of the government, their families and friends, they set forth, some 800 in number out of 4,000 families in the community, were able to get cut rate prices in government stores.

How It Operates.

Instances were cited where government employés did their window shopping in Leavenworth, but after finding out from the clerks the exact article they wanted, went to the government stores to do their buying. Carl Hunnius, a jeweler in Leavenworth since 1893, told of a $35 watch he almost sold but didn't as a specimen of how government competition operates.

"The sale was almost complete," he said, "and I put the watch away for the customer at his request. A few days later he told me he had a cousin working as a stenographer at the Fort and he was going to buy the same watch at the post exchange at cost plus ten per cent.

"Then there was a Seth Thomas clock. The customer came into my store and engaged the services of a clerk for two hours. He measured the clock, took its catalogue number, and then went out to the government store to buy it.

At Expense of Business.

"They can't get an idea from a picture in a catalogue of how an article is going to look, so they come to the Leavenworth merchants to do sight shopping before they put in an order at the government store, which does not exchange goods. In many instances an article has been taken from a private store to the government store to show what the customer wanted to buy, and then returned to the town merchant as not wanted. How can private business and enterprise survive such coat-throat methods?"

"The government has 800 civilian employés," he said. "They get good salaries—better than the ordinary man—and we contend they have no right to use the government as a merchandising agent for themselves. Government in business is unfair. Its overhead is paid out of taxes; its rent is free; its heat and light is free; its clerks are government employés; it is free from taxes; it has no credit losses for its collections are made through the government, while the ordinary business man has to pay for all these things.

Where Will It End?

"If this shall be a privileged class entitled to a discount on what it buys because it works for the government where is it going to end?"

The two prison stores were established last year. The local merchants testified they have taken $600,000 out of ordinary business channels. Each prisoner is allowed to make purchases to the extent of $12 a month.

Gen. Stewart P. Heintzelman, commanding general at Fort Leavenworth, set forth that the post exchange was established as a convenience for the 540 families living on the reservation, and that it deals mostly in food articles with a view to making housekeeping as simple as possible. The main criticism is against the prison stores.

Hotel Men Complain.

Efforts of the government to get into the café and restaurant business were attacked by the American Hotel association, with 6,000 member hotels. H. K. Dickey, said that in 13,000 hotels, the catering business is $380,000,000 annually and 100,140 men and women are employed in the kitchens and dining rooms with a salary of $84,000,000.

"We are opposed to the growing tendency on the part of our government," he said, "to install cafeterias in government buildings to compete with private business."

COLLECTOR ROBBED.

Frank A. Minster, 4048 Crystal street, a collector for the American Express company, was robbed of $805 yesterday by two bandits, who forced him to drive to 50th street and Cicero avenue. They left the car at Archer and Cicero avenues, where Minster found it.

PONCA CITY, OKLA., TO BE FREE OF TAXES IN 1933; PLAN NO LEVY

Ponca City, Okla., July 19.—(AP)—The city commission announced today that Ponca City will have no city tax levy next year.

Ponca City thus will become the first municipality in Oklahoma free of a city levy.

An 8 mill sinking fund levy was made last year, but this year the $138,714 appropriation will be paid out of profits of the municipal water and light plants. There has been no general revenue fund levy in several years.

Elimination of the city tax will cut about one-third from the tax payments of Ponca City citizens on state, county, and school district levies.

The city's bonded indebtedness is $748,500.

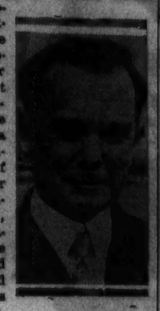
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Recent reports of the house and senate appropriations committees which made it appear that appropriations for 1933 had been cut more than a billion dollars were based upon a "most misleading" juggling of figures, Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], senate appropriations committee member charged today. He referred to the reports given out last Saturday by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], and Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman, respectively of the senate and house appropriations committees.



SENATOR McKELLAR. [A. P. Photo.]

Instead of a saving of more than a billion dolars under appropriations for 1932, Senator McKellar said, the last session of congress had appropriated an aggregate of $9,156,929,627 or $3,978,307,659 more than the $5,178,524,967 appropriated the year before.

Fights Cheese Paring Methods.

Senator McKellar was one of the leaders of the small congressional group which during the last session fought cheese paring methods of retrenchment and held out for far reaching economies. He declared the figures on which Senator Jones and Representative Byrns had based their optimistic claims had entirely left out the three billion 300 million of Reconstruction Finance corporation bonds for the purchase and support of which the treasury had been permitted; the 246 million lost by the operation of the moratorium; the 125 million, 250 thousand appropriated for the new home loan bank system, and the $40,000,000 voted to reimburse the farm board for wheat and cotton turned over to the Red Cross.

The "accurate and exact figures," said Senator McKellar, "were as follows:

Interest on the public debt	640,000,000.00
Sinking fund and other retirement funds	496,803,478.00
Ordinary permanent and indefinite appropriations	149,104,250.00
Total	$1,385,907,728.00
Moratorium	246,000,000.00
For veterans	203,925,000.00
Pensions	12,750,000.00
Emergency relief	322,224,000.00
Reconstruction Finance corporation out of the treasury	500,000,000.00
Capital stock, federal land banks	125,000,000.00
Home loan bank corporation	125,250,000.00
Red Cross wheat and cotton	40,000,000.00
Reconstruction Finance corporation bonds or debentures	1,500,000,000.00
Addition to Reconstruction Finance corporation bonds or debentures	1,800,000,000.00
Total	$9,306,829,627.22
Economy committee savings	150,000,000.00
Total	$9,156,829,627.22

The chief blame for the extravagance of the government must lie with President Hoover, Senator McKellar said.

"During the entire session," he declared, "Mr. Hoover has been prating about 'rigid economy,' and yet he has recommended all these appropriations and more. Congress did not appropriate all he recommended, but at all events it totals $9,156,829,627. If this is economy Mr. Hoover is entitled to credit for it. I say it is wicked and vicious extravagance. The majority of the congress yielded to Mr. Hoover in his demands for this tremendous appropriation."

Senator McKellar feared that the Reconstruction Finance corporation and its $3,800,000,000 worth of federally furnished credit would turn out to be another "noble experiment." The one bright spot in the picture, he said, was the cut of $334,394,094 made by congress below the President's budget estimates.

Tells of Fight on Slashes.

"The actual lessening of these appropriations was not due to Mr. Hoover or his administration," said Senator McKellar, "but was due to the economy activities of the congress made notwithstanding the opposition of Mr. Hoover and his cabinet. When the appropriations hearings were held each of the cabinet officers either in person or by letter pleaded with the committee not to reduce appropriations in their several departments under the amounts recommended by the President and the budget. Some members of the cabinet appeared before the committee time and again urging that no reductions be made.

"All the time that the cabinet officers were protesting, President Hoover was giving out vague and indefinite statements favoring 'rigid economy' and in order to accomplish rigid economy urging congress to give him the right to consolidate bureaus, commissions, and departments. Under a bill introduced by Senator George of Georgia this right was conferred on the President, but so far as any one knows he has never consolidated a bureau nor effected a saving thereby."

What economies there were therefore, Senator McKellar argued, "should be credited to congress. He reviewed the history of the 150 million dollar economy bill and blamed President Hoover for having brought about the adoption of the furlough plan for federal employés instead of the straight pay cut plan recommended by the committee. Not only does the furlough plan save less money, he said, but it is "unfair, unjust, unequal, and gives rise to what may be the greatest possible favoritism in government." He also denounced the continuation of ocean and air mail subsidies, for which $66,709,100 was appropriated.

"These appropriations," said Senator McKellar, "were wholly indefensible and wicked."

"The economy committee of the senate has been continued," he concluded. "It still has a vast work to do. We must reduce further the expenditures of our national government. We must abolish useless bureaus and other useless activities. The fight for national economy has just begun."

CENTRALIA MAN DROWNS.

Vandalia, Ill., July 19.—[Special.]—Armand Amadei, 27, meat cutter of Centralia, drowned Monday in the Kaskaskia river southwest of here. Amadei, S. E. Sefton, Earl Bresse and Arthur Brink, all of Centralia, were swimming when Amadei sank. His body was recovered but artificial respiration for an hour failed to revive him.

HOOVER DELIVERS HIS ACCEPTANCE SPEECH AUG. 15

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover will formally open his campaign for reelection on or around Aug. 15, when the official notification ceremonies are to be held in Washington. Officials said today that the President will receive the formal notice of his renomination and deliver his speech from the south portico of the White House. In event of rain the ceremonies will be held in Constitution hall.

The President today definitely decided against a trip to the west this summer. He had hoped to go to Los Angeles to open the Olympic games, but decided to give this up on the recommendation of his political advisers. Instead he will send Vice President Charles Curtis to serve as his representative.

The President will buckle down shortly to the task of writing his acceptance speech.

Wet leaders in the party are urging the President to stand back of the prohibition plank adopted at Chicago. The dry members are urging that he stress the necessity of enforcing the law to the limit until it is repealed and at the same time promise the electorate a chance to modify the 18th amendment through a referendum. The radical drys would like to have Mr. Hoover ignore the prohibition plank.

That the President expects to sound the keynote of the party stand on prohibition has been inferred from the fact that cabinet orators have been directed to steer clear of this controversial topic for the time being. Secretary of War Hurley had planned to talk on prohibition at Columbus, O., but substituted the "new deal" instead after a trip to the White House.

NATION WARNED OF RUIN IN PROPERTY CONFISCATION BY TAXATION

COL. McCORMICK DEMANDS ACTION TO END MENACE

Calls for Defeat of Reds Now in Congress.

Speaking last night over a national NBC radio hookup, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE, declared that the depression would be ended as soon as the federal government sets an example to other taxing bodies by "removing its income tax drain tube from the arteries of commerce."

Taxation, Col. McCormick said, has destroyed wealth and confidence in the future. He asserted that one-half the present expenditures would be sufficient to give the people every service they enjoy from government because more than half now goes to waste, nepotism, patronage, and corruption.

Introduced by Rossetter.

Col. McCormick was introduced on the air by George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who was associated with him in the formation of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures. This organization includes as members more than 800 chambers of commerce, farm organizations and taxpayers' associations in forty-eight states.

The Chicago outlet of the National Broadcasting company for Col. McCormick's speech was WLS. The text of the address follows:

"You who wish to help save your country must act quickly. You must elect a congress that will aid, not ruin, it, for we have been betrayed—not in the houses of our friends, but in the houses of congress. We have only the dog days of summer and the short days of fall in which to organize to send to Washington men who will undo the misdeeds of the last congress and start us back from the road to ruin on which we are traveling.

Where Congress Is to Blame.

"We justly attach great blame to the congress just decensed because until last winter no extraordinary turpitude attached to the politicians for our predicament. The boom due to the war and its aftermath had concealed the fact that taxes, some necessary, but more due to extravagance, nepotism, favoritism, and corruption, were eating away the vitals of the nation.

"As long as there was no general realization that our depression was due to public taxation, the taxers could not be held entirely responsible for the unbearable tax burden, for while theoretically it was their duty to anticipate the public needs, the practice had long been established for them to follow in public and economic thought.

"But shortly after last Christmas the fact was perceived that the world-wide depression was caused by over-taxation. It was publicly proclaimed, frequently published in the Congressional Record, and became a matter of common knowledge.

A Riot of Confiscation.

"Congressional leaders recognized the correctness of the analysis and creditably introduced sensible measures for the reform of pubic extravagance. But when the members found that this involved cut salaries for the relatives and political supporters they had loaded on to the public pay rolls, and an abandonment of the policy of bribery of voters by groups and by localities, an insurrection was set up in the party ranks in congress, under the acknowledged leadership of the Reds, the political leaders ran to cover, and a riot of confiscation and misappropriation followed.

"In order to avoid the political consequences of increased taxes on many voters a policy of expropriation of the property of a small number was adopted.

"As an obvious and direct consequence the value of property, already low, fell more than 50 per cent during the few short months of bolshevik control of congress.

What Taxes Do to Property.

"It is obvious that the public wealth is the total of private wealth and can increase only as the latter is increased and must shrink as the latter wanes.

"Now, private wealth varies inversely as the tax rate, as is easily seen in income producing property. For example, if the income from a property is $2,000 a year and the taxes are $200 the net income is $1,800. But when the taxes are raised to $1,000 per year the earning power drops $1,000 and the value is shriveled in proportion. If there is a threat or a fear of a further increase in the rate the value of the property depreciates still more.

"But that is only the beginning of the collapse.

"For when an owner of property bringing in $2,000 before taxes of $200 wishes to sell it after the taxes have risen to $1,000 he is offered only a fraction of what he paid for it. He goes from broker to broker, only to find that he is advertising the depreciation of his property and that each inquiry brings a lower offer, until neither he nor any of his neighbors can realize one-half the price they paid before the tax eaters struck them. They have lost the larger part of their investment and nobody has gained it!

Home Values Destroyed.

"Exactly the same principle holds true of the householder. When he finds his taxes unbearable and tries to sell his house he finds that the high taxes have made it equally unsalable. The value of home property has been destroyed by the stifling tribute inflicted upon it.

"In the same way the taxes piled on industry have risen to the point where industry is on the road to ruin. This was contemplated, but the ruin carries in its train certain unavoidable consequences which, if contemplated, were concealed.

"The first of these has been the widespread unemployment, which is the result of capital confiscation. To provide for the unemployed the politicians have turned to further taxation on industry, with the resulting consequences of still further unemployment, and a decrease in taxes received as earnings have disappeared.

"The next situation which we face is that we shall have millions of unemployed and insufficient money extortable by taxation with which to buy them food. The country and its rulers will then be faced by the alternative, 'Shall the unemployed starve or shall food be provided for them, and since money will not be available to buy it, shall it be requisitioned from the farms as in Russia?'

"Will the farmers resist such a requisition and will they be able to? If they do, will the government expropriate the farms for the workmen as they have already expropriated the industries, ostensibly for workmen and farmers, and if so will our population, based upon a complicated industrial system, be able to return to the status of European peasantry, directed and dominated by the ruling class of officeholders from which our forefathers escaped, without the widespread famine and starvation that stalk in Australia and New Zealand today?

Slavery to Office Holders.

"The crisis is rushing upon us. The movement which seeks to put the nation in slavery to an officeholding class by the confiscation of private property is organized and active; you must organize and act for self-preservation.

"Today the United States government, through one of its agencies or another, dominates transportation, banking, and agriculture, and is reaching out for dominance over manufacturing and commerce. In less than a generation the taxes paid to the United States treasury have risen from less than a billion dollars a year to well over four billion.

"Nothing could be more certain than that, if the present trend continues, the tax exactions will rise, year by year, until all private profits will disappear. We are close to that point today. The governments, national, state, and local, are taking a fourth of the income of the American people today, and about one-third of this huge total goes to Washington.

Red Doctrine Promulgated.

"This sacking of the American republic was made possible because of a mistaken idea of national wealth during the boom, because the bulk of the taxes was extorted from a number of voters so small that they could not protect themselves, and from the proclamation of the foreign doctrines of the anarchists, Engels, Marx, and Lenin, that the ruin of the rich would inure to the benefit of the less well to do.

"Our subverters have expounded at length that big business competed with little business and distracted our attention from the fact that it was a big consumer of little businesses' products, a large employer of men, and our principal taxpayer.

"With the elimination of big business we have lost great markets, much employing power, and have acquired the heavy tax burdens which big business carried as long as it could.

"Receipts from income taxes for the year ending June 30, 1929, were $2,331,274,429. For the year ending June 30, 1930, they were $2,410,259,230. For the year ending June 30, 1931, they were $1,860,040,497. For the year ending June 30, 1932, they were $1,057,000,000.

"Our tax laws have destroyed more than a half, nearly two-thirds, of taxable income, forcing the tax eaters to search elsewhere for their spoils.

"But the consequences of their sacking of industry have been far more terrible.

"In substantially reducing buying power and compelling selling of all kinds of property to meet tax bills, they have forced a bear movement in all commodity, security, and realty prices, infinitely greater than all the other bear influences combined, until, the sellers so greatly outnumbering the buyers, property of all kinds has lost most of its value. There being little demand for commodities, there is only a trifling demand for labor. Taxation has eaten our livelihood.

Imposts Are Merciless.

"And so with income taxes. These have been imposed with the merciless ferocity of a Lenin on the larger incomes because they directly oppress only a small number of voters. But they injure the moderately poor and the moderately rich as much as they do the very rich, because when the very rich are compelled to offer their property for sale to pay their taxes they break down the value of all property of the same kind, and the depreciation of one class of property exercises a malign influence on the value of all other property.

"The evil course extends still further. As property depreciates, the credit with which it endows its possessor falls with it. If he is a borrower his bank must require him to reduce the loans with which he has been gallantly carrying his share of the burden of world progress. From a hopeful investor he becomes a frightened hoarder and a new cycle of value depression sets in.

"Combined with less value and credit is a fear of the future which keeps buyers out of a market to which owners, oppressed by taxes and by fear of future tax extortions, bring their property for sale. The tax caused cycle of depression reaches cyclonic proportions.

Collapse in All Markets.

"From the security and real estate markets, by which comparatively few voters are employed, the collapse extends to all other markets, wholesale and retail. As the demand and the means to pay for clerks and salesmen fall off, so disappear the demand for manufactures and the livelihood for factory workers. Poverty prevents buying of farm products, even to food products, so that the farmer, overtaxed at first, is now punished in his earning power.

"All over the country we witness the tragic spectacle of men who, their employment gone, unable to pay their mortgages, are losing their homes to insurance companies, which cannot either use or sell them, but are compelled by law to foreclose.

The Ruin Due to Fear.

"Taxation has destroyed our wealth by directly reducing the value of property, by forcing owners to sell, by removing the means for others to buy, by diminishing credit, by ruining earning power and the means to buy commodities, thus creating unemployment and, finally and most vicious of all, by spreading fear among our people that all their property will be taken from them.

"This catastrophe has been brought upon us by less than a thousand confused and selfish men dominated and driven by a bare handful of confirmed and organized Reds in direct and indirect communication with the Third Internationale of Moscow.

"Our ship of state is like the latest of the great productions of inventive genius and private enterprise—the airship—fallen in a tailspin.

"A good airship when governed with a light and sympathetic hand flies safely and swiftly to the desired destination, but, swerved sharply by an unskilled or insane pilot, it falls toward earth in a constantly tightening spiral, and the more the frenzied pilot jerks and jams at his controls the wilder becomes the vortex. But if the pilot's hand be removed and the ship allowed to take its own course it will cease to spin, straighten out, and proceed on its level way.

"We must remove the paralyzing hands from the controls of our ship of state, both the clumsy, frenzied hands of the majority in congress and the unseen hands of their vicious leaders.

How to Restore America.

"The first and all important step on our road to recovery must be to remove fear of the future from the hearts of our people. To do this we must drive out their enemies from congress and replace them with men who wish our country well. This work has been nobly begun in Iowa, where the people by a vote of more than two to one have removed the infamous Brookhart, whose pilgrimages to Moscow expose the path that all his crowd propose to follow. In Australia the citizens have overthrown the destroyer, Lang, and in England they have removed Arthur Henderson, leader of the radical element in the cabinet.

"The patriots of Louisiana have organized to combat the unspeakable Huey Long and all of his works, and in Wisconsin coolheaded and iron-hearted citizens are working together for the overthrow of the soviet allies in that state. May we find in New York City some patriot to defeat the alien minded Fiorello La Guardia, who would destroy the government which American George Washington there set up.

"Then, to the three million parasites who have schemed and wormed their way upon the public pay rolls you will say, 'Heed the fate that befell the wolves of Anticosti. That island was once populated by limitless droves of caribou, until one year Labrador wolves were carried to it on the ice. The island was favorable to the pursuit of wolves and its shores prevented the escape of the pursued. The wolves waxed in number, destroyed the caribou, and then, with nothing to feed upon, all died of hunger. That is the prospect which lies before you.'

"The end of the tax road has come. You who have appropriated more than the public revenue, sometimes double the revenue, can now see that your flood of other people's money has ceased to flow.

"In the world of the federal tax eaters citizens have given up business activities since they must bear all losses while jobholders extort as much as 80 per cent of any gains. In consequence incomes have been dried up by taxation and now produce only a third as much as when they were imposed.

Revolt of Property Owners.

"In the local governments, where the oppression on landholders has become unbearable, there is an unorganized resistance all over the land. Each year finds more and more property owners failing or refusing to pay the taxes so unjustly levied upon them. So great are these defaults that tax buyers can no longer be found to farm the taxes. Resistance has reached the proportions recorded in England at the time of Charles I. and in the thirteen American colonies just before the revolutionary war.

"This is not the proper method to pursue. This way ruin lies—the very ruin that the Reds seek to bring about.

"Unorganized lawless resistance to taxation must give way to organized lawful organization of tax levies. Every department, every state, every county, and every city can reduce its cost by at least one-half without omitting any single service which the citizens want, because more than half of all our public expenditures go to waste, nepotism, patronage, or corruption.

An Unanswered Challenge.

"Three months have passed since I issued the challenge 'that there is not a cabinet officer, there is not a member of congress, who can demonstrate that even one-half of the money appropriated for any department of government is used for the purpose designated.' That challenge has never been taken up. The accused stand mute.

"The return to prosperity, the salvation of our country, depend upon tax reduction.

"When your real estate taxes have been cut in half real estate will immediately double in value; there will be buyers for all who have land to sell, credit for those who wish to borrow, and foreclosures will cease.

"The instant that federal government removes its income tax drain tube from the arteries of national industry the emancipated money will rush to investment. Building will start; factories will open; supplies of all kinds will be bought at increasing prices. Men, happy in new found employment, will once more hand large pay envelopes to their wives to put into circulation. The cyclone of despair will pass away before the fair winds of happiness and prosperity.

"Members of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures and members of other organizations dedicated to similar service, I offer you my congratulations and my thanks. Upon the success of your efforts the fate of our country depends, no less than it once depended upon the leveled arms of the soldiers of Bunker Hill, of Stony Point, and of Yorktown. You and those who join with you constitute the army in defense of America. If you are vigorous and steadfast in your task future generations will revere you as the greatest of patriots."

IOWA G. O. P. WARNED GOVERNMENT COSTS MUST BE CUT DOWN

Des Moines, Ia., July 19.—[Special.]—Iowa Republicans concluded an uneventful state convention today, the only outstanding incident being the withdrawal from the race of the ousted state auditor, J. W. Long, who had had a plurality in the primary June 6. Karl Fischer of Vinton was nominated for the auditor's office and T. E. Martin of Iowa City named for railroad commissioner.

John Cross of Newton, temporary chairman and keynoter of the convention, delivered the one speech of the day.

Cross said that in 1890 the total cost of all government in this country was $13.56 per capita; in 1929 it was $107.37, and for 1932 it is estimated at $124.

"The cost of government today is absorbing approximately one-fourth of the total national income," he asserted. "At the present rate, within 50 years we shall all be working for the government, either directly or to support those who are thus employed. This course is an unconscious drift or trend toward Socialism. It must be checked."

IndianaCountyAssessments Show Loss of $5,000,000

Valparaiso, Ind., July 19.—[Special.]—Personal and realty assessments in Porter county for 1932 are expected to show loss of between five and six million dollars, according to estimates by County Auditor C. A. Blachly. With reduction in railroad and other corporate assessments, another loss of five millions is anticipated.

HOTEL SHERMAN PAYS $30,000 ON TEN TAX BILLS

Expect Rush as Judgment Date Nears.

The Hotel Sherman company, now in receivership, paid $30,000 of approximately $120,000 in taxes yesterday under the installment payment plan of County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. The hotel paid $20,000 on a bill of $80,742 and $10,000 as an initial payment of nine other properties taxed at approximately $40,000.

So far the treasurer has collected $797,402.78 under the installment plan. Payments have been made on 9,943 bills. A rush to pay is expected before July 25, when judgment is to be asked against those who have not protected themselves by paying a 25 per cent installment.

Expect Receivers to Pay.

The action of Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel in entering a $167,787 judgment against the Aquitania Building corporation for delinquent taxes for 1924, 1925 and 1926 will bring in tax money on large properties, particularly those in the hands of receivers, Special County Attorney William Capesius said.

Attorney Capesius said the building would be put up for sale within a month after legal formalities have been observed. The judgment is one of the largest of its kind in the history of the Cook county courts. The Aquitania building is a $3,000,000 structure at 832 Argyle street. Since 1926 it has been in the hands of a bondholders' committee, which has paid taxes for 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Item Is Explained.

John V. Farwell, 208 South La Salle street, is listed in tax volume No. 479, which covers a portion of North town, as owing $39,872.22 on item No. 489. He calls attention to the fact that the Women's Athletic club, 262 North Michigan avenue, is liable under its lease for the tax.

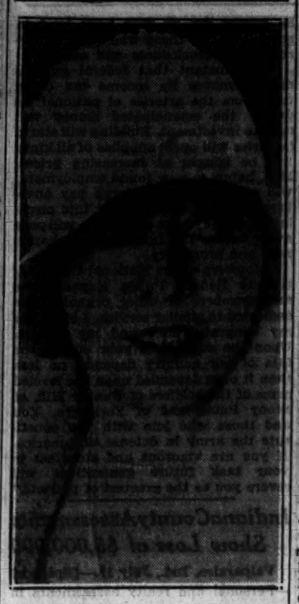
Records of the treasurer's office give the name of the person to whom the bill is mailed. The record makes no note in instances where properties are rented on the condition that the tenant pay taxes. Many persons and firms who are listed as owing taxes are merely agents for the owner, whose name does not appear.

Errors in Records.

An injustice was done to Carson Pirie Scott & Co. through an error in county records, which was repeated in a published list. The records list the company as owing $74,060.46 on property at 300 West Adams street. This property is under a 99 year lease to David Schethitz, who under the terms of the lease must pay all taxes. Carson Pirie Scott & Co. states that it does not occupy that property nor own it.

The company occupies space at 366 West Adams street and taxes on that property as well as on all other property owned or occupied by the company have been paid. The tax bill of the company totals $750,000.

DIVORCED AGAIN



Ethel Clayton, film actress, who got her second divorce from Ian Keith, film actor, charging cruelty and excessive use of liquor in both suits. A decree was not entered in the first suit because of a dispute over property.

3 ANTI-CHICAGO SENATORS TO AID IN SEAWAY QUIZ

One of Seven from Upper Mississippi Valley.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Publication today of the personnel of the senate foreign relations subcommittee which is charged with the task of investigating and reporting upon the advisability of ratifying the St. Lawrence waterway treaty disclosed that three of the seven members hail from lake states bitterly opposed to the Chicago water diversion.

SENATOR ROBERT F. WAGNER. [Fotograms Photo.]

Of the other four members of an investigating group which will pay special attention to the section of the treaty drastically limiting the diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago only one comes from the upper Mississippi and Illinois area. The three representatives of states which for years have fought the water diversion and which still oppose any diversion at Chicago are Senators Arthur S. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], Robert M. La Follette [Rad. Rep., Wis.], and Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.].

Chicago Water Chief Topic.

Committee members from the Mississippi valley include Senators Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] and Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], senate minority leader. The other member in addition to Borah is Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.]. Senator Borah said today that he thought the question of the Chicago diversion would be foremost among the matters into which the committee will inquire. The hearings are to begin shortly after the middle of August.

Notwithstanding the fact that New York state vigorously opposed the Chicago water diversion it is far from certain that Senator Wagner will favor ratification of the treaty. The New York senator always has opposed the St. Lawrence seaway and the dispute between New York state and the federal government over the disposition of te power may line him up against the treaty. Senator Walsh is a pioneer advocate of the treaty as is Senator Vandenberg.

Costs Canada Only 40 Million.

A balance sheet made available today disclosed that Canada expects to expend less than $40,000,000 out of the national treasury on the St. Lawrence waterway project. Although the government of Canada will receive one-half the power developed in the international section of the river and will share equally in the navigation advantages of the seaway, the total new Canadian expenditures on the seaway project have been set at $142,204,000. Of this amount the province of Ontario will pay $103,900,000, leaving $38,304,000 to come from the Canadian treasury.

The United States, on the other hand, is to pay out $257,992,000 on new work. Just how much of this ultimately will be returned to the federal treasury by the recipient of the American share of the power has not been determined.

What It Costs Each Nation.

The United States is forced to pay the largest share because Canada has been given credit for funds expended upon the Welland canal, a wholly Canadian canal whose development first started more than 100 years ago. The credit allowed the United States for work on the St. Lawrence sector was $14,461,000.

A table showing the total estimated cost, together with credits given, follows:

Expenditures:	United States.	Canada.
For upper lake channels	$ 56,500,000	.....
Thousand Islands section	461,000	$ 772,000
International rapids section	215,492,000	59,250,000
International rapids to Montreal	.....	92,984,000
New Welland canal	.....	126,000,000
Gross national expenditure	$272,453,000	$278,976,000
Expenditures already made:
For upper lake channels	$ 14,000,000	.....

Brookhart Attacks Treaty.

Other St. Lawrence waterway developments today includeed an attack on the Chicago water diversion section of the treaty by Senator W. Smith Brookhart [Rad. Rep., Ia.] and a discussion of the cheap power possibilities of the project by Senator George W. Norris [Rad. Rep., Neb.], a Roosevelt supporter. It was also disclosed at the state department that officials of New York state have asked for copies of the pact preparatory to taking steps to obtain a monopoly of the American share of the power.

The Iowa radical Republican called attention to the section of the treaty which limits the Chicago diversion to the Supreme court decree figure of 1,500 cubic second feet plus domestic pumpage by 1938.

"This treaty," Senator Brookhart said, "not only acknowledges the jurisdiction of Canada in Lake Michigan but reduces the diversion limit by 8,500 cubic second feet without any consideration being given in return."

Senator Brookhart charged that ratification of the treaty would nullify the power of congress to provide diversion from Lake Michigan for navigation purposes.

"The 1,500 cubic second feet at Chicago is not enough to protect the nine foot channel in the Mississippi at low water stages," he said. "Sometimes the whole 10,000 cubic second feet originally permitted is needed."

ILLINOIS BUSINESS LEADERS TO FIGHT ST. LAWRENCE PACT

Leaders of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Mississippi Valley association yesterday announced they would go before the senate foreign relations committee, headed by Senator William E. Borah, to fight confirmation of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty on the ground that it was a "sell out" to Canada.

S. M. HASTINGS. [Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Samuel M. Hastings, president of the manufacturers' association, said he would call a meeting of the principal shippers and industrial leaders affiliated with the association to get their views for the senatorial committee. The principal objection to the treaty is the section limiting ultimate diversion of water at Chicago to 1,500 cubic second feet, which is considered inadequate for navigation in the Illinois waterway.

George Wisner, former chief engineer of the sanitary district and an authority on waterway projects, said the Illinois waterway could only be "very poorly" operated, if at all, with 1,500 feet of diversion and that the sanitation conditions would be so objectionable as to constitute another obstruction to navigation.

CITY MAY HOLD PAY DAY; PASS UP TEACHERS

withdraw their protest against paying city employs. Controller Szymczak in answer to questions of teachers after the meeting said that President Myers told the conferees that he did not desire the present tax levies of the board passed by the council. He, Trustees Carr and McJunkin voted against the $90,180,000 school budget and with other trustees have urged a cut in school expenses.

The teachers asked Mr. Szymczak why the city could not purchase school tax anticipation warrants with the surplus funds in the city treasury. He replied there is only $11,463,000 in cash in the treasury, but that is only technically true. While there is $11,463,000 of cash in the treasury, it owes to trust and pension funds and other pressing claims, $29,105,000, so there is virtually a deficit of $17,642,000 in the city treasury.

President Myers promised he would present to the board today the problem of paying back salaries. The conferees hope that the school board will approve of the city paying city employés although teachers and school employés will not share in a payday. If such an attitude is also expressed by the teachers' organizations, city employés will be paid late this week or early next week. If, however, they continue to protest, the mayor's cabinet has not decided what its course will be.

Men of the Soil Demand Voice in Australian Rule; Launch Drive Against Radicalism

This is the eleventh of a series of articles on Australia by Mr. Kinsley. He was sent to Australia to get an American observer's viewpoint of conditions there.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 1.—[By mail.]—One of the great and pressing problems Australia is now facing is the demand of the rural districts for the formation of new self-governing units within the federation and simplification of provincial government. This tends toward greater centralization of power in the federal capital of Canberra. It has as its motive power the fear of New South Wales radicalism and the wide cleavage in thought and interest between the city Laborite and the primary producers, the farmers, everywhere.

Outside turbulent Sydney, riding south into the peaceful green pastures that stretch for hundreds of miles toward the Victorian border, one finds a different Australia. The seaport atmosphere, the smoky huddle of the industrial section, the "man in the mass" achievements, the comforts and sameness disappear, and the vast plains and hills, which have forged the unconventional, the independent, the hard and practical in Australian character, unroll. Politics and sport remain the chief subjects of talk, but they take on a different tinge. Sport is sport, not gambling, and politics is thinking, not a parrotlike repetition of such slogans as "Lang is right."

A Leisurely Country.

It is a large and leisurely country, with horses pulling antiquated buggies over muddy roads, houses and towns still in the pioneer stage, more early American than English.

Wagga Wagga, which means in the language of the aborigines, "the land of many black crows," is the seat of the secession movement in the Riverina country. Riverina, a district of 50,000 square miles, with a population of 20,000, mostly farmers, is most insistent on breaking away from the Sydney Labor domination. Last June, before the election which drove John T. Lang and his socialization party from power, they were organized and ready to break away by force of arms.

They regard the election of June as an incident in the political trend and see nothing but trouble ahead unless they can obtain control of their own domestic affairs, with power removed from New South Wales parliament and placed in the more remote and balanced federal parliament, where the Country party has a chance. The situation here is reversed from that in many American states, where rural state legislators control the city. Here it is the city representation which is ignorant and careless of country affairs.

Country Party Strong.

One result of the June election was to place the Country party in a strong position, for the Nationalists cannot rule against Labor without them, and their program for a series of referenda on new state units will go through. They do not want more expensive parliaments, but simple provincial assemblies, made up of good men working for the love of their country, not mediocre men at fat salaries clinging to their parliamentary jobs through compromise and trickery and blind party obedience.

Two of the main planks in their platform are:

"The reduction of costs and taxation, especially in exporting industries.

"The suppression of communism, and the encouragement of loyalty to God, king and country."

What Travelers Said.

Here one day a group of men were riding a train. An elderly insurance man, a farmer, and a young salesman exchanged ideas about the condition of the country. Here is what they said:

The Farmer—The Labor man [he is speaking politically] has nothing in common with us. What does the prosperity of this country depend on? On us, the primary producers. Yet they pile up taxes and costs on us until we cannot bear it.

Insurance Man—Wages have got to come down in this country. The government party did not dare say so, but they cannot continue setting wages by arbitration boards on the basis of a theoretical living wage or a certain standard of living. Wages are fixed politically when they should be fixed economically.

Salesman—Well, it is up to industry to lower its costs in some other way first. They cannot take it out on labor. Everybody has got to make a sacrifice these days.

Farmer—We are making all the sacrifice. The Sydney politicians have spent our tax money building trams and their great harbor bridge.

Insurance Man—It is better to have lower wages than no wages at all.

Farmer—Many do not think so. There are 1,200 persons on the dole at Wagga. Some are living in tent houses in the park along the river. They have a sort of vested interest in the dole. They can live better without working than by working.

Relief Tax "Too High."

Insurance Man—The last labor government said the tax for unemployment relief was too high. Then they raised it to a shilling a pound.

Farmer—The farmers have got to save this country from communism.

Salesman—I think everybody is trying to get something out of the government, farmers as well as those on the dole. They all speak for their own interests.

Insurance Man—They are killing industry and independence in this country.

Farmer—There is too much overlapping, expensive government. The basic wage must be fixed by federal authority and the margins for skill and overtime fixed by state bodies representing both sides. Labor has been running this government for itself. It is time the farmer stepped in and we are going to do it.

Insurance Man—The dole is the worst thing that ever happened to this country. I would not let starve, but I would make them work.

Farmer—Yes, they might fix up these roads for us. Look at my boots.

Salesman—Well, we have gone too far to go back now. We have a greater average of comfort than any country in the world. We have no slums and nobody starving. World conditions are responsible for this trouble and the employer must find some way out beside putting labor back in the condition that it is in in other countries. This money problem is too much for me.

Insurance Man—Well, it is too much for America and Europe, too, evidently. They are taking one-twelfth of my income now in taxes. The result will drive capital out and that is the one thing Australia needs.

Farmer—They are also driving men from the country to the city to lose. Some day they will have all the electoral power.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DECLARES SHE FAVORS REPEAL

Governor's Wife Had Been Classed as Dry.

Albany, N. Y., July 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic nominee for President, announced today that she favored repeal of the eighteenth amendment. In her statement she took the same position that her husband had taken and is in accord with the Democratic national platform for repeal.

The statement was made as a result of published reports that Mrs. Roosevelt had declined to join the women's organization for national prohibition reform on the ground that she was "a personal dry."

Mrs. Roosevelt conceded that she is a personal dry, but expressed the belief that the eighteenth amendment had not worked successfully.

Denies Dry Law Works.

"I am, and always have been 'a personal dry,'" she said. "I do not believe, however, that the eighteenth amendment has worked at all successfully, and I favor its repeal, permitting the states to pass what laws they deem necessary.

"In the event of this happening I shall always be on the side of those working for real temperance."

The story that Mrs. Roosevelt had declined to sign a membership card in the anti-prohibition group was published in a Poughkeepsie newspaper and was related as an incident of the Roosevelt homecoming party at Hyde Park on July 9. Mrs. Albert J. Aiken of Pawling, chairman of the Dutchess county branch of the organization, said when she approached Mrs. Roosevelt and asked her to join the branch and thereby indorse her husband's wet stand the wife of the governor replied:

"I am extremely sorry that I cannot do so, because I am a dry."

Mrs. Aiken said Mrs. Roosevelt had expressed similar sentiments at a fair a year ago.

Governor Meets Farley.

The first business which the governor took up today on returning to the capital after his trip vacation was a discussion of his presidential campaign plans. James A. Farley, his campaign manager and the new Democratic national chairman, and Louis M. Howe, the governor's personal secretary, were in conference with him most of the afternoon.

A program is being mapped out for a nation-wide organization to handle the governor's campaign. Mr. Farley said the main headquarters would be in New York City, probably at the Biltmore hotel.

Headquarters also may be set up at Chicago and at some large city on the Pacific coast, but no decision was reached on these proposals today. The governor and his campaign managers talked over finances, transportation for his campaign trips and radio hookups and they also discussed the question of who would handle these various activities.

Seeks Traylor for Treasurer.

The governor and his managers would like to have Melvin Traylor, the Chicago banker who was one of the contestants for the presidential nomination at the national convention, as the campaign treasurer, but it is understood that personal business will prevent.

Bernard M. Baruch was an overnight guest of the governor, and the two are said to have talked over campaign finances. Mr. Baruch returned to New York today.

Mr. Farley is in favor of having each state organization handle the national campaign in its own way. Just how extensive a speaking tour the governor will make has not been determined but he undoubtedly will put himself in the hands of the local organizations in the various states that he campaigns in. Extensive use of the radio is certain.

POTSON HUNTED AS PART OWNER OF COLOSIMO'S

A federal warrant, charging violation of the dry law, was issued late yesterday for Michael Potson, part owner of Colosimo's café, 2126 South Wabash avenue, following a hearing before Commissioner Edwin K. Walker in which five employés were held to the grand jury. The café was closed by prohibition agents June 18.

During the hearing Attorney William McKinley, representing one of the employés, asked why the owner had not been brought in. He was told the agents did not know his identity. "Every one knows the owner is Mike Potson; that is, every one but the government," retorted McKinley. "Why bring in the pin feathers and let the bird escape?"

Commissioner Walker explained that unless the five employés named the owner it might be impossible to identify him. Later the employés were questioned by Assistant District Attorney A. W. Bosworth and the warrant followed.

The employés held are Gus Konell, manager; Robert Conley and Antonio Copello, bartenders; William Thomas, a waiter, and John Smith, a porter. Attorney McKinley represented Conley, who had been hired as a bartender only an hour before the café was raided.

Nine Women Choruses

Nine women's choruses of Chicagoland have entered in the women's chorus division of the third Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be held in Chicago on Aug. 20. It is sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and coöperating newspapers and organizations throughout the middle west. The preliminary Chicago contest for women's choruses will be held at 7:30 p. m., Aug. 15, in the Drake hotel ballroom.

The choruses are the Norwegian Grieg Ladies' Singing society, the Cook County Council American Legion Auxiliary Glee club, the Armstrong Woman's Choral club, the Cathryne Bennett ensemble, the Ladies of Isabella Choral club, Cecilian chorus of South Chicago Y. M. C. A., the Ladies' chorus of Lake View Musical society, and the La Porte [Ind.] Women's chorus. The La Porte organization is sponsored by the La Porte Herald-Argus.

Grein Opens Drive Against Inaccurate Penny Scales

City Sealer Grein yesterday started a campaign against inaccurate penny weight scales throughout the city. His first act was to confiscate six scales found to give false weight. "Ten per cent of the 10,000 weighing machines distributed in drug stores, markets, and other places about the city are defective," the sealer said.

UNCLE SAM HAS TAKEN CASE OF DRY LAW RAIDER

Will Defend Him Against "Reckless" Charge.

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., July 19.—[Special.]—The federal courts stepped in today and took from the courts of this community the right to try Prohibition Agent Burke Bourneman of Syracuse on a charge of reckless driving growing out of a raid that stirred up recent disorders here.

United States Judge Bryant at Malone issued an order transferring the case to federal court on the contention that prejudice here might bar a fair hearing.

Threatened mob violence in the so-called Bourneman case had been forestalled earlier in the day by the promise of United States Marshal Larnmouth at Watertown to turn the accused dry agent over to the state authorities next Friday. The charges against Bourneman were based on the injury of two persons by an automobile used in one of a series of dry raids here last week.

Failed to Appear.

He was to have been arraigned last night and when he failed to appear local authorities warned the department of justice that unless he was produced for a hearing he might be "taken by force."

In announcing his decision to surrender custody of the agent today, Marshal Larnmouth explained:

"The sheriff of Jefferson county told me I could have custody of Bourneman for one week. The week does not end until Friday. I intend to surrender him then."

Meanwhile, Justice of the Peace Charles Trickey let it be known that he was considering citing Bourneman for contempt for failure to appear for the hearing.

Resent "Small Town."

The statement of National Prohibition Director Amos W. M. Woodcock, characterizing the disorders here as "small town excitement" or words to that effect, created considerable feeling among townspeople here today.

G. J. Savage, secretary of the chamber of commerce, declared:

"Granted, it is small town excitement, but the response of the entire country is raising up in sympathy and certainly shows that something is wrong with the prohibition service."

Other spokesmen declared that with the exception of a few clergymen sentiment against the highhanded tactics used by the agents in their raids was virtually unanimous.

CAPONE'S BROTHER TO FACE GRAND JURY IN RUM RING PROBE

John Capone, younger brother of Al Capone, will be the first witness today as federal officials seek reindictment of the $100,000,000 Capone beer syndicate. A subpoena was issued yesterday for his appearance before the grand jury after Prosecutor Daniel Anderson had spent a futile hour in questioning him concerning the liquor business of his brothers, Al and Ralph, both of whom are now serving prison terms for income tax evasion.

John Capone made only one admission and later retracted that. He said that Al had told him to stay away from the booze business and to keep his hands clean. John, it is understood, ostensibly worked for a motor company, now defunct, until four years ago, when he went to Florida.

Rocco Fischetti, alias Senna, 19 years old, who was arrested with Capone at Wabash avenue and Congress street, was also ordered to appear before the grand jury.

Police released Capone and Fischetti last night, after they had been paraded at a showup before holdup victims. They were not identified by any of those present.

Widow Collapses at Grave of Mystery Murder Victim

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

In Bohemian National cemetery yesterday a widow who had had advance notice of her mourning sagged limply against her brother at the grave of her husband whose strange fate had been foretold by a fortune teller's cards. Mrs. Vera Carl, the widow, also collapsed during the service at the Marik undertaking rooms, 2544 South Crawford.

At about the time of the burial service in the cemetery Capt. John Ptacek of the Lawndale police station was denying emphatically that any seance or reënactment of the fateful fortune telling had been planned in an effort to decide who killed George Carl, the middle aged grocer, found dead from two bullet wounds Saturday night in his store at 2511 South Crawford avenue.

It had been reported that Mrs. Susie Ballo of 2456 South Lawndale, whose cards foretold Carl's death, would stage a repetition of Mrs. Carl's conference with her and that the three death cards would be plucked out of the deck once more.

"It Wouldn't Help."

"Of course, these people are pretty superstitious about fortune tellers," said Capt. Ptacek, "but such a proceeding wouldn't help solve this mystery and would only make the police department look ridiculous."

Lieut. Julian Bernacci was pursuing the regular police methods of following clews by quizzing John Milosic and Edward Viscika of 3245 South Crawford and Frank and Anton Catla, 3137 South Millard avenue, about their friendship with Mrs. Carl. John Pettek, 45, of 2549 South Avers avenue, a shoemaker known to the Carls, admitted that he had addressed the widow as "Sweetheart" in the presence of her son, Dorn. But he professed to be conscience and care free, declaring he meant it only as a joke. All those questioned were released.

An alibi offered by Ivan Grilec, 4345 West 25th street, brother of Mrs. Carl, was regarded by the Lawndale police as "hardly airtight." Grilec was released after being charged with disorderly conduct—a technicality to hold him—and will be arraigned in Fillmore street court today.

Grief and trouble weighted the atmosphere at the Carl home, but over at Mrs. Ballo's things were humming. The squat, olive skinned Lithuanian mystic, because of the publicity she had received, was so swamped with customers imploring her to shuffle and deal her well thumbed cards for them that she spent all Monday night and all yesterday to mid-afternoon, peering into the future by means of her illustrated deck.

"You're not a single girl," she accused a feminine reporter who sat for a reading in her cramped little kitchen. The definitely unmarried reporter gasped. The seeress turned over another card.

"Your sweetheart is an awfully big man," she stated. This also was disconcertingly inaccurate. "Be careful of a dark haired man who will rob you—maybe on the street. You're going to have lots of luck"—as a card with a big horseshoe was flipped over—"and you're going to travel a great deal.

"You're going to be married to a very rich man, but the other man will try to prevent it. You'll get a letter and meet some company soon;" and so on.

Wherever Mrs. Ballo swerved from the impersonally vague into the individual statement she was as mistaken as the usual card reader or crystal gazer.

A warning ...to housewives who think it's thrifty to use cheap soap

Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley
Distinguished Lecturer on Home Economics

She gives her life to making housewives' work more fun. She is president of the Housewives' League... secretary of the Homemakers Section of the Illinois Home Economics Association... and chairman of the Foods and Markets Committee of the Woman's City Club of Chicago. She keeps open house for America's leading home economists, for she prides herself on being able to expand her table at a moment's notice. And she tells her discoveries to thousands in almost daily lectures and radio talks.

In times like these the housewife must take special care to keep from being hoodwinked. She is constantly faced with what appear to be tempting bargains—but they are not bargains at all!

Take soap, for example. The market is flooded with huge bargain bars... all size and little soap! They are frequently padded with inferior materials. And what is worse... they often contain free lye and other impurities that seem to be cleaning when they really are eating up clothes.

These cheap cakes make what looks like suds but in reality is hardly more than a stingy froth. That's why it takes so much hard rubbing when you use cheap soaps. And when you rub, you dim the colors, wear away the surface and drive the destructive ingredients into the fabric.

A woman buys these bargain bars believing they offer a chance to economize in household expenses. On the contrary. They are the most expensive soaps she can use when you figure the clothes they ruin. And my, how hard they are on the hands!

Pay a few pennies more. Buy Kirk's American Family. It's always safe ...always pure... makes your clothes last so much longer. I've used it for years for all laundering... and cleaning as well. It's as gentle with fine laces, filmy chiffons and downy woolens as it is effective for dishes, glassware and porcelains; for woodwork, linoleums and tiles.

Besides, you'll be amazed how it benefits your hands. It's a real tonic. Makes them soft and satin-smooth. There's nothing like it.

Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley

IT'S CHEAPER TO BUY GOOD SOAP THAN NEW CLOTHES

What are you buying.. Size or Soap?

Don't judge soap by its size alone. Find out how much pure soap the cake contains. It's a fact that cheap bargain bars are lacking in real soap value. They are often loaded with inferior materials... to make the cake look big and alluring.

Cheap materials cut down cleaning ability. So free lye and other harsh ingredients are often added to give the impression that the soap is cleaning when it is simply bleaching and eating up the fabric instead of removing the dirt.

Use Kirk's American Family Soap. It's PURE... contains no abrasives... no free lye... no injurious ingredients of any kind. And it's made especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region. That's why it gives such rich, creamy suds... double the suds... and it's the double-suds that makes the difference!

You'll find American Family used exclusively in 4 out of 5 Gold Coast homes. It has been the standby for more than half a century among Chicago's first families.

But it's not expensive. Think of the clothes it saves. Think of its kindness to your hands. And then remember that the cake is now much bigger, though the quality and the price are the same as before.

REICH THREATENS TO PUT PRUSSIA UNDER DICTATOR

Von Papen Is Aroused by Political Riots.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 19. — Chancellor Franz von Papen's cabinet of aristocrats today ordered the republican ministers of Prussia—Heinrich Hirtsiefer [welfare] and Karl Severing [interior]—to report tomorrow afternoon on what they intend to do to re-establish law and order in Prussia as a result of the riots over the week-end.

If the measures contemplated by the Prussian officials are deemed insufficient by the chancellor he will take "decisive measures," according to a semi-official statement. This is regarded as a threat to replace Prussia's republican cabinet with a dictatorship appointed by Von Papen.

[The cabinet of Dr. Otto Braun resigned after the recent Prussian election, but the leading parties in the diet were unable to form a coalition cabinet and the old one was asked to continue for the time being.]

Mayor May Get Post.

The threat has angered the republicans of Germany. When Von Papen's cabinet, obeying the wishes of Adolf Hitler, National Socialist chieftain, lifted the ban on the uniforms of Nazi army, the Prussian government warned that the appearance of the "brown army" in quarters where the masses were suffering from hunger would lead to clashes.

Against the protest of Prussia and other states the government also lifted the ban an open air demonstrations. Republicans charge that Sunday's clashes at Altona, where 16 persons lost their lives, occurred when 6,000 out of town Hitlerite "storm troops" deliberately provoked the communists by parading through the their district.

Chancellor von Papen today said that most of the political riots took place in Prussia, adding that the police failed to do their duty. The republicans replied that the Hitlerites sought trouble in Prussia in order to force the government to install a dictatorial régime in the state.

Demands Police Powers Removed.

Hans Kerrl, Hitler leader and president of the Prussian diet, sent a message today to Von Papen demanding the removal of the Prussian government's police powers. It is expected that the chancellor will attempt to force a dictatorship on Prussia at tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

Constitutional experts warn that the appointment of a dictatorship is unconstitutional inasmuch as the Prussian government has fulfilled its duties and the police restored order.

The Berliner Tageblatt today said that such an appointment would "be a most severe test of the reich's unity."

The republicans insist that a victory for Von Papen means another step towards an absolute dictatorship for Germany.

CROWN PRINCE VISITS EX-KAISER; COUP PREDICTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, July 19.—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm today made a flying visit to Doorn to confer with the former Kaiser Wilhelm concerning an expected coup d'état in Germany after the reichstag elections on Sunday, July 31, the Amsterdam newspaper Volk said.

The newspaper said that if Adolf Hitler's National Socialists do not win a majority in the reichstag 500,000 Nazi "storm troops" and the reichswehr will occupy all public buildings and arrest all Socialist and communist leaders. The newspaper alleges that Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, minister of defense, will coöperate.

A new government, the article said, will be formed, with the former crown prince as leader, while the exiled kaiser will be brought from Holland to Germany by a German warship and the house of Hohenzollern will be restored. Hitler, the article goes on, will lead the Nazis, but will not participate in the government.

WILD SHOT HITS HIGH SCHOOL BOY IN BANDIT CHASE

Andrew Sampracos, 16 years old, 5438 West Harrison street, a senior student at Austin High school, received a flesh wound in the left shoulder last night when he was struck by a wild bullet fired by a police squad chasing bandit suspects. One of the suspects, captured a short time later on a street car, gave his name as Michael Fiore, 18 years old, 103 North Parkside avenue.

The chase started when a Fillmore police squad, under Sergt. Murray Rover, tried to question two boys in an automobile at Kenneth avenue and Harrison street. The boys speeded away. At Harrison street and Tripp avenue two bullets struck an automobile driven by Sampracos, one inflicting a minor wound in the shoulder. Fiore was captured when he leaped from the speeding automobile and tried to board a street car. A short time later the automobile was found abandoned.

INSURANCE CASH LOSSES TOLD AT TRIAL OF BAINS

Fisher Is Blamed in $40,000 Trust.

W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law of John Bain and cashier of one of Bain's banks, was blamed yesterday for the dissipation of $40,000 insurance money belonging to two women. Testimony concerning the $40,000 was given by Robert Esplin, 6616 South Marshfield avenue, a photo engraver, and his wife, Annie, at the trial of Fisher, Bain, and two of Bain's sons, who are charged as a result of the failure of the twelve banks.

N. MERLE FISHER.

"Early in 1931 my brother-in-law was killed in Missouri and left $40,000 insurance to my wife and her mother," Esplin told Judge John M. O'Connor, who is presiding at the trial without a jury. "Fisher called me from the West Englewood bank and urged me to use the cash to establish a trust fund.

"I went to the bank and there met George Bly, a friend employed by the bank. 'He told me not to buy Bain bonds but to buy mortgages instead. Fisher said, 'Bly is nothing but a messenger boy: don't take his advice.' I turned over the money for the trust fund."

"I had a conversation with John Bain about the insurance money," said Mrs. Esplin. "He told me the securities put into the trust were as good as government bonds. I had a world of faith in John Bain."

Attorney Edwin J. Raber, in charge of the prosecution, said the securities purchased with the $40,000 are worth about $1,000 today.

This one transaction is part of the testimony Raber said he would present to show that the Bains sold $30,000,000 of worthless or nearly worthless stock and bonds to the public before the twelve banks were closed June 9, 1931. Other testimony yesterday had to do with values of Bain assets to support the state's contention the banks were insolvent long before closed.

BLAMES BEMIS' TROUBLES ON TOO MANY CHILDREN

Judge Urges Wife to Take a Health Trip.

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday suggested that Mrs. Gertrude Bemis go to California with her mother to recover her health and ordered her husband, Walter J. Bemis, consulting engineer, to pay her $15 a week temporary alimony pending the settlement of her separate maintenance suit. The judge ruled that the custody of their five children should remain with him and placed them temporarily in the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Annie Bemis, a former county commissioner, at 5447 North Clark street.

The judge's decision came after a two day hearing, during which Mrs. Bemis accused her husband and his secretary, Miss Elsie Zimmerman, 5200 Harper avenue, with misconduct. Bemis denied the charge. He asserted that his wife frequently had threatened to commit suicide and to kill her children. He offered 25 letters written by his wife over a five year period to substantiate his charge.

Too Many Children.

"It is evident to me after hearing this case," said Judge Trude in giving his opinion, "that too many children have been born to this couple. The mother rebelled at motherhood. The job was too much for her.

"Take any of these letters. This one says: 'Four children and housework are too much. No compensation and no fun. I'm not trained, so I can't get a job.' And here is another: 'By the . . . time I have had the children on my hands all day, washed dishes, settled fights between them, picked up a thousand articles of clothing, and cooked meals I have lived 100 years in 24 hours. And they have been 100 years of hell.'

"Undoubtedly she has felt at times as if she could not go on. All the children are active, with four boys ranging in age from 6 to 14 years, and a daughter 5 years old, there can be little peace for the mother. What she needs now is quiet. She is not to take any of the children with her. Later if she wishes the eldest boy may visit her."

Secretary on Stand.

During the afternoon hearing Bemis testified that his income for last year amounted to $1,800 after deducting expenses. His net income for 1932, he said, probably will be smaller. Miss Zimmerman, called to the witness stand, denied having any improper affair with Bemis. Judge Trude stated that he would ignore the charges of misconduct.

Mrs. Bemis appeared on crutches. She still is convalescing from the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning incurred several weeks ago. She was saved from death after being found unconscious in the garage at the rear of their Wilmette home. Firemen administered oxygen to her for 63 hours.

Mayor Cermak's Health and Appetite Improving

Mayor Cermak's health and his appetite are improving simultaneously, his physician and son-in-law, Dr. Frank Jirka, said yesterday. The physician did not go to the mayor's home at Antioch yesterday to visit his patient, who is convalescing, but communicated by telephone and was informed that Mr. Cermak was demanding an addition to his diet—bran muffins. Dr. Jirka allowed him that indulgence. The mayor spent most of the day resting quietly.

CHINA TO FIGHT NEW INVASION BY JAPANESE ARMY

Conflict Looms; Troops Are Massed.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 20 (Wednesday).—The Chinese government today announced it intended to use all methods of resistance, including armed force and a boycott of Japanese goods, in the event that the Japanese invade the province of Jehol or the province of the Tientsin-Pieping district in north China.

GEN. SHIGERU HONJO.

A report issued by the official Kuo Min [Chinese] agency last night said that Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, "after months of intrigue in Jehol as well as inner Mongolia, now has a pretext for further military conquest in the disappearance of the Japanese liaison officer, Col. Gomsiro Ishimoto, who was sent from Chinchow into southern Jehol, where he held a secret meeting in the town of Chaoyang with a representative of Tang Yuling, governor of Jehol."

Japanese Mass Troops.

The Chinese report said that Japanese units are mobilizing with Manchoukuo troops on the border of eastern Jehol and that an armored train has been sent into southern Jehol.

(Dispatches from Tokio yesterday said that Japanese troops had invaded Jehol province and had clashed with Chinese military forces. The message added that the Chinese were driven back.)

Japanese reports claim that Col. Ishimoto was murdered and that another staff officer, Col. Seisuke Matsui, who was sent into northern Jehol last February to negotiate with the Mongol princes, was also murdered.

The Japanese further claim that Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian war lord, in coöperation with the Chinese government has financed and equipped 30,000 volunteers, who are now harassing the Japanese along the southern and eastern Jehol borders.

350 Japanese Marines Land.

The Japanese landed 350 marines at Shanghai yesterday. They recently strengthened their garrison at Tientsin and Shanhaikwan with a fresh division from Osaka.

The league of nations' inquiry commission reached Tsingtao yesterday afternoon and immediately proceeded to Peiping. Lord Lytton, chairman of the commission, who is ill, left in Marshal Chang's private airplane for Peiping, where he will enter the Rockefeller hospital. He has an intestinal chill and is running a slight fever.

7 SHIRT SLEEVE GUNMEN STAGE OFFICE HOLDUP

Seven men armed with revolvers and shotguns held up two women cashiers yesterday in the office of Arnold Brothers, wholesale meat dealers, 660 West Randolph street, and escaped with $2,500. Adolph Ewers, secretary of the company, said that a $5,500 pay roll had been distributed just before the robbers arrived. In their shirt sleeves and with their guns leveled, the seven appeared simultaneously at the two doors of the office. Three of them advanced with shotguns on Miss Jane Spain, 21 years old, 627 North Austin boulevard, and Miss Blanche Byrier, 23, of 900 Rush street. The leader grabbed the money and they ran out and disappeared.

CARLSTROM WILL APPEAL FREEING OF SAMMONS

Attorney General Carlstrom announced yesterday that he would go before the Supreme court and ask a mandamus compelling Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of McHenry county to expunge the court record by which James [Fur] Sammons, convicted killer, was released from the Joliet penitentiary.

Sammons was freed Saturday by Judge Shurtleff and was not rearrested on a process calling for his extradition to Maryland on a robbery charge.

Mr. Carlstrom said the Supreme court would be asked to determine whether the freeing of the murderer was in accord with the Supreme court's ruling of last year.

The attorney general said he would attack the reasoning of Judge Shurtleff, whose term in Lake, McHenry, Winnebago and Boone counties expires next year. The question of why Judge Shurtleff acted in behalf of a convict sentenced in Cook county probably will not be raised, Mr. Carlstrom said.

MOVE OVER, SISTERS.

Gangway, sisters, and move over. Your once rich, once proud, possibly purse proud, relatives want a place on the bench. They are now flat and need shoes. Illinois, Pennsylvania and California are reported first in line for the federal aid available in emergency loans. California with all its experience ought to get the first dole and probably will. The other states will waste some time finding their way about and when they get to the pay window California will be on its way out with $220,000,000.

After Illinois and Pennsylvania will come New York and Massachusetts, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin, once prosperous and paying their own way, now reduced to the bread line with the beggar states which have been living on federal subsidies for years. The almshouse states have brought the country down to the almshouse level. The procession going over the hill will include them all.

So move over, Idaho, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Mississippi, Georgia, and you other subsidized sisters. You've got company. Make room for North Carolina and Virginia. New Mexico, which paid $700,000 in federal taxes last year and drew out $4,600,000 in federal aid, must give a little room to New York, which paid $671,000,000 and had $9,000,000 returned in benefits. Illinois, which paid $190,500,000 in internal revenue and had $8,000,000 put back in federal benefits, must ask Wyoming, which took out $3,400,000 and paid $600,000, to draw in her elbows a little and try not to require so much space. We're all in the same spot now, sister. It's been proved again that the nation cannot exist half one thing, half another. It can't be a Union of competent and of beggar states.

The paying states are chagrined, but they cannot save face. They have been reduced to want and they must take to the street to get their subsistence. The processes of government insisted upon by the mendicants and the expert go-getters, by the wild and the woolly, the chiselers and sharpers have rolled on to their expectable results.

The American republic is now a Union of insolvent, not sovereign, states, dependent upon the federal government, which has taken over their resources and responsibilities, for both direction and subsistence. And make no mistake about it. The states now forced into the federal bread line are there without alternative. They did not create the situation, but they must accept it. They cannot support this federal government and themselves as well. They must go for their relief where they have sent their money. A larger part of what they have been compelled to forward to Washington must be sent back to relieve their distress.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE AND PERSONNEL.

In a study of the French correctional courts, contributed to the Journal of Law and Criminology, an American consul formerly at Paris, Mr. Damon C. Woods, says that "the rapidity and certainty of penal justice in France, in the correctional as well as the criminal courts, result in large measure from the admirable simplicity, logic, and directness of the judicial procedure. The procedure itself, however, would lose fiber and fall prey to narrow and tortuous argumentation, with resultant technicalities and delays, were it not for the character of mind and temper of the magistrates who enforce it."

Judges, he goes on to remark, of all the courts in France above that of justice of the peace, are irremovable, and the latter can be revoked only for cause, after an investigation and hearing. Above this grade the judges may be disciplined by the Court of Cassation sitting as a superior council of the magistrature.

The largest salary paid to a judicial official in France is 150,000 francs, or about $5,877, received by the president of the Court of Cassation and by the procureur general of that court. Nevertheless, says Consul Woods, the magistracy in France continues to attract the highest order of legal talent and personal integrity. This attractive force is due to the secure tenure, separation from politics, independence of action and honorable place in public esteem of the magisterial office.

Our courts and procedure have their own merits and are an expression of America with its faults and virtues as those of France are of its own historic character, so there is no thought of an impossible as well as undesirable substitution of one system for another. But there are common objectives and also some fundamental principles in judicial practice which Mr. Woods' comment underlines. Perhaps we tend to underestimate the fact that procedure, after all, depends upon "the character of mind and temper of the magistrates who enforce it." Certainly we underestimate the importance of security of tenure, separation from politics, and independence of action not only in purifying and protecting judicial action but in "attracting the highest order of legal talent and personal integrity" in the judicial career.

Although there is much earnest and skillful effort by the best elements of the legal profession to improve judicial organization and procedure, it seems to us that the problem of judicial personnel, of improving our methods of selection, of reducing if not eliminating politics, and of better protecting judicial independence has been given less attention than it deserves. In our opinion, it is far more important than any improvement in procedure.

GOVERNMENT COMPETITION WITH PRIVATE ENTERPRISE.

One of the few things to be chalked up to the credit of the late congress was the appointment of a special committee of the house to investigate government competition with private enterprise. The committee, whose chairman is Representative Joseph B. Shannon of Missouri, has been at work for several weeks, but so many complaints have poured in upon the committee that authority to proceed during the summer and fall was granted. In order to cover the field as fully as practicable hearings will be held throughout the country, beginning with one at Kansas City, now in session, where complainants within a radius of 500 miles may present their protests.

The result of this investigation should be of greatest moment to the nation. The public knows of the most conspicuous instances of government intervention in private enterprise, but the extent and variety of this competition is not realized. When it is exposed it will reveal to the American people how far we have departed from the principles we have supposed established, how far we have traveled into state socialism. The revelation will be illuminating and we hope and believe it will bring the American people to the defense of their heritage of liberty and an end of the drift of years into centralization and bureaucratic rule. This drift has been gradual and it has taken place under a variety of plausible urges which did not take account of general consequences.

But these consequences must be faced before it is too late, and it will soon be too late. We must choose whether we are to have a socialist system or recover the American system. We have more to do than arrest the process which has carried us so far; we must undo its work.

The crisis brought about by destructive taxation has brought this issue home to many citizens who were indifferent to it in good times and willing to accept uncritically appeals for any extension of government. The demand for tax relief is rapidly becoming the paramount force in the country, in national, state, and local politics. It necessarily involves the deflation of government powers and activities. It involves the issue of free government versus state socialism, and the fight against ruinous taxation cannot be won without winning back our freedom from governmental, bureaucratic, and political domination of the American people.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

A practice has sprung up among newsboys which ought to be discouraged by motorists and prevented as far as possible by the police. Where traffic is slowed down in bottle necks and elsewhere the boys go into the streets among the cars to sell to the people in the cars. This is dangerous to the boys, who are at an age when risks are readily taken, and it is a nuisance to drivers who have to meet this unnecessary hazard. The boys have no business in the current of traffic, although the temptation to sell a few more papers to transient buyers is a strong one. They should be protected from it both by police regulation and by motorists who should coöperate to discourage it by not taking advantage of it.

ECONOMICS AND PRICE OF HOGS.

[Quincy, Ill., Herald-Whig.]

The cheer that goes up because of the increase in the price of hogs is the one song of joy that is being heard throughout the corn belt. It is the encouraging factor that gives hope for the substantial improvement of conditions in the great farming areas of the middle west. Throughout this section of the country the increase in the price of hogs has added substantially to the incomes of the farmers, because there still are hogs in quantity for the present market. If the price remains firm there will be a different story for many of the farmers to tell within a few months.

The big lesson that comes from the stimulation in agricultural sections through the increase in hog prices indicates clearly that effective and permanent business recovery will come only through economic forces. Politics has its effect on business, but there is no permanent help for any branch of business through the medium of political effort alone. Prosperity cannot be legislated into the entire populace. The way of success comes ultimately through economic laws and not by mere legislative action.

The dangerous theory that comes from every depression is that the government instead of the individual and his group has the power to restore prosperity. The ready answer of every person who feels the pinch severely is that the government should help him out. Usually, however, the government in helping one group must take the means of help from another. Public works may give temporary employment to a few, but the money must come from increased taxation. Unneeded public works can serve only to sink the nation deeper into debt. Having the government lend money directly to individuals in need may sound helpful, but the idea of having the United States government in a huge small loan business is beyond comprehension. The government, in aiding banks, loan associations, and other established financial agencies and in liberalizing credits and forcing these agencies then to liberalize credits to individuals, can do immeasurably more than by establishing small loan businesses through political organizations.

The big lesson to learn is that, while sound legislation is helpful, laws will not bring prosperity, and that, while good government is essential, the individual and not politics must point the way to better times.

When the price of hogs goes up there is more real joy in the corn belt than when a new law is passed. The humble hog may show us the way to prosperity in the middle west, and, what is more, he may teach us something that we have to relearn about the economics of business recovery.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

OH, MR. SNELL—HERE'S YOUR NOTIFICATION SPEECH.

My Dear Mr. Hoover: A happy surprise is one of the joys of this somewhat dull routine of existence. A surprise, especially if it be one that gives the recipient happiness, is appreciated by one and all, in all times and in all ages. So today, Mr. President, we have brought you a happy surprise. A large number of your friends got together a short time ago in Chicago and decided on a gift to you which they wished to keep secret until this moment in order that the surprise would make the gift even more valuable. We want you to accept our little surprise present, Mr. President, and value it, not because of its intrinsic worth but because of its associations.

While we have planned this little gift as a surprise, we do not wish it to be a shock. I see by the puzzled look on your face that you are wondering what in the world we are giving you. Probably you have guessed that the gift is a fine pedigreed dog. No, Mr. President, if we had decided to give you a dog we would have had to buy you a fish hound, because you are so fond of fishing, but a good fish hound is hard to secure, so we didn't get that for your present. Ah, now I see you think we have bought you a lovely gold headed cane or a silver water pitcher. Or a beautiful cut glass pickle dish or a little canary bird singing in a beautiful cage. No, Mr. Hoover, we have not brought you any of these things. Nor a beautiful pigskin traveling case, nor a fur overcoat, nor a swell suit of clothes.

No, indeed, we decided that you would like best something you would keep a long time, and this little present will last you four years. In short, Mr. President, so as not to keep you guessing any longer, we have selected as a suitable gift for you the renomination for your office as President tendered to you by the grand old Republican party. And here it is. (Mr. Snell presents his gift while friends rush up and fan Mr. Hoover and give him smelling salts and copious drnks of ice water until he recovers from his surprise.)

THE WAY BACK HOME.

Out from the noisy town it leads,
Where malice and deceit are rife;
Where men contend in heartless strife.
No voice disturbs the quietness
Which thrills me as again I roam
By flowery fields, a boy again,
And seek the way that leads back home.

The robin choir glad welcome gives,
Clear calling in their lofts of green;
The melody of singing brooks
Is mingled with the summer sheen.
By quiet vales my way leads on,
Through aisles of emerald and chrome,
Foretelling joys soon to be mine—
For 'tis the way that leads back home.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

A NEW KING OF THE GYPSIES has been elected in America and he starts his reign by declaring to his loyal subjects that he wants them to learn trades and professions instead of telling fortunes. We hope the gypsies don't do it. We've got millions of bright minds learning the trades and professions, but what we need is more gypsies to run through a pack of greasy cards and say we're soon to come into a great fortune and take a trip around the world and have strawberry shortcake for supper all the rest of our lives. Oh, we distinctly need fewer people rushing into the trades and professions and more gypsies telling us how rich we're going to be.

WE HAD QUITE FORGOTTEN about the illustrious gentleman once known as Ivan the Terrible until an item appeared in the papers yesterday saying that workmen in Russia had dug up a box full of coins struck off in Ivan's reign. And they called him Ivan the Terrible, but the world has changed. If Ivan the Terrible was alive today the Reds would either have him chopping down trees in Siberia or he would have on all his medals and gold braid and be serving as a doorman in front of a New York speakeasy. Gentlemen who are regarded as terrible by one generation are given the Bronx cheer by a later one.

"What," Whatted Shakespeare, "Is in a Name?"

Sir: Glancing up from a newspaper I'd just been reading I proffered the information that the name Roosevelt was a Dutch word meaning a bed of roses. To which Frau Elsa cracked: "Vell, vatever der next President's name is, he von't have it no bed of roses."

JAZBO OF OLD DUBUQUE.

THE TWO BILLION DOLLAR RELIEF BILL has been passed. Maybe it was signed yesterday at the White House, but we didn't stay around the office late enough to find out. Anyhow, we don't expect to get any of it; there are too many standing in line in front of us. And since beer seems farther off than ever since the Democrats demanded the immediate repeal of the eighteenth amendment maybe it will be some time before Washington cuts that two billion dollar melon and hands slices around to one and all.

PRAYER FOR THESE DAYS.

Look down upon Thy sons, O Lord of Hosts,
Look down and give them work to do again!
These days are strong corrosives that eat out
The hope and courage from the hearts of men.

Look down upon Thy sons, O Lord of Hosts;
Return to them the only thing they ask—
The privilege of human hands to toil,

ADELAIDE LOVE.

AL CAPONE is said to be negotiating for a big ranch out west where he is going to live after his long visit in Atlanta as a guest of the government. And they used to call it the wild west! How tame and insipid and childish the old tales of the west will seem after Mr. Capone moves in.

BEWARE OF TOO MUCH SALT.

A GENTLEMAN relates this experience: When he was a child he had enuresis. It continued long beyond the time when other children succeed in breaking the habit. This was one case in which a strong desire to be freed was not enough to break off the old and establish a new habit.

When the prepubertal age of rapid growth was reached the boy developed an albuminuria. This continued for several years, occasioned his family great uneasiness, and resulted in treatment at the hands of many physicians. At first it was thought the trouble was one of the forms of Bright's disease, but finally it was decided that it was an albuminuria of the type called adolescent, and sometimes orthostatic. When this diagnosis was first arrived at the trend of opinion was that it was a rather serious disease, not so much because of immediate danger but because statistics showed that a considerable proportion of those who had it eventually succumbed to the better known types of Bright's.

In the course of his wanderings among medical men this gentleman came under the care of a physician who had had some experience in treating similar cases by diet. He was put in a hospital, and as soon as he had become adjusted a salt-free diet was given him. In a fairly short time he was free from symptoms, and after that his diet was not quite so rigorous.

That was ten or more years ago, and during the interval he has been free from all symptoms in any way related to his original trouble. He works long hours at a job that keeps his attention tense. When occasion offers he plays golf and indulges in other athletic sports.

The impression he gives is one of vigor, strength, and good health, although he may be a trifle on edge. He lives exclusively on a low salt diet, and, in fact, has lost all taste for foods to which salt has been added as a condiment. His butter is unsalted, and when he indulges in melon he makes no use of the salt cellar. He eats no salted fish, ham, bacon, corned beef, nor any other salted meats. The cook has instructions not to salt his vegetables, and on his salads salt-free dressings are used. He eats unsalted breads, crackers, and eggs. However, no effort is made to rid meats and vegetables of the salt that they naturally contain. Since he has acquired new tastes he has no desire for the salt substitutes now available.

IT'S NOT THE ICE CREAM.

D. R. writes:

1. Has ice cream any bad effects on a person?

2. Why is it that every time I eat ice cream I get a terrible burning feeling in my stomach and I feel kind of sick for half an hour?

REPLY.

1. It should not have.

2. Probably the trouble is with you rather than with the cream. Why not change your diet? If the symptom persists it proves that the fault is with you. If so, have a physician see what it is.

USUALLY IMPORTANT.

Mrs. J. G. writes: Please tell us something about alkaline urine. A woman has a husband with this trouble, and the doctor tells him there is nothing to be done about it. Another has the same condition some of the time and the doctor told him it was very bad and gave him a lot of medicine. Another doctor says it causes no trouble and does no harm.

Tell us which is more normal, or to be desired—an acid, a neutral, or an alkaline urine. Naturally, we thought a neutral or an alkaline condition was to be desired, as there has been so much written about acidosis.

REPLY.

As a rule, meat eating animals have acid urine; grass eaters, alkaline. Man, being in between, has urine that is sometimes one way and sometimes the other. As a rule, the reaction of the urine is a matter of no special importance, though a mild acidity is more nearly the average. There are exceptions to this rule. Infection with certain bacteria causes ammoniacal alkaline urine. There is a nervous condition in which there is phosphaturia and an alkaline urine of another kind. In certain disorders it is advisable to try to keep the urine acid; in others, to keep it alkaline.

RAPID HEART.

J. L. A. writes: What is the cause and cure of rapid heart?

REPLY.

Among the causes are organic heart disease, disease of the heart nerves, fear, anxiety, goiter, excessive use of tobacco.

AFTER EFFECTS OF MUMPS.

G. M. L. writes: Your discussion of mumps fails to mention encephalitis, one of the more serious complications of the disease. My nine year old son had a severe attack of this complaint last year following mumps, a combination which I have never previously heard of. It is my understanding that similar cases are not infrequent and that they were more numerous than usual in 1931.

Will you say something about the cause, cure, and after effects of this complication?

REPLY.

Encephalitis is known to follow mumps in rare instances. The reported cases are few in number. Some cases of this disease have been reported as developing in the course of measles and nearly every other contagious disease. It is supposed to be due to a virus which infects the base of the brain. In some cases death results. More frequently there is recovery, but convalescence is prolonged.

Among after effects which sometimes result are changed personality, palsy, and drooling.

ARTHRITIS.

Mrs. S. writes: What causes arthritis? Should I abstain from grapefruit, strawberries, tomatoes, or anything acid?

REPLY.

There are several kinds of arthritis, and different causes as well. If one is sensitive to a fruit and eating it causes nettlerash with swelling of the joints, it is better to refrain.

I know of no other form of joint trouble that is made worse by eating the fruits and vegetables named.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 20, 1916.

LONDON.—British troops have recaptured the village of Longueval and Delville wood, most of the ground taken by the Germans Tuesday night, according to the British official communication. Hard fighting is still in progress in this sector and along the two miles from Bazentin to Longueval the fury of the battle is unabated. Both sides are sustaining heavy losses.

PETROGRAD.—For the first time since the Russian retreat from the Carpathians more than a year ago, Russian forces are again hammering the Carpathian mountain passes which lead into Hungary. On a sixty mile front extending from Jablonitza pass in a southeasterly direction to Kirlababa, Russian and Austrian detachments are in constant clash. The main Russian line is rapidly drawing near the mountain barrier.

ROME.—A new advance for the Italians in the upper Posina valley, where they succeeded in capturing positions on Corno del Coston, was announced by the war office. A strong attack by the Austrians on the Italian lines in the Pasubio sector was repulsed.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Nearly 150 officers and men of the First and Second regiments Illinois militia, after a second medical examination today, were declared unfit physically for military service. The men will be discharged and sent home. Among them was Lieut. Robert C. Martin of the field staff of the Second regiment.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A denial of practically all allegations about the poor condition of the National Guardsmen along the Mexican border and their reported sufferings is expected in the detailed report from Maj. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, assistant chief of staff, part of which was mailed tonight from Texas.

BALTIMORE, Md.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland at 11 o'clock tonight was all ready to make its dash on its homeward trip. Coincidental with its preparation for departure a gale off the Virginia coast scattered for the first time in days most of the foreign warships which have been lying in wait for the Deutschland.

CHICAGO.—Five deaths, including one by lightning in a thunderstorm, and many prostrations were reported as the toll of the hottest day so far this year. The thermometer in the federal building tower registered 90 degrees. Many cities in the country suffered from the hot wave. In Boston the mercury reached 90, in Buffalo, 92; in Dubuque, Ia., El Paso, Tex., Green Bay, Wis., 96; in Peoria, Ill., 98, and in St. Louis, 94.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—The nomination of J. Frank Hanly of Indiana as candidate of the Prohibition party for President was confidently predicted by his friends in the national convention here following the unanimous reëlection of Virgil G. Hinshaw of Chicago to the chairmanship of the national committee.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Herman Schlesinger, professor of chemistry.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

How do we know that the northern part of our continent was once covered with ice?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

What is the nature and significance of fossils?

REPLY.

Traces of the life of the past are known as fossils, whether they are the actual remains of organisms or merely indications of their former existence. The greater proportion of ancient life has left no record, yet many organisms have been preserved by burial in sediments of rivers, lakes, and oceans. Their record reveals the successions of animals and plants of the past, the changes they have undergone, and their relationship to and culmination in modern life.

Fossils also are used in dating geologic events and in the discovery of natural resources. For instance, in drilling for petroleum microscopic fossils known as foraminifera may be found in the well cuttings. Since certain foraminifera are confined to certain rock layers, they may indicate to the expert either that the drill stopped short of the productive layer and thus should be carried deeper, or that the well actually reached the oil zone, but found it locally barren.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, July 12.—[Friend of the People.]—1. If a child is born in England, the father being a citizen of England and the mother a United States citizen, is said child a United States citizen? 2. Does a woman citizen lose her citizenship, under the present law, by marrying a foreigner, providing said foreigner is now living in the United States? 3. Are all children born on United States soil considered United States citizens, even if they are of alien parents (parents now living here)? 4. Does this include Japanese and Chinese? I. J. C.

1. Section 1993 of the revised statutes of the United States provides as follows: "All children heretofore born or hereafter born out of the limits and jurisdiction of the United States, whose fathers were or may be at the time of their birth citizens thereof, are declared to be citizens of the United States; but the rights of citizenship shall not descend to children whose fathers never resided in the United States."

2. A woman citizen of the United States did not lose her citizenship by marrying an alien on or after Sept. 22, 1922.

3. Yes.

RECEIVERSHIPS.

Chicago, July 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How long after the assets of a concern are sold can a receiver hold the money before distributing to creditors? One of our accounts was sold in November, 1930, and we have not yet received our share of the proceeds due us. We wrote the receiver and he advises that he will soon take care of this. J. A. S.

We would not undertake to name a maximum limit. We see no excuse for the delay that you mention. We suggest that you report your facts to the judge who appointed the receiver.

ACADEMIC FREEDOM.

Chicago, July 18.—Your editorial today on academic freedom is so sound that I desire to express my approval of its tenets. Its timeliness is striking, for the thought that academic freedom of utterance should not imply irresponsibility as to consequences occurred to me as I listened last Tuesday evening to the speakers at a meeting of the League for Independent Political Action at the University of Chicago. Two of them are eminent and influential members of the faculty of the university and one is an instructor in Crane Technical college of this city. They all spoke feelingly of social injustice and political evils, and by sheer emotionalism aroused warm response from their young audience, most of whom are students. They proposed reforms in very sketchy generalizations and without any balancing of considerations weighing against the means or the objects proposed. It was noticeable that not one of the speakers addressed himself or herself directly to the audience and not once looked any member of it squarely in the eye. Each appeared to be fascinated with a beatific vision just over and beyond the heads of the listeners in the back row and gave the impression of delivering himself or herself of a message received from some higher inspired source.

My point is that, of course, they should have the freedom to utter any criticism of the social order that occurs to them, but more important than that freedom is their responsibility to their students not to propose means or ends that will not work in the outside world. They should at all times be aware that the outside world is not an academic laboratory where experiments can be conducted harmlessly at will and unfavorable results discarded. It seems to me that in fitting its student body to take their places in the world at large the university owes them the duty of impressing upon them at all times the need of considering all proposals for change in the light of their immediate as well as ultimate practicality. THE PRICE OF TAX WARRANTS.

Chicago, July 7.—May I call your attention to the letter signed West Park Employé which appeared in the Voice of the People column of THE TRIBUNE this morning? Apparently your correspondent has been dealing with other than reputable brokers if he has only been getting 50 cents on the dollar for west park corporate warrants for 1931. Our firm will pay 60 cents on the dollar today for such warrants in the amount of $100 or more, and 58 cents for smaller amounts.

West park warrants have been quoted at those figures or better for the last several months by responsible brokers who are specializing in the purchase and sale of such securities. We have been informed that individuals have been making the rounds of the west park employés and soliciting the sale of their warrants at prices below the general market. If the employés who find it necessary to dispose of their warrants will telephone or call at the office of any of the tax warrant brokers I am sure that they will be quoted prices at or near those which appear in the quotations published in your columns daily.

OWEN VAN CAMP.

TESLA'S BIRTHPLACE.

Chicago, July 14.—As a constant reader of your great paper I noticed in this morning's Voice of the People column where our friend Mr. Palandech is placing Mr. Tesla's nationality as Serbian. I wish to state that the great inventor and engineer came from Croatian stock called "Litchani." He was born in Lika, Croatia—therefore Croatian.

Croatia as well as Serbia is a part of Jugoslavia; their language is practically the same, yet their traditions differ, as well as their literature.

Just because Croatia was downridden by Austria-Hungary for centuries is no reason that as such it could not produce a great man of Mr. Nikola Tesla's type. JAMES PAVLETICH.

FOR A THIRD PARTY.

Chicago, July 7.—We have sat through the Republican convention, exciting only for one night—when they voted to adopt the majority report, for a straddle on prohibition, or the minority report, for repeal.

The majority report was the one that won and we sank back into lethargy for one week. Then came the Democratic convention—and fireworks—until the last night, when, I am sure, the great majority of the people—of Chicago anyway and I think of the whole country—felt sold out.

The platform they adopted was excellent, but why did we have to witness Mr. Roosevelt's winning votes by obvious exchange for positions in Washington if he is elected?

In this year of all years we hoped earnestly for a leader who would be elected by common consent because of his real ability to lead the country out of the depths to which we have fallen. Instead we witness politics in all the unpleasantness the word has come to mean.

Now the time is ripe for a real third party, a party of people who put the good of their country ahead of themselves or their political connections.

We want repeal—there can be no question of that. We cheered ourselves hoarse when that magic word was written into the Democratic platform. Yet what happens?

Mr. Garner, running for Vice President and pledged to carry out his party's stated promise of immediate relief from the Volstead act, will do nothing about it, will not allow a bill to that effect to come up in congress.

Who then are we to believe in, to trust? Apparently none of the men in power at present. Then we should have a third party. But we will not now. There do not seem to be enough young men to act, and the older ones are too sluggish to make the move.

One good thing has come out of the depression and the ridiculous 18th amendment. People all over the country, all kinds, all ages, are taking an interest in the way our government is run to an e ent that has never been seen before. So that in four years' time we hope that there will be enough enthusiastic, honest, and fearless people to demand that the best man be nominated for President, if they have to form a third party to find such a man. MARJORIE LETTS.

HOME WORK.

Chicago, July 6.—Your editorial this morning, "Kentucky Returns to Its Home Work," commenting upon a shooting in the mountains of that state over the week-end, was indeed enlightening, and apparently was intended to convey the impression that the Kentucky statesmen who attended the Democratic national convention here last week celebrated their homecoming by going out and decimating the few Republicans left south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Evidently you failed to check over the headlines in the Chicago papers Monday morning, a few of which follow: "Officer Duels Five Bandits; Kills Two"; "Kills Wife for Taunting Him"; "Torture Bandit's Victim Dies"; "Jail Four Robbers Who Beat Family"; "Guns Kill 213 in Chicago in First Six Months of 1932." These are only a few of the many that are duplicated nearly every day in Chicago. HUGH S. TABB.

A GOOD JOB OF FRAMING.

Chicago, July 11.—Every now and then I get peeved at your paper, but when you print a cartoon such as the one appearing in today's TRIBUNE, "A Good Job of Framing," it is then I realize your true worth to our country and I am willing to call you brother from the bottom of my heart. You have a great responsibility and I want to remember you and your fellow editors in my daily prayers so that God will give you the courage to place momentous issues before the people in their true light at all times. More power to your work.

DISPUTE OVER BIG GUNS DEADLOCKS PARLEY ON ARMS

Americans Hold Out for Total Abolition.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, July 19.—The hours of the world disarmament conference are actually numbered now. The four powers, which have struggled for six months to keep it alive, moved swiftly today to end its agony.

The Americans, Italians, French and British agreed on all but one point in the adjournment resolution, the Americans holding out for a total abolition of heavy mobile land guns. The struggle will be renewed tomorrow and the conference may be interred on Friday or Saturday.

Agree on Three Points.

These four powers agreed on three points today—reduction of military effectives, abolition of aerial bombardment, and budgetary limitation. Only the big guns remain. Few believe they will be prohibited any more than anything else, but that the ban will just be tucked away in the resolution.

The word "real" proved of great value in settling the whole matter of reduction of military effectives. It was decided that the conference should "agree on the principle of strict limitation and real reduction of military effectives."

The French, who had been holding out, were pleased. They consider the word "real" gets at—when the time comes, if ever—the Fascist militia, Boy Scouts, and Germany's "unofficial" armies.

Air Bombing Barred.

The next addition to the document under the conclusions is that "the principle of the prohibition of aerial bombardment is accepted."

Then there is a subtle transition to rules for restricted use in time of war by which it follows that aerial bombardment is to be forbidden except when permitted. The idea of total abolition was not acceptable to the the British and French.

The third point—budgetary restriction as a means of limiting armaments—was left to the budgetary commission to continue to haggle over during the conference's vacation.

The French general staff is still standing firm on heavy mobile land guns. Their delegation argues the impossibility of limiting the army's guns and not the navy's, which they insist can be transported for use ashore by an aggressor nation. The Americans say they cannot be successfully transferred.

Urge Smaller Naval Guns.

But just to make sure the French say:

"Let's reduce the caliber of naval guns, too, so as not to give a naval power the advantage over coast fortifications.

"This is essentially a British proposal. But the Americans see that the argument means not only holding up this kind of reduction for another generation but that it is also the opening wedge in a campaign to reduce the size of battleships.

So tonight the argument veered away from the reduction of caliber to the reduction of units.

After Eduard Benes, Czech foreign minister, presents the adjournment resolution tomorrow, the conference will be given from 24 to 36 hours to study what it will be asked to sign. The Germans tonight said that they may abstain.

VIENNA DEPUTY INJURED BY TRAY HURLED IN DIET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 19.—Otto Bauer, former foreign minister and leader of the Austrian Socialists, was seriously injured today when Joseph Heinzl, a Fascist Heimwehr deputy, hurled a heavy ash tray at him during debate in a parliamentary committee meeting.

Heimwehr adherents claim the Socialist chief provoked Heinzl by calling him a "revolver hero." A month ago the Fascist reached for his revolver while addressing the house and threatened to mow down the Socialists.

Dispatches from Graz today told of street fighting last night between the two Fascist groups, Heimwehr and Nazis, in which a score were more or less seriously wounded. The fight occurred when both tried to adjourn to the same beer hall after their respective meetings.

Clarke, Esskaye Founder, Adjudged Sane by Court

Edward Young Clarke, founder of Esskaye, Inc., a prosperity movement now defunct, was adjudged sane yesterday by Judge Charles T. Allen. Clarke, former kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, told the court several Esskaye members had inveigled him into a trip to the psychopathic hospital on pretence that it was a private sanitarium. There was no testimony to oppose Clarke's own statement that he was "as sane as any and saner than most."

Police Raiders Find Two Schoolgirls in Beer Flat

Two high school girls, each 16 years old, were found in a beer flat at 930 East 42d street which was raided by police last night. They were taken to the juvenile home. Their escorts, Joseph Oriole, 36 years old, 7229 Evans avenue, and Sal Lesso, 24, of 7842 Champlain avenue, were held. Three other men were seized. Mrs. Samuel Paloza, 34 years old, was arrested as keeper. Her 8 year old son, Samuel, was taken to the juvenile home.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—Andrew W. Mellon, American ambassador to Great Britain, will sail on the Majestic tomorrow with his son, Paul, for a two months' vacation in the United States. The former secretary of the treasury plans to visit President Hoover, but intends to take no part in the presidential campaign, it was announced.

can sell something in New York!

A FEW YEARS BACK the mechanical refrigerator advertiser in New York was extremely class conscious or something. He felt that his prospects were preferred and hand picked and that his media had to circulate among the anointed. But it is of interest to note that while his standards were high, business was low. Finally, Rex Cole, G-E distributor, decided that it was time to look for larger pastures and try The News. It is of further interest to note that the business pioneer, whatever else may happen to him these times, is never lonesome long.

JANUARY, 1930—General Electric ran test copy, with coupon, in The News and the two hitherto preferred media. The News returned 23 coupons, other media 5 and 4. The prospects were good. So a G-E schedule settled down in The News.

NOVEMBER, 1930—Somebody in the Frigidaire organization took a chance with a full page, equipped with coupon. Results were secret, but satisfactory. Frigidaire has been on schedule ever since. In January 1932, Frigidaire again ran coupon copy in a New York list on their "Moraine" model; and The News returned most coupons.

DECEMBER, 1930—H. A. Linde, Brooklyn distributor for William's Ice-o-matic, was curious about The News, tried the Brooklyn section with coupon copy. The first advertisement sold approximately 100 refrigerators. Said Mr. Linde: "The News is the only paper which has produced real results for Ice-o-matic. It will be the first paper on our next schedule." It was. It still is.

JUNE, 1931—Kelvinator tried a test page, with coupon; and dealers reported more coupons and sales than they had ever had from any one advertisement in all other New York papers. Kelvinator is now using a 30,000 line schedule.

AUGUST, 1931—Westinghouse came into the market in January, advertised around for a while; but in late August tried a six weeks schedule, 600 lines a week, exclusively in The News; sold more machines in September than in any month before. On regular schedule since.

OCTOBER, 1931—The department stores became interested in selling refrigerators. Loeser's of Brooklyn ran a schedule on refrigerators, reported The News highest in units sold, lowest in selling cost. Another Brooklyn department store advertised Frigidaire, Westinghouse, Electrolux, Norge and Apex; sold 900 units in two months, gave The News credit for one-third of this volume. Subsequently, Bloomingdale's and McCreery's have been using The News successfully.

AND IN 1932—Bohn, Gibson, and Norge have started to use The News. And Ludwig Baumann, large New York furniture retailer, is using The News for Majestic. At the present time The News is carrying more refrigerator advertising than any other New York newspaper. And in June, The News carried more refrigerator copy from department stores than any other New York newspaper.

NOTE—All refrigerator sales in New York showed an increase in 1930, in 1931—and are still going strong this year.

MORAL—When times are hard, people can certainly get along without new and improved iceboxes! And if you can sell refrigerators in this market these days, you can sell anything. Remember, though, that the refrigerator makers are selling—punching doorbells, making demonstrations, working long and full days, letting no prospect escape, and advertising liberally, forcefully. They are not sitting around waiting for orders, coasting on conditions, trading hard luck stories. They're SELLING. They prove that it can still be done!

Depression or no depression, New York is still America's first market, able to buy refrigerators, progressive enough to buy refrigerators. Eighty-five percent of the population here is still living at its usual scale. The market for luxuries is not what it once was, but the market for everything else is still present in impressive quantities.

Selling is cheaper in New York, too. The salesman here can make more calls per day, meet more customers, spend more time selling and less on the street or between calls, substitute more shoe leather for transportation, move more merchandise per square mile—than he can anywhere else in the world. Outlets and orders lie closer together.

And advertising is cheaper. The News can bring your sales message to two out of three New York City families, to two out of five suburban families—at a lower cost than any other medium. These News families include a majority of prospects for anything, in every New York neighborhood, every income group, every price class—the finest customers extant today. They can be reached more effectively through the small News page, with its high visibility, its eye-attention. And The News milline is at an all time low.

How much longer are you going to miss this tremendous and tremendously profitable, actively buying New York News market?

LOSE COURT BATTLE FOR A MONOPOLY ON WORK OF INVENTOR

Judge Robert E. Gentzel refused yesterday in the Superior court to issue an injunction sought by S. N. Shure and S. J. Shure, brothers, restraining Hugh J. Ellis, 67 year old inventor of a radio mocrophone, from violating a contract giving them exclusive sales rights. Judge Gentzel approved a report by Louis J. Behan, master in chancery, which held the contract invalid because of lack of mutual advantage in its terms.

Ellis, who lives at 3502 Wesley avenue, Berwyn, is the head of the Ellis Electrical Laboratories, Inc., and holds a number of patents on his own inventions. He invented his microphone in 1929, and in the following year made $32,000 through the sale of the microphones, he testified before Master Behan.

In February, 1930, he entered into a contract with the Shure brothers, who organized the Ellis Electrical Laboratories Sales corporation, by which he gave them exclusive sales right to his microphones, and they agreed to buy a minimum of 100 microphones yearly from him.

The following year they presented a contract to Ellis, it was brought out at the master's hearing, under the terms of which they would have received a lien on all of his patents, and the manufacturing laboratory, controlled by Ellis, would have been merged with their sales corporation in a new corporation in which they would hold a majority of the stock.

Ellis refused to sign the contract. Thereafter he refused to continue his exclusive sales agreement with the Shures and marketed his microphones elsewhere. The report of Master Behan, delivered yesterday to Judge Gentzel, held the contract invalid on the grounds that while the Shures received exclusive sales rights for the microphone, they did not agree to accept all of the microphones made by Ellis, and could restrict his output to 100 microphones a year by the terms of their contract.

Judge Gentzel approved the report and denied the injunction after refusing to allow objections by Attorney Gideon Thompson, representing the Shures.

John W. Dyar, Detroit Capitalist, Kills Himself

Detroit, Mich., July 19.—(AP)—John W. Dyar, 57, Detroit capitalist and director of the Truscon Steel company, Youngstown, O., and official in several other manufacturing companies, shot and killed himself today in his home on Lincoln road, Grosse Pointe. Police were advised of the shooting by relatives. Mr. Dyar was an official of the Bellows-Claude Neon company and was interested in scientific research. The widow, formerly Mrs. Anne Wallace Loonis of New York; a brother, Ralph M. of California, and a sister, Clara E. Dyar, Detroit, survive.

ASK ROOSEVELT TO TAKE HAND IN 3D DEGREE DEATH

Act to Bar Prosecutor from Investigation.

Mineola, L. I., July 19.—[Special.]—A petition to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt requesting that District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau county be superseded in his investigation into the death of Hyman Stark, 20 year old third degree victim, was being circulated in Mineola today as Edwards prepared to conclude his inquiry before Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink tomorrow and rush any evidence of crime before a special grand jury on Thursday. At the same time it was announced in Albany that the governor had received three other requests of a similar nature from unnamed Nassau county residents.

The petition requests the governor to appoint Attorney General Bennett to investigate the police methods of Nassau county. A number of signatures of persons who apparently disapprove of Edward's investigation into the death of Stark, one of four prisoners arrested last Friday morning charged with robbing and beating Mrs. Valeria Hizenski, mother of County Detective Joseph Hizenski, had been added to the petition tonight.

Police Chief Plans Shakeup.

Meanwhile Abraham Skidmore, chief of the Nassau county police, announced that he is preparing to make wholesale transfers in his department. Inspector Frank McCahill, whom Edwards said he would question in his office tomorrow about his knowledge of Stark's death, will not be appointed acting deputy chief in place of Frank J. Tappen and one of the 13 members of the force suspended since Stark's death.

Apparent discrepancies in the stories told by Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littlejohn Jr. and other witnesses and the manner in which Littleton told from the witness stand last night of the alleged part Deputy Chief Tappen played in the third degree given Stark has led to some of the criticism of the district attorney's investigation, it is felt here.

Accuses Tappen.

Although Littleton had been the first witness yesterday and had told exhaustively of his part in the events of Friday, when Stark was killed by some unknown person or persons, he did not mention his talk with Tappen until late in the evening when he was recalled to the stand for the second time. He then quoted the 250 pound Tappen as saying: "He's the toughest —— I've ever seen. I put one foot on his belly [Stark's] and one on his throat and rocked back and forth and it didn't faze him."

Rev. Charles E. Deuel, Former Chicagoan, Dies

The Rev. Charles E. Deuel, former Chicago pastor, died yesterday in Santa Barbara, Cal., his friends here learned last night. He was pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Atonement in Kenmore avenue for eleven years until 1914. In that year he went to Trinity Episcopal church at Santa Barbara where he remained until his death. Dr. Deuel was a graduate of Trinity college, University of Idaho, and other institutions. He was ordained in 1890.

7 KILLED, 9 INJURED AS DYNAMITE BLAST SHATTERS DRILL BOAT

Alexandria Bay, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—Seven men were killed and nine were injured late today when a dynamite explosion on the drill boat America blew the craft to bits and shook the St. Lawrence valley for miles around.

A ton and a half of dynamite which had just been packed in a drill hole on the rocky bottom of the St. Lawrence river exploded prematurely, hurling men, machinery, and splintered remains of the 150 foot boat high into the air.

An oil tanker threw life preservers overboard, then proceeded, leaving the rescue to a fleet of motorboats which scurried out from shore.

Sixteen men were on the boat in the American channel, about two miles from the American shore at Chippewa bay, when the explosion occurred. Chippewa bay is about six miles from Alexandria bay.

A diver is searching for the bodies of the seven missing. The nine injured were in hospitals, most of them with leg injuries.

The America was removing rock from the federal channel, less than ten miles from the spot where a Canadian government boat blew up in 1930 with the loss of 31 lives. The Canadian boat had been engaged in similar work when lightning exploded her dynamite stores.

LOUIS MAURER, ARTIST OF WIDE TALENTS, IS DEAD

New York, July 19.—(AP)—Louis Maurer, artist creator of many of the Currier and Ives prints, died today in the home where he had lived for sixty years. He was 100 years old.

He celebrated his 100th birthday in February by playing two compositions on his silver flute.

He was at various times an accomplished lithographer, painter, cabinetmaker, shell collector, wood and ivory carver, anatomist, crack shot and horseman.

At 18 he came to America in a sailing vessel from his native village of Bierbrich, Germany and established himself as a wood carver. During the next ten years he executed the firemen series of prints, and those of Indian fights and life on the plains.

Some of his prints, notably the series on "the life of a fireman" and lithographs of horses, sold early for 25 and 50 cents. He lived to see his prints command hundreds of dollars wherever collectors gathered.

Jerome Brennan, 71, Dies; Resided Here 60 Years

Jerome Brennan, 77 years old, a city employé, died yesterday at his home at 6248 Magnolia avenue. Heart disease was the cause. Mr. Brennan was born in Ireland, and came to Chicago sixty years ago, settling on the northwest side. Surviving are four children, Thomas P., William, and Margaret Brennan, and Mrs. F. Meagher. Thomas is a sergeant of police attached to the office of Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal courts.

Easy Pleasant Way
To Lose Fat

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts that costs next to nothing and which will last you 4 weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water in the morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

But refuse imitations—safeguard your health—you lose fat SAFELY with Kruschen.

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts.

TOWNS PROTEST OVER ESCAPE OF BOY CRIMINALS

St. Charles Fugitives Menace Women.

Residents of Geneva, St. Charles, and other towns west of Chicago expressed alarm yesterday over the number of vicious boys who are escaping from the St. Charles School for Boys, a state institution for delinquents. A conference was called by Dr. I. G. Langum, mayor of St. Charles, as a result of the capture on Monday night of two young Negroes who menaced women before their capture.

Robert F. Havlik, who last February was appointed manager of the school and farm where incorrigible boys are sent, informed Mayor Langum that the trouble was due to the commitment of mental defectives to the institution instead of sending them to homes for feeble minded. Of the 634 inmates of St. Charles, 52 are mentally deficient, Mr. Havlik said.

Youths Threaten Women.

Among the defectives, according to Havlik, was Dennis Wilson, 15 years old, colored, caught in St. Charles with Oscar Howard, 17 years old, colored, some hours after their escape. One of them brandished a butcher knife and they leaped through a hedge at Mrs. Edward Lewis and Dolly Lewis, wife and daughter of the caretaker of the St. Charles Boat club, who were returning home late at night.

The women screamed, and while Mrs. Lewis ran into her own home her daughter ran to a neighbor's house. Mayor Langum and Policeman Burt Lemon heard the screams and caught the boys after a three block chase, and yesterday they were returned to the institution.

Tells of Escaping Boys.

"There are from 10 to 25 escapes a month," said Mayor Langum. "The boys get into St. Charles, Geneva, West Chicago, or any of the other nearby communities and steal automobiles to take them into Chicago. In many cases they break into garages to get cars.

"They have terrorized our people and they are a constant menace to life and property. It is bad enough to have boys with criminal tendencies loosed in our midst, but it's a hundred times worse to have strong young lunatics roaming our streets. Mr. Havlik says he is trying to work out a plan to have the mental defectives transferred to Lincoln or Dixon and our people have promised to help him."

Mr. Havlik would not say how many youths escaped on Monday night, but others connected with the institution said there were at least eight. As far as could be learned, only six were recaptured.

Edward A. Stege, Former Brewery Owner, Dies

NEW YORK CAN HIDE BILLBOARDS WITH SCREENS

Albany, N. Y., July 19.—[Special.]—By a unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals today New York state can erect screens in front of all billboard advertisements along its highways that it deems unsightly or distracting to motorists. The screens, however, must be built on the state's property side of the roads, but they can effectually hide billboards on private property beyond.

The case results from the action of Col. Greene, superintendent of public works, in building a decorative screen in front of a 35 foot billboard at the approach of the mid-Hudson bridge at Poughkeepsie. The owners of the advertisement obtained an injunction forcing Col. Greene to remove the screen. The appellate division by a vote of three to two affirmed the injunction.

The opinion on the unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals reversing the appellate division was written by Chief Judge Pound. Deputy Attorney General Henry Epstein represented Col. Greene in the court fight against unsightly billboard advertising.

EDWARD SAWYER, SCULPTOR, DIES IN TOULON, FRANCE

Friends in Chicago learned yesterday of the death in Toulon, France, last Friday of Edward Warren Sawyer, former Chicagoan and prominent sculptor. He was the son of the late Dr. E. W. Sawyer, once health commissioner of Chicago and member of the staff at St. Luke's hospital.

Born in Chicago in 1876 Edward Sawyer studied sculpture at the Art institute and in 1899 went to Paris to complete his education. He specialized in portrait medallions of the American Indian and several prominent art museums have sets of his work. He lived in Paris for 20 years, moved to Juan les Pins, and later to Toulon. He is survived by his widow, Marie, a son, Edward Jr., and a brother, Phil, a portrait painter in Detroit.

Mrs. Elizabeth Morler Dies at the Age of 101

Mrs. Elizabeth Morler, 101 years old, died yesterday at her home at 4032 North Ashland avenue. A native of Germany, Mrs. Morler came to Chicago when she was 50 years old to live with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Gillman. She is survived by two other daughters, a son, 15 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the funeral home at 1118 Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, with burial in Memorial Park cemetery.

PROF. PHILLIPS, AUTHORITY ON ORATORY, DIES

Prof. Arthur Edward Phillips, writer, lecturer, and authority on oratory, died suddenly of a heart attack at his summer home near Port Washington, Wis., late Monday night, friends here were informed yesterday.

For over a quarter of a century he had held the chair of oratory at the Chicago Lutheran Evangelical seminary and from 1894 until recently he had headed the Phillips School of Oratory in Kimball hall. Prof. Phillips was 65 years old, a native of Sheerness-on-Sea, England. He wrote several books on oratory, one of them, "Effective Speech," being widely used as a textbook. He also wrote several plays. He was the originator of the tone system in public speaking.

Surviving Prof. Phillips are his widow, Abbie, and one child, Mrs. Elmer E. Campbell of Cleveland. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 tomorrow. Burial will be in Rosehill. The Phillips residence is at 451 Hill road, Winnetka.

Frankau Pens Good Novel on Love at Forty

Uses Strong Characters for Difficult Theme.

"Christopher Strong," by Gilbert Frankau. [Dutton.] Published July 15.

NEARLY twenty years ago a novel called "The Dangerous Age" by Karin Michaelis created such a furore as no book of its day had stirred up. It was about a woman in her forties who had a resurgence of adolescent love, and its theme was that the years between 40 and 50 were extremely dangerous emotionally for women, that they were then liable to all sorts of unexpected emotional upheavals, and that love was at that time even more violent than in its first blooming.

GILBERT FRANKAU.

Other novels followed; for one, "The Second Blooming," by W. L. George, the next year displaying the idea in its title and expressly in one of its characters. Since then there has been a middle aged love affair in a good two-thirds of the modern novels published.

The phenomenon of the man of 40 odd having a sudden interest in younger women is nothing new in life, and it has often been used as fiction material—usually with a somewhat comic atmosphere, as if love were ever comic—or, on the other hand, were ever anything but comic!

Gilbert Frankau has done in "Christopher Strong" for the man of 40 what Karin Michaelis did for the woman of 40 in "The Dangerous Age." He has written a serious, impressive novel about the resurgence of love in a man who had every reason to believe that his life was solidly happy with his wife and his children and his business and his seat in parliament and his social position, and who found that nothing in the world mattered to him really but his desire and his love for a girl the age of his daughter.

Christopher Strong is, to his own mind and to the minds of every one who knows him, well named. He has all of the virtues and none of the vices and no inclinations toward them. He is a solid rock of a man; upon him his family, his vast "grub business" (as the wholesale grocery company was labeled by his brother) and his country rely. He is, if not quite material for a prime ministerial post, at least a man of enough intelligence to be consulted in important parliamentary questions. He is a sir and he dines with the prince.

It is on his way to dine with the prince that he meets the young woman who is to be his middle aged fate. She, too, is on her way to dine with the prince and she wrecks the car which she is driving as she swerves to escape a toddling baby in the road. She is the most famous racing driver of England. She is an international figure in motordom, and she becomes, as the book progresses, a runner up for the international speed boat classics and breaks the altitude record as a flyer. She has never been in love and she fears love.

Sir Christopher has never looked at another woman than the wife whom he loves and he never expected to. There is no cheap, swift affair between them. They both fight with all of their might, first the knowledge that they love one another and then the knowledge that they must have some sort of life together.

The feeling between Sir Christopher Strong and Lady Felicity Darrington is a cosmic force as the author pictures it. He gives it its whole due as a propellant in life and also its whole due as a deterrent. It makes its two protagonists blissfully happy, but it also makes them miserable because they can not declare their love and life as man and wife and bear sons to fulfill their love. But neither of them is unkind and they are agreed that Sir Christopher's wife shall never be hurt and never know of their relationship.

And in the character of Deirdre Strong Mr. Frankau shows an unconventionality also, as he does in the characters of the hero and heroine. For Deirdre is a wholly charming, wholly lovable woman who adores her husband, who has never had a cross word with him and whom he cares for more tenderly than for any one else in the world—more tenderly n for Lady Felicity perhaps, though not more intensely. The usual fictional characteristics of a wife who loses her husband are quite different from Deirdre Strong's.

Mr. Frankau has done an unusually delicate and difficult task in making Deirdre's love vital and living and in no wise selfish and in making her solution of the problem a sensible though a poignant one.

To be sure, there is a too opportune death, but death does intervene to cut the knots of human relationships sometimes and this death is not at all unprepared for.

I should say that Gilbert Frankau has surpassed all of his previous popular work in "Christopher Strong."

He has written something that is more popular

Rotary Memberships Hold Up Well, Clubs Are Told

Rotary clubs all over the world lost only 3 per cent in membership during the last year, Charles W. Kent, district governor of Rotary International, yesterday told a meeting of club presidents and secretaries of the Illinois district in the Sherman hotel. The loss in membership represents a loss of $77,000 in revenue, Kent said, and recommended that the club budget be slashed.

Parisiennes Like Wool Jacket Over Sun Bath Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The kind of jackets that loving friends and relatives used to crochet for new born babies have drifted away from the cradle side and into grown up fashions this summer. Along the sea some sort of light wrap, easy to get into, is essential to comfort, and this kind of babyish crocheted wool jacket is the Paris answer to the sun worshipper's prayer.

The type of jacket that is worn is shown in our sketch today. It is crocheted with exactly the same kind of stitch as baby's, but it comes in stronger, more adult color schemes usually. Lelong makes the one shown here in a beautiful shade of golden yellow with zig-zag stripes of bright blue wandering diagonally down the body of the jacket and the sleeves. The childish collar and bow tie are in the same crochet.

The dress that goes with this jacket is exclusively for sun bathing. It is made of white artificial pique and the back of the bodice is practically nonexistent except for a few inches above the waistline, and for twisted buttoned straps, which the seeker after sunburn may undo when the sun bath is in process. Wide bands, making a big X, trim the front of the bodice and become the shoulder straps in the back.

Circus Will Give Profits from First Day to Aid Babies

Proceeds of the intial day of the Ringling Bros. circus, opening in Grant park on Aug. 6, will benefit the Infant Welfare society of Chicago, to which John Ringling has agreed to turn over the net profits. For the last three years this organization, at first intended only to purchase milk for underprivileged babies when it was begun in 1903, has been facing a heavy increase in the number of mothers and babies dependent on it for health, while the income of the society has been decreased. Both the afternoon and evening performance profits will be given the society.

New Lounging Frocks Making Crop of Sirens

Even Nighties Turning to Pastel Tints.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Gloating gossipers are having a good time spreading the information that a lot of us are lounging about the home this summer because of the greatly exaggerated reports of the lack of free amusement elsewhere. Whether these whispers are wickedly unjust or embarrassingly true, this year's back to the fireside loungers are going to be able to be very decorative additions to the family circle; that is if they shop for lounging ensembles as knowingly as they used to shop for evening clothes.

For the sympathetic designers have really accomplished some glorious and glamorous creations, lovely new things that are arriving each week. Slim, cool, smooth and suave negligees that are as distinctive as any super-perfect evening gown, colors that will dramatize every personality and effective combinations that will hypnotize and impress the most critical and unappreciative male audience.

Some new satin negligees of black and white will do wonders for a jittery female facing a prospective evening of mixed home life and twittering crooners sobbing over the radio. One has a white satin sash that is a sash, at least three long yards of shimmering white satin with both ends dripping with a foot or more of white silk fringe. This you wrap around your ribs in several different ways, or you merrily tie it around once and let the rest of the sash trail movie fashion behind you as you decoratively enter.

The full swirling skirt is all of black and the bodice is a clever combination of white with the black. Wear it once and stun the home folks and it will be your favorite indoor ensemble, no matter who joins the party afterwards. It is a splendid costume to snare any unexpected guests of the opposite sex.

Another black and white satin negligee uses lengths of satin from shoulder to ankle, and long sleeves sweep rather theatrically down to meet the floor. It's a gorgeously beautiful thing capable of transforming a tired, work weary lady into a startling, spectacular siren!

There are also some new summertime lounging pajamas, colorful things of jade green, peach blow pink and old mellow shades of gold and blue. They are made with jackets a trifle longer than is usual, with wide deep pockets and a tie belt. The collar is rather masculine and severe but most appropriate for the long practical sleeves. The trousers are made with much less material than was used last summer and they boast of turned up cuffs, frankly copied from the models worn by your dad. Very moderately priced silk pajamas are available in tiny checks and small printed effects. These have contrasting colored sashes as an accent for the dark tints of the silk.

And don't think they have neglected to plan some new and utterly irresistible nightgowns, cool summer affairs that look enough like pastel tinted evening gowns to fool even the gals that wear them. Most of them are made with bias seaming and bias cut lengths. All of them use tops of lace with cross straps in back. They are particularly lovely in shades of soft blue and shell pink with lavish insets of deep ivory and ecru Alençon lace. Some use straps that tie coquettishly on each shoulder and all are priced for slender summer budgets.

Alvene Resseguie, in Recital, Makes Words and Melody Count

Alvene Resseguie, the possessor of one of the fine contralto voices in Chicago, appeared in a song recital at the Punch & Judy theater yesterday morning, the event being one of the items in the Chicago Musical college summer artist series. Her voice has both unusual quality and operatic weight, and she is, in addition, a musician who knows how to make melody and words count.

She is exceptionally able in the projection of moods. The contrasts between Strauss' "Allerseelen" and Wolf's "Mausefallen-Spruchlein" and between two Fourdrain songs, "Le Papillon" and "Celle que je prefere," showed that she has gone considerably beneath the surface. By no means the least of her merit is that she makes words plain to the hearer in no matter what language.

She was assisted by Adelaide Anderson, pianist, who displayed ability and good study in a group of works including Brahms, Tschaikowsky-Grainger, and Liszt. E. M.

Father Finnegan Made Dean at Loyola "U"

The Rev. Robert M. Kelley, S. J., president of Loyola university, yesterday announced the appointment of the Rev. William A. Finnegan, S. J., as dean of the junior college of arts and sciences at the university. He will assist the Rev. Thomas A. Egan, S. J., who recently was appointed dean of the senior arts college and the downtown college. Father Finnegan is a native Chicagoan and an alumnus of Loyola.

Society Yearns for Return of Parasol Fad

Pretty Sunshades in Favor 4,000 Years.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

TINY taffeta parasols may have carved their niche in the Victorian era, but one of Lake Forest's young matrons at the Arlington race track the other afternoon was wishing for just such a rosy cupola to protect her pretty nose from the scorching solar rays.

"If we only had those silly little frilly parasols," was the comment she dropped when leaving the Post and Paddock club to stand close by the track. And on second thought, "How amusing it would be to have them in style again!"

Knowing that her "faddish" sentiments are frequently fact more than fiction, it wouldn't be surprising to find in revival before the summer slips away one of the prettiest coquetries that has ever invaded the feminine realm. Even sophisticated Arlington might assume the "shaded" aspect of the Washington Park of the eighties and the nineties.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers will never forget the gay lavender parasol her father bought her for a Derby day at Washington Park in the late eighties. She had planned to wear a gown of a different color so would have nothing but a new dress to match the sunshade. At the first Derby in June, 1884, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison appeared with a lovely smelling bottle of cut glass and a parasol, and at the same race Mrs. H. O. Stone carried a sunshade that matched her tailored suit of white broadcloth. In fact, the little umbrellas were so gay they left almost no consideration for the gentlemen accompanying, the papers reported the next morning.

Some of the parasols carried on those racing days probably have found their way into the collection Mrs. William A. Ball has assembled at her south side residence. According to several art connoiseurs, this is the only private group of tiny sunshades in this city or, for that matter, in many cities. For years Mrs. Ball has made the collection her hobby, gathering the little French parasols of the days of Eugenie as well as those of later decades. Some are flowered and some are plain, some are trimmed with Chantilly and some have delicately carved ivory handles, but every one is a treasure to its owner.

What a pity, Mrs. Ball's friends always agree when they are privileged to see the collection, that sunshades ever passed into the discard. For like all objects of adornment in the hands of a woman, they were in the last century light and graceful playthings that punctuated many an expression, rounded many a gesture, and armed several attitudes of charming reverie.

The Biblical expression, "The shelter which defends from the sun," would almost suffice to demonstrate the oriental origin of the sunshade. But in China, where it is said the parasol was used 2,000 years B. C., there is a legend that fixes the invention with the wife of the carpenter, Lou-pan.

"Sir," said this incomparable spouse to her husband, "you make with extreme cleverness houses for men, but it is impossible to make them move, whilst the object which I am framing for their private use can be carried to any distance, beyond even 1,000 leagues."

In ancient Greece and also among the Jews the canopy was carried not so much as a protection against the sun as for a sort of religious ceremonial. And it must have been fashioned with movable rods, for Aristophanes drew the delightful simile, "His ears opened and shut something like a sunshade."

Persia's satraps of the oldest dynasties were sheltered by the sovereign parasol. In India its very unfolding has always been an immutable symbol of royal majesty. But time waited upon France and Catherine de Medici to make the parasol one of a lady's fashionable foibles. And it waited upon the 17th century and that eccentric traveler, Jonas Hanway, to make the sunshade's drab counterpart, the "parapluie," an English habit.

Where is the Londoner who doesn't delight to tell of that audacious man who had the courage never to go into the streets without his umbrella? Reviled, derided, caricatured, he held out for 20 years. The rainstick has held out ever since.

State Purchases More Land for Park at Apple River Canyon

Galena, Ill., July 19.—[Special.]—Assistant Attorney General George Nelson today completed the purchase by the state of 146 acres as part of the new scenic state park at Apple River canyon. This makes a total of 600 acres toward the park, most of which has been donated. Mr. Nelson declined to reveal the purchase price but this, it is expected, will be shown when the deal is recorded in court. The Apple River canyon is noted for rare shrubs and foliage. Roads will be built in the park, linking it with U. S. Highway 20. Construction will start next month.

Little White Stone House Awaits the Return of Albert P. Shaws

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE attractive little white stone house, almost covered these days with a cool looking green vine, at 1824 Dearborn parkway, that the Alfred P. Shaws will live in when they return from their honeymoon, or rather soon after they return, is all spic and span and fresh looking, and judging by its appearance from the outside I should say it is all ready to be furnished as soon as the former Rue Winterbotham and her husband arrive in town.

Just when they will reach Chicago is a bit uncertain, for they went to Vermont to visit Mrs. Shaw's mother, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, at her summer place right after they docked at New York last Saturday, but their friends and Mr. Shaw's business associates expect that they will reach here by the end of this week. Probably they will stay in Vermont long enough to see Mrs. Shaw's cousin, Mrs. Patrick C. Hill (Genevieve Carpenter) of Fort Worth, who is leaving today with her father, John Alden Carpenter, for their summer place at Charlotte, which is about 15 miles from Mrs. Winterbotham's residence. Mrs. Shaw's sister, Mrs. Shreve C. Badger, and her two little daughters are with Mrs. Winterbotham for the summer, and Mr. Badger is planning to join them the end of this week.

The Shaws, who were married on June 1, will be in Mrs. Winterbotham's apartment at 1301 Astor street while they are getting their own house ready for occupancy, but if I know anything about newlyweds, especially ones with such distinctive and good taste as the Shaws, I would say that they will be in a rush to get into their own home. The necessary painting and remodeling were done while they were away, and I am told Mrs. Shaw planned her curtains and draperies before she left, so it probably won't take them long to have the house in a livable condition.

That it will be the last word in what is modern and chic goes without saying, for Mrs. Shaw has inherited much of the artistic ability of her aunt, the late Rue Winterbotham Carpenter (Mrs. John Alden Carpenter) and Mr. Shaw is one of the best known of the younger architects in town. There is a cunning little garden in back of the house and I think it must be in bloom now—it cannot be seen from the street—for "Al" Shaw and his bride-to-be did some planting before they were married, I was told.

I also have heard that soon after the Shaws return he is to play in an important tennis match—important to the four participants at least—at Lake Geneva, the other three players to be "Bunny" Daniels, Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair's daughter; Preston Boyden, and "Bill" Blair. All four of these young people take their tennis very seriously and are good players, so the match promises to be most exciting. "Bunny" and Mr. Blair are to play against Mr. Shaw and Mr. Boyden.

Lake Forest Club Holds Water Carnival Today.

The Winter club in Lake Forest is holding its annual water carnival today, the younger children's program of events to be given this morning and the older children's this afternoon.

Mrs. James M. Hopkins and her daughter, Miss Marjorie Goodman, are due to land in New York Friday, and Mrs. Hopkins will come directly home, probably arriving Monday, but Miss Goodman is going to Westbrook, Conn., for a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, before she comes to Lake Forest. Miss Goodman was presented at the English court last month and is on the list of girls to be presented to society here next autumn, but what her and her mother's plans are hasn't been announced yet. Farley Hopkins has joined his wife in Lake Forest at the residence of his father, and they both will wait to see the senior Mrs. Hopkins before they return to their ranch just out of Phoenix, where they have been living since last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Hagey and their very young daughter, Joan, will leave next week for Charlevoix to visit Mrs. Hagey's mother, Mrs. Harris Whiting. Mr. and Mrs. Hagey will be away only two weeks, but the baby and her nurse will remain with Mrs. Whiting for about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner left yesterday to spend the rest of the summer with Mrs. Gardner's mother, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, at Camden, Me. Mrs. Keep's other daughter, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, and Mr. Hutchins and their children went to Camden several weeks ago.

Robert Hall McCormick will sail on Aug. 31 for his annual summer travels abroad. He will meet his sister, Miss Elsie McCormick, in Paris, and then they'll go to Switzerland. Later on they'll sail on the Mediterranean on Mr. McCormick's yacht, Trabaccolo.

Dunhams Returning to Oak Lawn Farm Estate.

Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham and Miss Jane Dunham are coming home in time to enjoy the very last of the summer and the autumn at their lovely old estate, Oaklawn Farm in Wayne, where the former Barbara Dunham and her husband, John L. Dole, are spending the summer. The Dunhams will land in New York on Aug. 22. They have been abroad since last fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Marquette A. Healy, who always will be considered Chicagoans although they have no residence here now and are living on their Bar O ranch at Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Armistead B. Carter (Polly Carpenter Boyden) in San Diego. I'm told the Carters' house is a charming ramshackle one-story house, completely covered with white wistaria, and located in the beautiful Mission Hills district.

Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer is visiting in Southampton for a few days before sailing on Friday for a trip to Europe. She will spend several weeks in France and then go to Geneva, Switzerland, where she'll visit her brother-in-law and sister, the Robert Peils, before sailing homeward in September. Mrs. Peil, according to cabled reports, is recovering rapidly from the effects of the accident she suffered a short time ago while swimming in Lake Lucerne.

Mrs. Hamill and Children at Lodge in Michigan.

Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill of Lake Forest and her children, Clarice and Corwith, have gone to the family lodge at Huron Mountain, Mich., to stay until school calls the young Hamills back in late September.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence of Hubbard Woods have motored east to spend two weeks at the Wentworth-by-the-Sea at Portsmouth, N. H. After a short visit at Bar Harbor they will go to Fourways lodge, Mrs. Emmons Blaine's camp at Upper St. Regis, N. Y., for a month's stay. Mrs. Blaine has gone to California for the summer.

Mrs. Shumway Goes to Berkshires for Visit.

Mrs. Edward De Witt Shumway of Lake Forest is in the Berkshires for a week's visit with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs, at Rock Ridge Farm, Richmond, Mass. Mrs. Gibbs has arranged to give several teas and luncheons for her sister.

Among others who have departed or will leave shortly for vacations are Mrs. Marjorie Letts, who left last night for a six weeks' visit in Canada —Bernard F. Rogers Jr., who has gone to Pride's Crossing on the north shore of Massachusetts for a vacation —David Leavitt who is going to Desbarats Friday for a visit with the Philip Mahers—Mrs. Fairbank Carpenter and her little son, who are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Farnsworth, at Castine, Me. Mr. Carpenter is spending the summer in the Farnsworths' town residence at 1448 Astor street.

Man's Brain Excels an Animal's Only in Size, U. of C. Is Told

Man has a little more brain than an animal, but the difference, physically, is one of quantity and not of quality, Dr. Anton J. Carlson, head of the department of physiology at the University of Chicago, said yesterday in a public address. The substance of the human brain is identical with that of animal brains, he said.

Dr. Carlson made the point in answer to the charges of anti-vivisectionists that research upon animals is futile in advancing the welfare of man, because of the difference in their bodies.

Nine-tenths of the knowledge of the human body comes from experimentation upon man and animals, Dr. Carlson said. He pointed out that although diabetes has been known for 2,000 years—was known to ancient Egyptians and Greeks in the middle ages—they had no suggestion of control "except by incantation." Not until experimentation, first upon dogs, was started 30 years ago, was any progress made in the control of the disease.

Anti-vivisectionists are in error in their claims that vivisection inflicts great pain on animal subjects, Dr. Carlson said. Before animals are subjected to such experiments, he said, they are anaesthetized and that portion of their brain which makes them conscious of pain is removed.

Women No Longer Enjoy Wearing Martyr's Crown

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A male challenges us to name a broken-hearted woman in this day and age. Gone cynical over an affair in his life, he insists women haven't any hearts to break. He'd like to hear of one honest broken heart, female gender. Sour solace, if he found one, we'd say. Nor are we going to parade any.

Rather, we think one of the glorious features of our age is that women are permitted to survive wounds with hearts not permanently disabled. Indulging in a broken heart is just as outmoded as going on long sprees of feeling badly, as was a former custom of women seeking personal sympathy. Not that there aren't heartaches. Not that there aren't justified heartaches, deep griefs and discouraging disappointments. There are, and plenty of them.

But women are learning to take them on the chin, to keep quiet about them, to refuse to wear the martyr crown. There's no time for the mourner in our midst now. She's brushed aside quickly. She's dealt with impatiently. Why doesn't she do something else with her life, is asked.

Whether female hearts have grown tougher isn't the question so much as whether sympathizers haven't grown more interested in their own affairs. Whichever it happens to be, the fact remains that there is no time today for the woman who moans aloud over a bleeding heart.

Perhaps women are learning to lean more on their work than on their m n. Perhaps they are taking their heart cures from the opposite sex. Perhaps they are learning to be better heart managers than were their Victorian ancestors. We think it is because they have less time to mourn. As one of our young American authors says: "The Victorian lady had very little else to manage than her heart." Her complete concentration thereon, no doubt, led to heart-breaks.

Today, women's interests are as wide as they choose to make them. The panacea for a deep heart wound is near at hand. And, we repeat, the disfavor with which moans are met may keep many a deep cut submerged.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty young creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Doria asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, arranges to get him third class passage on condition he doesn't bother Gold. Dorrance offers Gold a position as his secretary on the Havana trip.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

WOMEN'S CLEVERNESS.

"I'll take the job. Because I know——" Gold paused—"I know that anyway Mrs. Hathaway will be tremendously relieved."

Dorrance nodded. "That is exactly how I sized matters up. The pay is twenty-five dollars a week. You'll be getting expenses, you see."

"Thank you."

"Settled?"

"As far as I am concerned—settled!"

"Well," he glanced back, "the doctor's gone. But our friends are not getting on any too well. Perhaps we may as well——" They drifted nearer again.

Doria looked up. Her eyes were impish—but with anger rather than their usual mischief—under the sleek parted red hair.

"Mr. Dorrance!"

"Lady?"

"Cocktails."

"I'll order them," said Pierce, getting up. "In fact, I'll go to the bar and mix them."

He disappeared.

"I'll take the job. Because I know"—she paused—"I know that anyway Mrs. Hathaway will be tremendously relieved."

"I won't want you this afternoon, dear," said Doria, making Dorrance sit down beside her and addressing Gold. "Go and have a nice snooze in your cabin; go and flirt; go and do anything. After lunch you can just be an idle girl. You'll look after me?" she appealed to Dorrance, "because I want some fun. I want to go into the third class where there's a wonderful boxing match, so I'm told, and I want you to take me."

"There's more in it than wanting to see a boxing bout," Dorrance thought, as Pierce sauntered back followed by a steward with a tray of drinks. And when Doria cried at once, "Barney, Mr. Dorrance is taking me to the match this afternoon as you won't," Dorrance knew what was that something more.

"Fine," Pierce replied.

Doria snatched with a trembling hand at a glass from the tray which the steward was presenting.

Gold Franklyn took a cocktail. She looked at it dreamily. It was amber colored; icy and fiery. Pierce had mixed a wonderful potation. She was not listening to any of the talk between the others, barely noting that Dorrance, instructed by Doria's gesture, had dropped into the chair on her left; that Barney Pierce was standing near herself. Her mind was alight with ecstasy and anticipation. Havana! She thought the word over and over: "Havana! Havana! Havana!"

"You're not tasting my cocktail."

It was Barney Pierce awakening her.

She looked up, met his light gray eyes, and had a fresh impression that he was a steel man. She sipped.

"Actually?"

His laugh, like his voice, was a little hard. Her first cocktail—at this time of life; twenty-two! He remembered her age—told him by Elverton—as he remembered every other thing, however trifling, that he had garnered about her. Twenty-two—and knew the way she was going. For a whole hour last night she had been out on deck with Dorrance—a stranger. And how easily she had progressed from her anxious poverty into black lace, scarlet velvet, champagne dinner, dancing, luxury, admiration! He could believe in the innocence of no woman, he thought, as he stood looking at her, but he would pay tribute to the native cleverness of all.

Yet, in spite of his sardonic thoughts, he knew perfectly well the main reason for refusing to take Doria Hathaway to the boxing bout that afternoon. He had "something to say" to Gold Franklyn; and he meant to say it.

"Well, do you like it?"

"Very much."

He murmured:

"Women learn everything so quickly and charmingly."

"We have a lot to learn," she said.

"But you soon become teachers."

She moved away from him to the side and he followed to take her empty glass.

"Another?"

"No, thank you."

Dorrance, in his chair beside Doria, had not heard Pierce's invitation. He drained his own glass, Doria having finished hers, and beckoned the alert steward loitering within hail.

"Must have a second cocktail, everybody, with me! You will, Pierce?"

"Thanks."

"And Mrs. Hathaway?"

"Yes, please. In spite of my figure."

"Your figure will never be able to be anything but perfect." Banal flattery came naturally from the fat blond man for the red haired beauty. "And Miss Franklyn. You will join us?"

"Thank you."

"So we are at war," thought Barney Pierce as he heard her accept a cocktail from Dorrance; and he wondered, for the life of him, why.

Through a luncheon protracted by Doria's epicurean whims, the four of them talked, sparred—the whole mood of the table turning, as so often, on the mood of the women. The difficult mood was Doria's and Gold must, of course, wait upon it; while, as usual, the men humored it with the tacit mutual understanding of men towards feminine tantrums. Gold was glad, under the cover of Doria's repeated permission, to escape.

She went to the quietest corner of the deck below the main promenade after fetching a novel from her cabin. And lying in a steamer chair in the secluded corner which the deck steward had found for her, she envisioned again Dorrance's offer. No wonder she had so quickly accepted it!

It was four o'clock when Barney Pierce, scouting the decks for her, and the steward with tea found her simultaneously.

Her book, from the ship's library, lay closed on her lap and she could not pretend that she had been reading it.

"Dreaming again?" Barney said, standing before her.

The deck steward had an unerring eye for a good passenger and instantly and smilingly he had a spare chair up beside hers. "Tea, sir?"

"Thanks," said Barney Pierce, taking a cup and sitting down.

He meant to say what he had come to say; he felt that there might be little time to lose in the case of this girl with all her unexpectedness. And he began:

"I've been thinking a great deal about you. And don't please just reply 'that's very nice of you,' because we are not going to leave it at that. When I offered you my business card last night—really at Mrs. Hathaway's instigation—I am afraid you thought I was impertinent.'"

"But why should I think you impertinent?"

"I'm afraid I saw what you did with the card."

"O." She remembered clearly, of course, how she had crumpled it, pushed it into the ash container. For a moment she felt herself faintly sorry, but rallied to her remembrance, also, of what had made her do it.

"Why did you?" said Pierce.

She hesitated; then answered evasively: "I didn't take you seriously."

"I don't think it was quite that."

She looked at him defensively. "Why cross-question me?"

"You are not making an answer."

"Very well," she said, and her heart began to beat nervously fast.

Skill in Water Gives 'U' Girls Chance in Films

Olive Hatch Will Train 70 Beginners.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., July 19.—[Special.]—Six weeks ago Olive Hatch, Los Angeles swimmer who had tied the world's 50 yard aquatic mark for her sex, was trying for the United States Olympic team, but she had to undergo an operation for appendicitis and dropped out. Today she was under contract to Sam Goldwyn as director of 70 novice show girls in water exercises in Eddie Cantor's new film "Girl From Spain."

She's to work with Dance Director Bus Berkeley in the movie scenes where the 70 girls—many of them from the University of California at Los Angeles and Hollywood High school—wake up in their college dormitory and march up a flight of stairs to a spacious black onyx swimming tank where they take the morning dip in the most enticing of bathing suits. The girls will do water maneuvers and swimming strokes in rhythm with the music which motivates Cantor's picture.

Goldwyn at first thought he would use regular movie extra girls but they couldn't swim and dive well enough. That's why he signed Miss Hatch, who recently attended University of California at Los Angeles.

Miss Hatch, by the way, paid her way through school by playing minor parts in films and doubling for women stars in swimming, diving, and hazardous stunts. A story of hers, based on her experiences as a double, and written in collaboration with Richard Carroll, former New York News reporter, has been bought by the Columbia studio and will be produced under the title of "The Double."

Temperamental differences developed on arrival at the Fox studio of Hollywood's two newest film finds, Messrs. Charlie Chaplin Jr., 7, and Sydney "Tommy" Chaplin, 6. "I want to wear a cowboy hat," was young Charlie's answer to what he expected to do as an actor. "I will be Mickey Mouse," said Tommy, backing his words with a series of mouselike squeaks. The youngsters will be movie tested all the rest of the week.

Douglas Fairbanks' two nieces, Letitia and Lucille, who have just returned from a year in a Paris private school, came back with movie ambitions, they say, but neither expects to become an actress. They are more interested in scenario work.

Interesting, if inconsequential: Norma Shearer never has removed her wedding ring in making a film. When the ring interferes with stage business, she covers it with a larger ring. And Buster Keaton's line about his recent separation: It happened just after I gave my wife the yacht I just bought. Not that I mind losing the yacht—but it had my ukulele on it.

Keeps Age a Secret Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess or gamble. Get a bottle of Brownatone today—only 50c. Then cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not prove it will actually give your dull, streaked, gray or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen—your money back.

Health Vital in Life of the School Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"I was surprised," said a woman to me the other day. "I was talking with Dr. —— of —— school." This, by the way is a large and democratic private school with a prominent educator as its head.

"I was talking to him about Jimmy. I want him there next year, but he can't carry the full program without strain since that operation he had. And yet I didn't know what to do about letting him be one of those 'exceptions.' I thought Dr. —— would disapprove of special consideration for psychological reasons. But what surprised me was not only his answer, but the emphatic way in which he gave it.

"'Build up his resistance,' he said, 'pile up his reserve.' Establish his health first and above everything. That is the most important thing you can do for him now. Our boys and girls are not going to be able to handle what lies ahead of them without health. Men and women need to be strong to meet the world today."

Most mothers realize this. A well known pediatrician, Dr. Roger Dennett, was quoted the other day in a newspaper article as saying that we are on the way to producing a race of superchildren through physical care.

This is true and most parents are vigilant about food and rest, exercise, and outdoors while their children are young. But then, as their children advance in school, they yield one or more of these physical essentials in their desire to have their children excel or even merely to keep up. They allow strain and school work to undermine their children's nerves and general health.

After all, the school should fit the child, not the child the school. A certain amount of compromise or conformity is necessary in large groups—but not enough to sacrifice any school child's health.

There's something magical—enchanting—in cool, calculated summer beverages. Something that makes us rise blithely out of our hot selves and sail off on crisp waves of imagination to the land where business waits on pleasure while man sits all day sipping frosty delights from tall, mysteriously clinking glasses.

But just "beverages" is too general. As the first and most bewitching of all cool concoctions, I place the wizardry of coffee. Frosty, sparkling drinks full of the toasted goodness of perfectly ground and brewed berries, mixed now with the inimitable flavor of spices, now with the bland sweetness of milk, and again with the flattery of chocolate. For after dinner beverages, accompaniments of knowing little luncheons, and for any moment in the day when life needs a fillip and the throat a long cool treat, a most pleasant and savory solution lies in the coffee can.

There is an art and a science to the preparation of iced coffee quite as important as that used in the preparation of its hot after-dinner cousin. Percolated, drip, or steeped coffee, if carefully made, may any of them be used as starters. In percolating, don't hurry your coffee. Ten to fifteen minutes of gentle "perking," counting from the time the first spray bubbles up through the tube, will give a beautifully clear, amber coffee, ideal for iced drinks. In the type of percolating I mean, the spray comes up so gently that it rarely strikes the glass. Coffee percolated more swiftly will be done in fewer minutes, but will be inclined toward cloudiness and be less pleasing in flavor.

Cold, fresh water makes the most delicious percolated coffee. For iced coffee beverages never resort to using cold, left-over coffee. Use a fresh brew, double strength. When percolated, chill quickly, then pour over cracked ice.

You may have heard people complain that coffee chilled never has the flavor of coffee hot. It doesn't. If isn't supposed to. And that is the reason we choose to flavor it differently. Sugar alone is delicious in hot black coffee, but when we ice it, sugar and cream together make the most zestful addition. And to give it that fascinating foam which every one enjoys, shake coffee and flavorings vigorously in a beverage shaker before serving. Allow one tablespoon of cream and a heaping teaspoon of sugar for each tall glass of iced coffee.

Or if you lean away from cream in your coffee, be it cold or hot, simply aerate black, sweetened coffee in a shaker and serve over ice.

ICED RUSSIAN COFFEE.

Another tinkling treat for a hot July day! Served with petits fours—the aristocrates of the cookie family—this foreign treat makes friends with the first frosty sip.

1 cup milk cocoa.
3 cups strong black coffee infusion.
2 tablespoons cream.
4 tablespoons confectioner's sugar.

Put the ingredients in a glass pitcher in the order given and mix thoroughly, or, better yet, turn into a shaker and froth vigorously. Pour into glasses containing one or two tablespoons of crushed ice. Top with sweetened whipped cream.

COFFEE SHAKE.

Half fill a shaker with clear, freshly-made coffee, add a few drops of vanilla, four tablespoons of crushed ice, one or two tablespoons of powdered sugar, and heavy cream to taste. Shake until foamy and serve in tall slender glasses, topping each with a spoonful of whipped cream crowned with a halved maraschino cherry.

ICED MOCHA COFFEE.

1 cup hot double strength coffee.
¾ cup sugar.
⅛ teaspoon salt.
3 cups milk.
Sweetened whipped cream.

Melt the chocolate in the hot coffee. Add the sugar and salt and boil three minutes, stirring constantly. Turn into a double boiler and add the milk, which has been heated but not boiled. Let simmer for ten minutes, then beat with a rotary egg beater till light and fluffy. Cool. Pour over one tablespoon of cracked ice in tall glasses and top with sweetened whipped cream.

Air Express Service to All Parts of U. S. Will Start August 1

An express service by air is to be inaugurated on Aug. 1, it was announced yesterday by Gen. George S. Gibbs, president of the Postal Telegraph-Cable company after a conference in New York with representatives of six leading transcontinental air passenger lines. The new corporation, the General Air Express, will operate over transportation systems which will give, in conjunction with train and bus, connections with every city in the United States, Mexico, Canada, and South America. Special door to door pick up and delivery service will be performed by the Postal Telegraph company.

Under the new arrangement express packages weighing up to 200 pounds will be accepted in usual transactions. Weights higher than this will be handled by special arrangement. The airlines represent approximately 17,600 miles of route or 65 per cent of the total existing air mail routes of the country. The express matter will not be carried on the regular day and night passenger and mail planes, but in specially designed ships which will comply with the department of commerce regulations for express service.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, received the guests this afternoon at Hollin Hall, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Peyton Wilson in Virginia, which they loaned for a garden card party of the League of Republican Women of Washington. Mrs. Gann's costume was of medium blue chiffon, the bodice being in the plain color and the graceful skirt a figured chiffon.

Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, who are at their country home, Belmont, in Virginia, will be honor guests at a reception which the Rev. and Mrs. J. Armistead Welbourne, formerly of Baltimore, will give in their Leesburg, Va., home tomorrow evening. About 600 guests from the nearby counties have been invited and it will be the first opportunity the newcomers in that vicinity have had to meet their neighbors. Secretary and Mrs. Hurley purchased the place in the early spring from Edward Beale McLean.

Dispatchers' Auxiliary Association Elects Here

The ladies auxiliary of the Train Dispatchers' association, in their triennial convention at the Knickerbocker hotel yesterday, elected Mrs. R. M. Manning of Pittsburgh president. The legislative committee of the association, also in convention, recommended a continuation of the fight for establishment of the six hour day.

Donations Lag as Heat Boosts Free Ice Pleas

Sunshine that burned and blistered, that turned asphalt pavements into oozing, sticky gumbo, that baked the bricks in tenement walls until the unfortunate occupants panted at their open doorways for relief, turned Chicago into a vast oven yesterday. Languid, vagrant breezes stirred fitfully near the lake and died again. And over in those areas beyond the loop misery settled upon the homes of the penniless and dependent unemployed. Their one concerted cry was for "Ice!"

In the face of a need unparalleled in the more than a score of years in which THE TRIBUNE has distributed free ice each summer season, the contributions lagged considerably behind those of the few previous days—and the total below that of former years. Yesterday was a nightmare to thousands that free ice would have mitigated tremendously. Just seven and one-half cents apiece would have provided each of these families with sufficient ice to keep their little store of food fit to eat.

Mothers and fathers who haven't enough themselves have beseiged the Free Ice fund ever since its initial announcement this season. Not for their own sakes but for those of the babies—the tots from a few weeks up to four or five years old, whose major article of diet is milk. Whose milk must be sweet or it will make them sick.

"My husband is out of work and has been for some time. Last month he made $7.90 and we had to give that to the landlord. All the money I get is from my boy, who goes out and delivers the paper every morning, and that's $6.50 a month. We have four children, and the quart of milk and butter and what little I can buy with that spoils overnight on account of the heat. I can't buy ice out of $6.50 a month [that's all Glenn gets] and we're thankful to get that.

I really feel terribly ashamed to ask for ice because I never got any help before and don't get any so far. We've been struggling along on what we have, but when it's so terribly hot we don't get water on the second floor and we often wish for just a tiny piece of ice to keep the milk from getting sour and the butter from turning into oil. I'll be so grateful if you can do this for the children."

Gifts for the fund yesterday were:

Young Archers Will Test Skill at Fair Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Word comes from the Florida Alligator show at the Century of Progress Exposition grounds that we may stage an archery contest there on our party day and that there will be prizes for the boys and girls who come closest to hitting the bullseye. There are several targets on the range and there are plenty of bows and arrows, so we need not run short of equipment even though there will be one hundred of us. Won't that be fun.

More news from this interesting exhibit; A shipment of several hundred baby alligators is expected and it is quite likely that they will have arrived at their new home on the lake front by Thursday, July 28, the date of our party. We can see them in the incubators which will be installed to house these babies until they are old enough to take their places in the tanks with the more grown up 'gators. Did you know that some of them live to the ripe of old age of 500 years? They do—and a number of these specimens may be seen at the Florida Alligator show.

Another of the exhibits at the World's Fair which you will enjoy is the group of Lincoln buildings. These include several reproductions of houses which played an important part in the life of Abraham Lincoln. There's the replica of the log cabin in Hodgenville, Kentucky, where Lincoln was born 123 years ago. There's the rude home of the Lincoln family occupied during the rail splitter's boyhood in Indiana. There's the Rutledge tavern in New Salem which may be identified with his early years in Illinois. There's the Lincoln-Berry store in New Salem and there's the Wigwam, the Chicago convention hall where Lincoln was nominated for the presidency in 1860. The group presents an interesting story of the martyred President's rise from the log cabin to the White House.

All this will fill a portion of the day we are planning to spend at the Century of Progress Exposition grounds, one of the best parties we've had in a long career of good times. The hundred boys and girls who win invitations to it will be fortunate indeed for it will be such a combination of fun, interesting sights and thrills that you'll love it.

You know, of course, that you must write a letter to be included in the lucky group and it should reach me no later than tomorrow morning. The hundred best letters will win invitations for their writers.

Waterproof Lip and Cheek Rouge for the Swimmer

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Contemplating the bathing girls of yesteryear with their incredibly baggy costumes, their long, dripping locks emerging from the surf, cheeks and lips drained of color, you wonder how the old darlings had the nerve. Maybe it was their swimming that saved them. Still, we haven't records of swimming champs in the good old days. The water speed records seem to have come up with the more decorative mermaid of our later years.

Of course, you may have your own ideas of the comparative charms of today's beach parader and yesteryear's. But you must admit that the weatherproof makeup of late has contributed something to the beach scene. Weatherproof and waterproof makeup. The trade has done more than right by our fair beach combers. You can go into the water and come out of the water with lips as ripely red as any lady needs.

Apropos of waterproof lip stick, I was listener-in on an amusing scene in a salon, one day. The customer had come to complain that the lip rouge refused to come off after days of creaming, scrubbing and wiping. I thought it a good ad for the cosmetic. But the customer argued that the stuff had been on her lips so long she imagined her food was tainted with it.

I haven't yet heard of any powders that will stand water assault, but there are makeup preparations with powdered effect that are waterproof.

The waterproof or indelible lip rouge may be used on the cheeks, as you know. If you get on too much of this indelible coloring, moisten cotton with an astringent to wipe off the surplus. It's best to apply these preparations lightly, adding rather than having to remove.

Some of the brow and lash cosmetic colorings run, with a smudge instead of beauty as the result.

For the "beach" mermaid, that is the girl who dresses the part and does everything but swim, there are fine tan promoters and tan preventives in oil and cream form. And these applications, in turn, save freckle groans later.

Teachers Debate Grouping 'Dumb-bells' at U. of C. Conference

Whether students they termed "dumb-bells" are less dumb when segregated in class rooms with their mental equals, and whether bright students remain as bright when similarly segregated, was discussed by high school principals in one of three conference groups at the Univeristy of Chicago yesterday. They are attending the conference for public-school administrative officers, which will continue through Friday.

"I've found that it is good for the intelligent loafers," said J. F. Wellemeyer of Kansas City, Kas., chairman. "When they're up against students with the same I. Q. (intelligence quotient) as theirs, they can't wisecrack their way through."

A principal from a school of 200 pupils objected. "We tried this new homogeneous grouping," he said. "But in our town, where every one knows every one else, and all about their ancestors, it didn't work. There was a terrible row and we had to go back to the old method."

A Wisconsin principal said "dumb-bells" do not develop so much of an "inferiority complex" when among their own kind.

At Ball Game Today

THE German boxing team will be guests of the Lake View Kiwanis club at the Lake View Y. M. C. A., Marshfield and Lincoln avenue, at noon today. They will attend the Cubs-Giants game at Wrigley field this afternoon as guests of President William Veeck. Fredrich Burger, president of the German Amateur Boxing association, will talk over WBBM before the game.

BY HEINZ REICHMANN.

[Berlin Sports Writer Here to Cover International Golden Gloves Contest.]

The German boxers nearly floored three men yesterday without landing a blow. The man who got the order to deliver boxing gloves for training was the first victim. When he heard the boys wanted to train with 8 ounce gloves he was amazed.

"Why, you use them for the fight. You don't want to kill yourself before you see Soldiers' field," he said.

"Why not?" said Coach Mandlar. "For us training, especially when there is only one week left, means real boxing and fighting, and the real International Golden Gloves battles next Tuesday will be considered by my boys like just another training period. Why shouldn't they get used to the hard gloves? If they use their defense like we taught them, they need have no fear of hard gloves."

And He Wasn't Hungry.

Another victim was the night watchman of the Ambassador hotel, who discovered about four pairs of shoes outside every room the Germans are occupying at the Hotel Ambassador. He had watched husbands who come home very late from "business conferences" taking off their shoes, but leaving shoes outside of the room was something new to him. Later he learned that in Germany people get their shoes cleaned while they are sleeping.

And the third man was the waiter at the Germania club, who served breakfast to the German athletes. Hans Kohlhaas, the heavyweight, asked Coach Mandlar's permission at 7:30 o'clock in the morning to have breakfast while the rest of the boys were still sleeping. He had three portions of oatmeal, six eggs, bacon, ham, marmalade, and when the waiter brought him tea, following the instructions of the coach, he complained that tea was not filling enough. He wanted cocoa. He got it.

After breakfast, believe it or not, the boys devoted their time to their diaries. They keep their love affairs in that little book and also the events of the trip.

Give Him a Parachute.

Kartz, the lightweight, fell out of the bed three times Monday night. When Mandlar, the coach went to waken him yesterday morning he found the lightweight sleeping on the couch.

The falling act was still in vogue during the Germans first honest to goodness workout in America, taken yesterday at the Germania club. Hans Ziglarski, the bantamweight, while sparring with Spannagel, flew through the ropes after receiving a stiff right on the jaw. Injury was averted by Ziglarski's catlike ability to land on his feet.

The boys were so surprised to see the new boxing equipment and other training facilities THE TRIBUNE had provided for their convenience, they wanted to go through a ten round workout. Coach Mandlar quickly stopped that idea and ordered only one round of sparring. The boys went the equivalent of three rounds on the floor, skipping rope, punching hand bag, mauling the big heavy sandbag, and using the medicine ball.

What? No Band.

On the Europa while training, the boys were accompanied by a brass band which stopped every three minutes and then resumed playing after a minutes rest. When the boys started

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Lon Warneke, most famous member of the Arkansas Hound Fanciers' association, had to sweat a little yesterday to make happy news for the homefolks down thar in the Mount Ida hills. But when his day's work was over Lon and the Chicago Cubs had defeated the New York Giants, 5 to 4, for his seventh win in a row and his 14th of the season.

The victory had pleasing aspects beyond the further glorification of our friend Warneke. The Pirates split a double header with the Phillies, resulting in the gain of a half game by the Cubs on the Pirates. The Chicagoans now are in second place by a margin of two games, and in three days have made a net gain on the leaders of a game and a half, despite Monday's Cub reversal.

As all his admirers know, Mr. Warneke goes about his chores with a maximum of sang froid. But his almost blase outlook suffered a jolt on two occasions yesterday before Stanley Hack, Woody English, and Kiki Cuyler broke up the game for him in the ninth.

O, How That Homer Hurt.

The first jolt was a homer by Ott, good for three runs before any one was out in the first inning. And the second wallop to Lon's calm was a double by Hogan and a single by Vergez with one out which served to tie the score in the ninth.

These several incidents, highly distressing at the time of their occurrence, all became trivial when Hack opened the ninth with a single to right, went to second on English's sacrifice, and scored the winning run on Cuyler's single to right.

So it was that Lon turned in his third victory of the year against the Giants, making them runnersup to the Cincinnati Reds as his best cousins. Lon has licked the Reds four times. And just to clear up season statistics for the time being, be reminded that yesterday was the sixteenth complete game pitched by Lon in 18 starts.

Did Lon Get Tough?

After that first inning surprise Warneke was just as tough as heretofore. Only 19 men faced him in the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh innings, the extra one being due to a pass to Vergez in the seventh. The Giants acted up a little in the eighth and you've been told about the manner in which they tied the score in the ninth.

Cuyler was the big fellow of the offense. He drove in the first two runs in the third inning and the win-

SEEING CHICAGO AND CHICAGOANS WITH GERMAN AMATEUR CHAMPS

Rotary extends a friendly welcome. Members of the German team who meet Chicagoland Golden Gloves fighters at Soldiers' field next Tuesday night had a busy day yesterday. At noon they were guests of the Rotary club at the Hotel Sherman. George C. Hager, president of the Rotary club, extends a welcome to Franz Kartz, captain of the team, in the presence of Heinrich Kohlhaas, Erich Campe, Hans Berger, and Coach Leonhard Mandlar. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Secret Practice of Germans Arouses Pegler's Curiosity

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Our German friends who came to Chicago to be fighted by the Golden Gloves boys on the 26th have gone in for secret practice at their gymnasium in the Germania club and, being very naive, I am practically on fire with curiosity as to the secret punches which they undoubtedly are practicing.

Georges Carpentier also practiced his boxing in secret when he was quartered at Manhasset, L. I., in the dear dead days of the million dollar gate, training for his fight with Jack Dempsey. François Descamps, his manager, who was a sly and mysterious one for you, used to wink one side of his face into one large pucker like the cheek of a gone-wrong apple whenever any one tried to trap him in the regular p. m. official interviews out by the front gate of the place where the sign hung out reading, "To Beware of These Dog; She Are to Make the Biting." François would wink like that and say that Zhorge was perfecting a punch very secret, very mysterious which would make Dempsey to fall prostrate.

Only Few Punches.

Now there are only a certain few known punches, such as the left hook, the right cross, the uppercut, swing and so forth, and many of our people did not entirely believe François Descamps, because it seemed as though, if there were any other punch within the power of the human fist the Americans with all their experience in hundreds of thousands of rounds of practice and combat would have discovered it first.

One afternoon, at the close of Descamps' Zhorge's little public calisthenic and sparring exhibition, from which his secret punch was always withheld, a photographer from one of the papers backed off from the crowd and quietly eased himself up into the hayloft of an old barn with pegged beams which stood close to the practice ring. Up there he waited quietly with the crickets playing hopscotch inside his shirt and the hay dust making him like to let fly and sneeze himself into the very jaws of these dog which make the biting for hours until Carpentier and his French help should come out about 7 p. m. and practice the secret punch.

Carpentier Sits Down.

Carpentier then came out with Descamps and his sparring partner, Paul Journee, a large, bovine structure of meat, hair and ivory, for the secret practice. Journee, by the way, later was to discover Primo Carnera.

Carpentier, Descamps and Journee peered into the shrubbery, under the porch, up the trees and around the lower floor of the barn and climbed into the ring where, within 30 seconds, with an honest "oof" from Carpentier and a horrified cry for ten thousand pardons from Journee, Carpentier sat emphatically and ignominiously down, clipped on the chin by a simple right hand swing from a sparring partner. There also occurred at this instant a distinct click of a camera shutter and Descamps forgot Carpentier's personal distress for the more serious menace to their joint business interests suggested by the idea of a newspaper picture under some such caption as "Orchid Man's Petals Bruised by Ham Fighter While Practicing Secret Punch."

Did Photographer Escape?

It is impossible to report that the photographer escaped with his plate. If he had you would have seen the picture and the effect on the ticket business would have been such that the era of the Million Dollar Gate would have been deferred for some time.

In the ring against Dempsey, Carpentier did not get a chance to reveal his secret, unless it could have been that longshoreman's right in the second round, which irritated Dempsey and brought him in punching in a vengeful manner. Nor did he ever disclose the secret after that, but I am a great believer and I think that maybe there was such a punch but that, possibly, it was a punch too terrible for use in civilized pugilism, comparable, perhaps, to that frightful weapon of war which the British have known for so many years but forbore to loose upon the enemy even with their backs to the wall.

He Believes Like Anything.

Or perhaps it is not so much that I believe in Carpentier's secret punch as that I refuse to believe he and Descamps would have practiced deliberate deceit upon the journalist and, through them, on the American customers.

So when our German friends go into chambers to practice their boxing and my German colleague, Heinz Reichmann, who writes of the box sport for the papers back nome, winks himself a faceful of mystery, saying "surprise" and "mystery schlag," I just let myself go and believe like anything.

It's exasperating, and yet it gets you.

PRINCESS WINS MACKINAC RACE; FIRST TO PORT

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 19.—[Special.]—Nine of the yachts participating in the Chicago Yacht club's annual race to Mackinac island had slid over the finish line at 3 o'clock this afternoon, making it possible for officials to award the race to Princess in the racing division and declare Bagheera first in the cruising division on corrected times.

Princess, the Jedry-Kowski-Kallgren Q class sloop, was the first boat in, arriving at 8:42 o'clock this morning. Her corrected time was 62 hours 19 minutes and 46 seconds, making her winner of the race and first in the racing division.

Others in Racing Division.

The other finishers in the racing division up until 3 o'clock today with their corrected times were Siren, 63 hours 48 minutes 36 seconds; Hope, 69 hours 3 minutes 8 seconds, and Illinois, 72 hours 7 minutes 40 seconds.

Bagheera's corrected time in the cruising division was 61 hours 58 minutes 54 seconds. Other finishers were Quicksilver, 64 hours 43 minutes 49 seconds; Ponjola, 65 hours 25 minutes 24 seconds; Malabar, 65 hours 36 minutes 49 seconds; Vinesa, 70 hours 15 minutes 2 seconds.

When the Princess finished, Siren and Quicksilver II., were in sight down the straits in a cloud of fog. Quicksilver II., was the first to finish in the cruising division.

Light Winds Slow Hope.

The Siren followed Quicksilver over the line seventeen minutes later. No word was heard from the Robinson's brothers' Q class speedster, Hope, until late in the morning. It's failure to be among the first to finish was attributed to the light winds which have prevailed since the yachts left Chicago Saturday afternoon.

While the Chicago yachts were arriving, yachts from the Port Huron-Mackinac race, also were being checked in at the finish. The schooner Melodie and the yawl Trident, both from Detroit, were the first to finish in this race, coming across the line three minutes apart. The Melodie had a time handicap of three hours.

17,000 Welcome Arlington's Dollar Day; Rate Continues

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicagoans like to go to the races if they don't have to pay more than $1 for their afternoon's entertainment. They said so yesterday in no uncertain terms when the Arlington Park Jockey club staged a dollar day and cut the admission price in half.

The attendance reached 17,000. The average weekday crowd when the admission price was twice that amount has been only about 6,500. Reduced rates were also offered in the club house inclosure section. But it was the dollar day customers who all but packed the huge grand stand and took advantage of the marked down prices.

Windows Are Crowded.

How it affected the betting in the pari-mutuels the Arlington Jockey club officials did not announce last night. But all afternoon there seemed to be many more persons hovering around the $2 and $5 windows than at any time since the season opened.

The Jockey club officials were so elated that they announced the $1 admission scale will continue for at least three more days and possibly during most of next week. This means that racegoers can see the running of the Lassie stakes, which will gross about $28,000, for $1 this afternoon.

The Arlington Park Jockey club is the first of the great turf organizations in the country to make such a radical reduction in admission prices. In New York the admission price is $3.85 to the grand stand section. No cut in admission prices have been made there, and crowds are reported to be the smallest in history. Other tracks have reduced admission prices, but not as much as the Arlington Park Jockey club did yesterday.

Predict Reduction at All Tracks.

While official announcement was lacking, there was a general feeling last night that Arlington's standard admission price soon will be $1 and that every other track in the country will follow with a similar scale.

The Arlington Park club has offered more money in stakes and purses this year than any other track in America. These rich purses brought the greatest horses, the best jockeys, and the most prominent stables here. They have provided the greatest racing ever offered in Chicago.

That the Arlington Jockey club should be the first of the metropolitan racing organizations to advocate lower admission prices was not a surprise to many. "It is the Arlington nonprofit policy of sport for sport's sake which makes it possible," one high official in the Arlington Jockey club declared last night.

Playdale, a long shot, hailing from Tom Taggart's French Lick Springs stable, gave the spectators just what they wanted when he raced to victory in the Ravinia claiming sweepstakes, which had a gross value of $3,410.

Jumps Into Lead.

The son of My Play, carrying the red and green Taggart jacket, jumped out in front soon after the start and not one of his five rivals was able to catch him. He withstood determined challenges from all the others, but wound up by winning by three lengths from Annimessic, a Maryland colt, while old William T. was coming stoutly near the end, but able to get only third money.

Last in the field of six was Lady Broadcast, stoutly backed. She was cut on the hind legs during the race which probably accounted for her dismal showing.

Some spunk on the part of Young Taggart made it possible for him to capture the stake race. At Washington Park last month some one claimed a horse called Dis Dat from Taggart. It made the little prince of French Lick Springs angry and he retaliated the next afternoon by claiming Playdale. It looked like he made a bad bargain. For a few weeks Playdale did not show much running ability. But he stepped out in the Ravinia yesterday.

Clips Three Seconds from Record.

Playdale ran in this encounter like he might be quite a race horse. He took three seconds off the track record when he ran the mile and three furlongs in 2:15 2-5.

In the mutuels Playdale paid $21.10 to win, $10.36 to place, and $5.32 to show. Annimessic was at $8.84 to place and William T. was at $3.66 to show.

The Regret purse at seven furlongs went to Con Amore, the favorite, by a neck from Albert Sabath's I Say.

Lassie Field

EIGHT two year old fillies will clash over the six furlong route this afternoon at Arlington in the Lassie stakes, with the winner collecting the better part of a $28,230 purse. The field, arranged in order of post position, follows:

GOMEZ PITCHES; YOU GUESSED IT; SOX FOLD UP, 6-3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 19.—Vernon Gomez, the Irish Spaniard, who throws left handed, added his hit today to the sufferings of the ball team known as the White Sox. He whipped them quite handily by 6 to 3, thus accumulating his own sixteenth victory of the season and the fourth straight for his Yankee pals in the current five game series. Gomez, however, was disappointed in one respect. Only three of the Chicagoans fanned, giving the young man a total of 125 strike outs for the year.

As has been his habit almost since the campaign opened Vic Frasier was unable to finish another of his starts. Before the argument was three innings old the Yanks, who seemed in no way discouraged by the absence of Babe Ruth, had the silent Texan on the light end of a 3 to 0 count.

Sox Tie It in Fourth.

The Sox, aided materially by an error, managed to melt this handicap down to a tie in the fourth, but it didn't last long. Frasier soon got himself into difficulties that made it necessary to yank him while he was still sound of body. Gomez was careful not to permit a recurrence of his luckless fourth inning. He was so careful that he yielded only two singles in the last five sessions.

The Yanks waited until the second inning before taking their first bite at Frasier's offerings. They scored once on a single by Lazzeri and Crosetti's triple, which Fothergill finally cornered.

More grief was heaped on Frasier in the third. Sewell singled to right with one out and Chapman hit into center. Funk tried to throw out Sewell at third but didn't come even close. That gave Chapman time to take second. Frasier let go of a wild pitch, on which Sewell registered. Gehrig was dropped on strikes, but Combs stepped in with a single that moved Chapman to the plate.

Chapman Deserves Thanks.

The incident that put the Sox into a 3 to 3 tie in the fourth opened with a pass to Fothergill. Kress did his bit by singling to center, but Blue winked at a third strike. Appling lined a single over first base, and Chapman, being anxious to make a throw to the plate, overlooked the necessity of first getting the ball in

GARDEN MESSAGE BEATS LITTLE LAD IN STAKE EVENT

Return Race at Empire City Reverses Result.

Yonkers, N. Y., July 19.—[Special.]—T. H. Somerville's Garden Message was a different horse today and scored in the Sprightful stakes by two lengths over Little Lad, which was the winner the last time they met. Eva B. was third in the four horse race. Helios was the other starter.

Hanford, whose ride on Seb today was criticized, rode perfectly on Garden Message. The winner closed at 9 to 5. The time was 1:09 4-5 for the short six furlongs route.

Eased Up in Backstretch.

Garden Message was eased up at the head of the backstretch, while Little Lad, the favorite, went to the fore. Rounding the turn for home, Garden Message drew alongside and then took the track, drawing away at the end.

P. M. Walker's Chain, backed into favoritism from 13 to 5 to 7 to 5, won the sixth race by a length from Sand Runner. Lucky Chance was third. Buddy Hanford was aboard the winner and the time for the five furlongs was 1:01 1-5.

Sultry, at 8 to 1, Wins.

A. Snyder's Sultry won the fifth race, with Horn up, at 8 to 1. Ming Sun was second, a neck back of the winner. Mammy Singer was third after setting the pace to the far turn. The time was 1:48 4-5 for a mile and a sixteenth.

Rudolph Spreckles' Tuskegee, closing at 20 to 1 in a majority of the books, won the third race by a length and a half. Single Star was second, a nose in front of Brookside.

Pirates Divide Double Header with Phillies

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 19.—(AP)—The league leading Pirates lost a half game in the pennant race today by splitting a double header with the Phillies, while the Chicago Cubs were downing the New York Giants. Bill Swift won the first game, 5 to 2, his tenth victory of the season and his seventh in a row. Pitcher Phil Collins tripled in the 11th and scored on Bartell's single to take the second game, 6 to 5. Scores:

FOXY OL' PHAGAN AIN'T BOXING NO RINGER, NO SUH

Golden Gloves Champ Looks Over His Foes.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 19.—The Golden Gloves boxers went the route this afternoon in their training period. Each of the 16 boys, with the exception of Charley Neigo, fought three rounds of three minutes each. And none failed to carry the attack in the last minute with the same fervor he had in the first.

Today's workout proved the boys are in condition. The boxing was confined to weight divisions where possible. As a result the fighters left nothing to be desired. Each was striving for the right to step into the ring at Soldiers' field a week from tonight against a champion of Germany. And that was sufficient incentive.

The boys had a guest artist this afternoon, Walter Dunat of Rome City, Ind. Phagan drew the assignment, boxing two rounds with Dunat after one round with Neigo. Johnny boxed cautiously, suspecting some one might have run a ringer on him, but he loosened up enough in the second session to outscore his opponent.

Sutton Cuts Eye.

The schedule of bouts was as follows: Johnny Baltzer vs. Lennie Cohen, Leo Rodak vs. Al Soukup, George Haberski vs. Frankie May, Laddie Tonelli vs. Henry Rothier, John Phagan vs. Charley Neigo and Walter Dunat, Bill Connell vs. Tony Sutton, Adolph Wiater vs. Vernon Miller, Adam Smith vs. Duffy Dvonch.

Bad luck struck camp today for the first time. Sutton received a cut over his right eye during his bout with Connell. However, later examination revealed a rather superficial cut which, with a week remaining before the international fights, should not handicap Tony if he is chosen to represent Chicago in the middleweight division.

How about the Germans? This was the query of all the boys on our return. It didn't do any good to say that we didn't see the German champions box, for the query was shifted to personal appearance, height, and other detailed descriptions.

Still Pack 'Em In.

The crowd at today's workout rivaled that of Sunday. Nearly a hundred automobiles were parked around the garage, and the fans sat in the windows or stood, since only a score of chairs are available. Yesterday was a vacation as far as boxing was concerned, which produced additional pep for today's work. The weights of the squad jumped an average of two pounds a man during the day off, but that was lost today. This was one of the warmest days during the training, but the western breeze whipping across an arm of the lake, kept the temperature under 90 degrees.

Favor Tilden in Pro Tennis Play Saturday

William T. Tilden II. is the favorite to win the sixth annual United States professional tennis championship tournament, which starts at South Shore Country club Saturday afternoon and runs for nine days, but he is by no means an overwhelming favorite. Hans Nusslein, Vincent Richards, and Karl Kozeluh have defeated Big Bill before and any one of them may spoil his attempt to win his second professional championship to add to his seven American amateur singles titles.

In his last match with Nusslein, played at Philadelphia last week, Tilden lost. Hans outplayed the 39 year old veteran to win, 6-3, 6-1. In a series of exhibitions throughout the country Tilden and Nusslein have played on even terms. In this tournament all the matches will be best three out of five sets.

As an amateur Vincent Richards scored over Tilden several times, and if his volleying is at its best he may upset him again. Tilden defeated Vinnie in straight sets in the finals last year, but Richards had not been playing as much as he has this season.

SISK, MARQUETTE HALF, SIGNS WITH CHICAGO BEARS

Johnny Sisk, half back on the Marquette university football team for the last three years, signed yesterday to play with the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football league.

Sisk, a Chicagoan, was captain of Marquette's 1931 eleven. He also starred in track and was a member of the distance medley relay team which set a world record last year.

Title Bouts Barred at Marseilles After Riot

PARIS, July 19.—(AP)—As a result of the riot which broke up a bout between Panama Al Brown of the United States and Kid Francis of France at Marseilles last week, the French Boxing federation today announced that until further notice it would refuse to license any bouts at Marseilles involving world, European, or French titles.

Pending a report to the International Boxing union, the French federation condemned as unsportsmanlike the attitude of the Marseilles fans who intimidated and beat an American official.

Coach Without Crew, but Murphy Stays at Madison

Madison, Wis., July 19.—(AP)—George Mike Murphy will remain at the University of Wisconsin as crew coach although the sport has been reduced from an intercollegiate to an intramural basis. The coach assured athletic officials he would remain when he returned from an eastern trip. Crew racing was stricken from the intercollegiate competitive bracket this year as a result of the economy program.

Stuhley Signs with Vassis at White City

Young Stuhley of Kewanee and Costas Vassis, Greek middleweight, will meet in an eight round bout at 160 pounds Friday night at White City on the Baxter Calmes-Joe Doktor card. Stuhley has scored fifteen straight victories in Chicago and has never been defeated here. Vassis has won seven out of eight fights at the White City arena.

Both Calmes and Doktor have agreed to meet Charley Retziaff on July 29. The winner of Friday's ten round match will get the fight. Baxter has been training at Howard's gymnasium. Doktor will arrive from Buffalo today.

Another bout on the card that is arousing interest is the Art Laskey-Buck Everett six round bout. Laskey is a young Jewish heavyweight who has scored ten straight knockouts in Minneapolis. Laskey appeared twice on the south side a year ago, scoring two knockouts.

The title match at the Chicago Stadium on Aug. 4 between Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, and Eddie Shea of the south side today will be submitted to Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, for approval.

Chocolate came out of the Jack [Kid] Berg 15 round contest at New York Monday without injury. The Kid defended his title against Davy Abad at Havana, Cuba, last April 10. His time limit to defend the championship again expires Oct. 10.

Shea has been training for the last two weeks. He boxed three rounds with Mickey Genaro at the Arcade gymnasium yesterday. After the workout he weighed 128 pounds, two less than the title limit.

Two Chicago lightweights, Barney Ross and Harry Dublinsky, will meet the Perlick twins, Henry and Herman, when the West Side Boxing club offers three ten round feature bouts at Sparta stadium, Thursday, July 28.

"Neither Ross nor Dublinsky know which Perlick will be his opponent," Promoter Jim Mullen said yesterday. "I'll have Barney and Harry in my office tomorrow to flip a coin for his opponent."

In the third windup bout Tracey Cox, Indiana lightweight, will meet an opponent yet to be selected.

4 TIE FOR LEAD IN PUBLIC LINKS QUALIFYING PLAY

Louisville, Ky., July 19.—[Special.]—Four golfers tied for the lead in the opening 18 hole qualifying round of the National Public Links golf tournament today at the Shawnee Country club. The second 18 hole qualifying round will be held tomorrow and 32 will start match play on Thursday.

The quartet at the head of the field, which is the largest in the history of the tournament, includes Horace Lacey, Little Rock, Ark.; Joe Nichols, Long Beach, Cal.; Ralph Strafeci, Brooklyn, and Joe Coria, St. Paul, Minn. Each came home with a 71, one under par.

Pete Miller scored a 73 to lead Chicago's sextet. The other Chicagoans and their scores were: Hank Foley, 75; Gus Fetz, 77; Art Huebner, 82; Wilbur Kokes, 80, and Carl Jankowski, 81.

CHARLIE HORSE, THAT'S ALL; BABE WILL PLAY SOON

New York, July 19.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth expects to be back in uniform with the Yankees in about a week, it was said tonight at his apartment. The Yankee star is nursing a leg injury received in Monday's game against the White Sox.

The Babe spent the day with an electric pad applied to his injured leg. Arthur McGovern examined the injury yesterday, advised Babe to take a good rest and expressed the opinion that Babe would be out in a week.

An examination by Doc Painter, the Yankees' trainer, disclosed that Ruth had received a rupture of the sheath of the extensor muscles in the rear of his right leg. Ruth terms the injury as a Charley Horse, the first he has ever had in the back of a leg.

British Olympic Stars Leave Chicago for Coast

A second delegation of British entrants in the Olympic games in Los Angeles will leave Chicago on the California limited of the Santa Fe at 10.05 o'clock tonight. In the party will be Sir Curtis Bennett, Lord Achefor, Sir Harold Bowden, Evan Hunter, and E. J. Holt.

Eleven members of the Irish Free State Olympic team will leave Chicago at 11:30 o'clock today on the Chicago and North Western railway for Los Angeles.

Levinsky Fined $6 on Three Parking Charges

King Levinsky, heavyweight fighter, appeared yesterday before Judge Leon Edelman to face three charges of parking in the loop. He explained that he believed in law enforcement, but had been unable to appear before because of out of the city engagements. His sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, paid $6 in fines and costs.

In the Wake of the News

RIVALRY, NOT JEALOUSY.

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., July 19.—[Special.]—There are 16 amateur boxers in camp training for the international bouts against the German champions at Soldiers' field next Tuesday night. Only eight of these can be chosen to represent Chicagoland, for there are only eight bouts in the international series, although probably half a dozen exhibition affairs will be put on to round out the card.

Naturally, two boys of the same weight box against each other in the training workouts. Both have the same ambition—to be chosen for the Golden Gloves team. They exchange wallops, and they are good, lusty wallops with no pulled punches. Every afternoon over at the garage ring, there are real fights. They differ from the bouts of a week hence in that the boys wear headgear as a precaution against eye cuts or other injury, and the gloves vary in the different classes from 10, 12 to 14 ounces instead of the six and eight ounce mitts the boxers will swing on July 26.

Now it is a marvel to the Wake, perhaps to some of our readers, that no animosity arises from these training workouts although each boy is using all he knows against his opponent and some of those blows leave a sting despite the big mittens. Not only is no animosity apparent to trainers or to us camp followers, but there are no disparaging confidences or side remarks outside the ring which are known as "catty" among women folks. The fact is one of the most remarkable features of the camp routine to us.

That boys who have trained for months for what to them is the greatest thing in their lives, a place on an international team, can be so sportsmanlike certainly is a tribute to amateur boxing. We have seen sportsmanship but never such sportsmanship in the more genteel pastimes of golf and tennis.

As an example we complimented one of the boys this afternoon on his showing. He protested, "I was terrible. George is a clever fighter and he gave me a good shellacking, but I'll get him tomorrow." The opponent was equally modest, saying, "Well, he had it on me yesterday, but I think I held him even today. He's a clean boxer, too."

To those who belittle amateur boxing we cite this instance and ask that they join us in wishing there was such spirit in all other sports.

While playing golf Sunday at Briar Gate following the Arlington Classic, one of the boys caddying for our foursome asked, "Do you write for THE TRIBUNE?" We nodded an affirmative.

"Whom shall I tell him I saw," we inquired.

"Oh, just tell him Red and Able and Specs. That's his little brother over there," Able added, pointing to a diminutive youngster on a distant fairway.

Narrating the incident to Haberski on our return, he said:

WHAT IF WE MOANED?

Many many years ago Walter Theibault and The Wake began playing golf at the same time, with him shooting about 105 to our 115. We were surprised to see him enter the hotel lobby in golf attire. This was explained by a convention here of furniture warehouse men, which he was attending. Complying with the amenities we inquired, "How's the old game?"

"It's all right today, I had a 73. But in our tournament I was awful. I took a 76."

As it seemed to be expected, we dutifully moaned with him although we still are shooting around 115.

Sarazen Declines P. G. A. Meet Qualifying Exemption

New York, July 19.—[Special.]—An offer of exemption from the qualifying round of the National P. G. A. championship to be held in St. Paul, Minn., beginning Aug. 30, was declined today by Gene Sarazen, American and British open champion. In a telegram from Granville, O., Sarazen stated he preferred to earn his place "as the other boys will have to do."

their floor exercises they were looking for a phonograph to keep time with. The club did have a phonograph, but unfortunately the only records available were heavy Wagner tunes and Coach Mandler was afraid his proteges would fall asleep while keeping time to Tannhäuser and Lohengrin. So the only music they had was the ringing of the bell and the whistle of the coach.

Judging from the short workout yesterday the boys are in good shape. Coach Mandlar had to step in more than once and tell them to ease up.

When the boys arrived yesterday afternoon a large crowd was on hand to watch them workout, but it was not admitted. Training in public according to Mandlar, is bad. They learned on the Europa that spectators encouraged the boxers to slug with each other.

J. Colin of Switzerland moved up into second place with a victory over Dr. Staehelin, a countryman.

Chicago Plans Welcome for Cricket Stars

BY WICKET KEEPER.

Chicago cricket fans, many of whom never have seen a champion team in action, are expected to turn out in large numbers when the Australian team, holder of the world's title, appear at noon Saturday in Grant park in the first of a four game series with teams selected from the Illinois Cricket association.

The cricket field has been laid out just south of Buckingham fountain. Play in the opening game will continue to 6:30 o'clock with intermissions for luncheon and tea. Games will be played on the following three days, starting at 11:30 a. m. Stumps will be drawn at 6:30.

The Australian team has scored 18 victories, drawn two games and lost only one this season.

The visiting team will arrive at the Twelfth Street station at 8:05 o'clock Saturday morning and will be welcomed to Chicago by Greeter George Gaw, S. W. Govier, representing Mayor Cermak, and a delegation from the Illinois Cricket association.

The players will be guests at a banquet in their honor at the Morrison hotel Saturday night and Tuesday night will attend the International Golden Gloves boxing bouts at Soldiers' field as guests of THE TRIBUNE.

Officials of the Illinois Cricket association are particularly anxious that baseball fans attend the game, as there is great similarity in the two sports. Admission will be free.

200 European Stars Arrive at Games Site

Los Angeles, Cal., July 19.—(AP)—More than 200 athletes of five nations, attracted here by the Olympic games today arrived in the Olympic village.

From France, Finland, Argentina, Sweden, and Poland they came, boosting the population of California's modern athletic city past the 750 mark. Sixteen complete teams have been assembled, 25 nations now are represented, and approximately 20 countries remain to report.

French Team Largest.

France set the pace today, sending by special train a team of 86, including 63 athletes. Finland and Sweden, already represented by small delegations, were reënforced by parties of 40 each, while 18 from Argentina swelled the largest South American team to the 50 mark.

Lonesome Jannusc Kusocinski, Pole distance runner, had company of his own selection for the first time in almost a week as 27 competitors checked in at the village administration building.

Stella Arrives.

Poland's three women athletes, including Stella Walsh, who wavered on the international fence between Poland and the United States before deciding to compete for her native country, were included in the squad.

Sera Martin, 800 meter French runner, who holds the world's record of 1:50.6, expressed surprise that he would not face Ben Eastman, Stanford star, who recently ran the 800 meters in 1:50, in the games.

HOOVER NAMES CURTIS TO VISIT OLYMPIC GAMES

Washington, D. C., July 19.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis today was appointed by President Hoover to represent him at the opening of the Olympic games at Los Angeles, Cal., on July 30.

An invitation to open the games was accepted by President Hoover, but he announced recently that he would be unable to attend because of governmental affairs.

Cupboard Bare? Play Indian and Eat Pond Lilies

BY BOB BECKER.

Although it long has a been a popular idea that practically every tribe of Indians knew all about herbs, edible wild plants and berries, and throughout the year lived partly on these items, history tells us that only those Indians who lived a roving life varied their monotonous meat diet with roots and herbs. With their passing the art of living off the country, which means the ability to recognize, find and cook wild roots, herbs and berries, is one with which only a few outdoorsmen are familiar today.

Most outdoor fans do not have to worry about food on a camping, canoe or fishing trip. They can take a well balanced menu into the woods with them and rarely does hunger join the party. In the old days the Indians sometimes faced famine with a pitiful scarcity of food and then they had to subsist on what bulbs, seeds, acorns and roots they could find.

Study of these wild foods is quite interesting. There isn't much in books to guide one because many of our botanists have not gone into the intricacies of cooking pond lily roots or of how many times you must boil the bulbous root of the jack in the pulpit to make this starchy wild potato edible and nourishing.

When we were hunting in Brazil we came across the Indians' most remarkable contribution to the art of root cooking. Down there the cassava plant is widely used. The bitter cassava, or manioc, as it comes from the ground would seem to be the worst possible thing to eat because it contains prussic acid, one of the most deadly vegetable poisons known.

Somehow or other, the Indians learned they could shred this root, soak it in water, squeeze out this water after a time, and then spread the meal in the sun, finally producing a nourishing food item absolutely devoid of any prussic acid. This "farinha" is the food of nearly every one in the Amazonian tropics.

In Chicagoland outdoor fans have among other wild roots the Indian turnip, if they wish to experiment with a root wholly unfit for food before being treated. The root of this plant is acrid and poisonous in the raw state. Yet the Indians boiled it in several waters to make it palatable and thus supplemented their foods.

FRANK PETROLLE WHIPS BATTALINO FOR SECOND TIME

New York, July 19.—(AP)—Frankie Petrolle, younger brother of the more famous Billy, made it four straight for the Petrolle family over Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, by winning a ten round decision at the Queensboro stadium tonight.

It was Frankie's second victory over the Hartford, Conn., battler, who previously had lost twice to Billy Petrolle.

Battalino looked like a winner tonight until he ran into Petrolle's right fist in a fourth round mixup and went down for a count of nine. The blow slowed him down considerably for a few rounds, and by the time he recovered Frankie had piled up enough points to win.

SCHILDBERG AND FAVELLI REACH JUNIOR FINALS

Two Medalists Advance to Title Play.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

When a medalist in a golf tournament loses his first round match it seldom surprises anybody, but when he wins and goes into the championship match it's news. That's what happened twice yesterday in the Chicago District Golf association's annual junior championship at the Mission Hills Country club.

Alfred Favelli of Lake Shore, who had tied with Armando Dinelli of Northmoor for the qualifying medal in Monday's trials took both of his matches yesterday to advance to today's 36 hole final in class B for boys 18 and 19 years old. Dinelli, comedalist, won his first match, but was eliminated in his second.

Schildberg Wins.

In class A, reserved for boys who haven't reached their eighteenth birthday, Edwin Schildberg, who had come away with the medal Monday, also went into the final by winning both his matches yesterday. Schildberg, 17 years old, whose father is a member at North Shore and who plays on the New Trier High school team, played the best golf of the day in winning his first match, 1 up, from Peter Gouzoulis of Ridgemoor. He had to shoot a medal card of 74 against Gouzoulis to do it. The latter was in a trap on the 16th, squaring the match, and Schildberg went one up on No. 17 when Pete sent his drive out of bounds. Schildberg beat Russell Eddy of Lincolnshire, 2 and 1, in his second match, turning in a medal of 78.

William Walrath of Kildeer, who, although still shy of eighteen years, has already completed his freshman year at Dartmouth, will meet Schildberg for the class A title. It's Bill's fifth year in golf, his third in the junior and his best record to date. In yesterday's play, he disposed of Martin Johnson of Illinois, in the morning, 7 and 6, and then went on to beat Richard Tamillo of Ridgemoor, in the afternoon, 4 and 3.

All Ex-Caddies.

Favelli entered the final in class A with a 4 and 3 victory over Robert Wilson of South Shore, but he had to work to win 1 up from Victor Ralph of Lake Shore, in his second match. Today he meets Tom Salelli of Exmoor, who won his first match from Tony Swantek of Briergate, 5 and 4, and then conquered Dinelli, the co-medalist, 5 and 4, in the afternoon. All three are ex-caddies.

Par—
Out	545	344	434—36
In	443	453	445—36—72
Schildberg—
Out	545	353	444—37
In	443	553	445—37—74
Gouzoulis—
Out	555	343	334—35
In	553	453	555—40—75

Results of yesterday's matches:

CLASS A.

FIRST ROUND—Edwin Schildberg, North Shore, defeated Peter Gouzoulis, Ridgemoor, 1 up; Russell Eddy, Lincolnshire, defeated Fidel Ghini, Exmoor, 3 and 2; Richard Tamillo, Ridgemoor, defeated Harry Frankenberg, Bunker Hill, 1 up, and William Walrath, Kildeer, defeated Martin Johnson, Illinois, 7 and 6.

SECOND ROUND — Schildberg defeated Eddy, 2 and 1, and Walrath defeated Tamillo, 4 and 3.

CLASS B.

FIRST ROUND—Armando Dinelli, Northmoor, defeated Sherwood Palmer, Wilmette, 1 up; Tom Salelli, Exmoor, defeated Tony Swantek, Briergate, 5 and 4; Alfred Favelli, Lake Shore, defeated Robert Wilson, South Shore, 4 and 3, and Victor Ralph, Lake Shore, defeated Victor Lespinasse, Ridgemoor, 3 and 1.

SECOND ROUND—Favelli defeated Ralph, 1 up, and Salelli defeated Dinelli, 5 and 4.

MISS HUMPHREY WINS

Janet Humphrey of Calumet, who won the medal Monday in the 13th annual junior tournament of the Women's Western Golf association at the Flossmoor Country club, is still in the championship running, but had difficulty during her first round match yesterday. She was forced to the 19th hole before her opponent, Hilda May Livengood of Danville, Ill., admitted defeat.

Miss Livengood topped her first three shots to the 19th. Her next was short of the green, and she overdrove the hole when she did get on, finally taking a seven. Miss Humphrey won with a six.

The other three matches in the championship flight also were decided by close margins. Evelyn Murphy of Olympia Fields and Eleanor Tobin of Flossmoor, runner up for the title last year, both won, 1 up. The former defeated Josephine Souchek of Big Oaks on the final green, and Miss Tobin went 18 holes to win from Mary Armstrong of Indian Hill. In the fourth match Dorothy Bell of Nippersink Lodge won over Virginia Jensen of Mohawk, 2 up.

In the first flight matches Eloise Briese of Kenosha defeated Mary Tyson of Sunset Valley, 10 and 8; Ruth Allen of Mohawk defeated Louise Willard of Exmoor, 4 and 2. Mary Lou Laird of Indian Hill had a battle to win from Margaret Kane, 12 year old novice from Kankakee. In today's matches Miss Briese will meet Barbara Burton of Indian Hill, who drew a bye yesterday, and Miss Allen will be paired against Miss Baird. In the championship flight Miss Humphrey meets Miss Murphy, and Miss Bell will play Miss Tobin.

Miss Tobin won the approaching and putting contests, decided on the best score with three balls from 25, 50, and 75 yards, after a tie with Miss Livengood and Miss Bell. Each finished the first effort with 9, but in the playoff Miss Tobin scored a 10 to an 11 by Miss Livengood, and a 12 by Miss Bell.

Entries to Close Tomorrow Night for Women's Golf

Entries for the city championship of the Chicago Woman's District Golf association, to be decided at the Riverside Golf club next week, close with Mrs. John A. Wheeler, 814 Ingleside place, Evanston, at 6 o'clock tomorrow night.

The tournament will open Monday morning with a qualifying round in which the low sixteen scorers will enter the match play bracket for the Chicago championship trophy. Four additional flights of sixteen also will qualify. The match play will continue until Friday, when the finals in all flights will be decided. The course, located on Des Plaines avenue in Riverside, three-quarters of a mile south of 22d street, will be open for practice today, tomorrow, and Friday. Members of the Chicago Woman's District Golf association, with handicaps of 28 or less, are eligible for the tourney.

Today is one of the most crowded of the year on the Chicago district golf calendar. Not only do the woman's western junior and the Chicago district boys' junior continue at Flossmoor and Mission Hills, but there will also be several other tournaments. Kildeer will hold its annual 36 hole Karnival; the Schoenhofen company employés will gather at Antlers; the Chicago Hotel Men's Golf association at Glen Oak, the Plate Engravers at Evergreen, and the Cicero-Berwyn Professional Men's club at Glenbard.

Briergate will stage its annual Braves' day tomorrow, sharing honors with the 28th annual Midlothian Pater-Filius, which for the first time in its history will be played away from the south side club, North Shore being the battleground. Both of these tournaments offer some of the best prize assortments in the district. In addition tomorrow Tommy Armour and Gene Sarazen will meet Johnny Dawson and Walter Murray in an exhibition match at the Beverly Shores Golf club, Michigan City, Ind., for the benefit of the Tri-State open purse, to be held over 72 holes on Aug. 8 and 9.

L. C. Keely, a member of Calumet, yesterday shot a 90 to win first low gross prize in the Copeland Refrigerator Dealers' annual tournament at the Silver Lake Country club. O. O. Moore was next with 97, while low net honors went to T. F. Foley, 97—30—67, and V. Myers, 115—40—75.

Mrs. M. H. Martin won the Ladies' Day Brown Derby yesterday at Twin Eagles with 115—6—109. She was followed by Mrs. M. Brignall, who shot 111—4—107. Mrs. John Johnson, whose handicap was plus 2, finished in third place with 105.

Dollar Day TODAY, Thursday, Friday at ARLINGTON

Yesterday Arlington tried a "dollar day." Admission to the grand stand was reduced to $1 as a get acquainted offer to Chicagoans and their visitors. The response was overwhelming. Over 25,000 persons accepted this special offer and came to Arlington for eight thrilling races. It was the biggest Tuesday of the meeting so far and the gate receipts far exceeded that of any week day this year. So Arlington has dollar day for today, Thursday and Friday. Regular prices will prevail on Saturday because of the large purses which are to be given away on that day.

This reduced admission price is made possible by Arlington's unique non-profit policy backed by a group of Chicago's leading citizens to give racing for sport's sake only and the pleasure of the crowd. Come out. There will be eight exciting races. How the public responds to these three days will determine the prices next week. Don't miss this great opportunity.

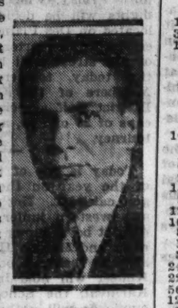
CASH IS READY FOR OWNERS OF CENTRAL BONDS

Gilbert Keebler Lacks Bondholders' List.

Bank failures and resultant receiverships make for strange situations. For instance, owners of bonds in the Central building, at the southwest corner of Madison street and Oak Park avenue, in Oak Park, have interest coming due today, but the Peoples National Bank and Trust company, which underwrote the issue and has been the agent for the mortgagor in paying the interest, is closed and in the hands of a receiver. Bondholders naturally are wondering what to do.



GILBERT E. KEEBLER. [Russell Photo.]

Gilbert E. Keebeler of E. F. Keebler & Co. and son of Mrs. Wilhelmine Keebler of 3300 Lake Shore drive, owner of the property against which the bond issue was placed, yesterday notified THE TRIBUNE that cash is on hand in his office in the Otis building, 10 South La Salle street, for prompt payment of every interest coupon presented there.

Lacks Bondholders' List.

"I'm taking this method of notifying the bondholders because I haven't any knowledge of the names or addresses of the bondholders of the Central building," said Mr. Keebler. "They merely have to present their coupons at my office in the Otis building and they'll be paid."

The Central building, owned by Mrs. Keebler, is two stories and contains stores and offices. The original bond issue was $135,000, since reduced to $109,000, bearing 6% interest.

Terminal Theater.

Title to the Terminal theater property at Lawrence and Spaulding has ben conveyed by the Sheridan Theater corporation to William M. Richards, representing the bondholders' protective committee. No plan of reorganization has yet been decided upon. The original bond issue for $550,000 was underwritten by H. O. Stone & Co. It has since been paid down to $426,250.

Interest defaulted Jan. 1, 1932. The property is improved with an L shaped building containing a 2,400 seat playhouse erected by the Ascher Brothers. It is now under lease to the Chicago Fox interests. Mr. Richards, who took title yesterday, is assistant secretary to the bondholders' protective committee.

Name New Committee.

The following committee has been named to service first mortgages originated by the Adams State bank: Henry F. Tykal, chairman; A. F. Jedlicka, Norbert F. Kochka, and John J. Kucera. Membership has been reserved for the bank receiver, who has not yet been appointed. The law firm of Ring, Uhlir & Cuchna will act for the committe. The principal loans made by the bank were on residences and two flat buildings.

The date for the foreclosure sale of the Roscoe apartments, at 627-41 Roscoe street, has been set for Aug. 1, it was announced by the protective committee for the Straus Brothers Investment company. There are $248,000 bonds in default on this property. A new first mortgage is contemplated to care for the reorganization and other expenses. A substantial amount of bonds has been deposited with the Metropolitan Trust company, the committee reports. Aug. 1 is announced as the final date for depositing securities.

Conveyance of the "Naborhood garage" property at 1509 Morse avenue by Michael J. Long to the 1509 Morse Avenue Building corporation completes the reorganization. The corporation took title for the bondholders. This was a $135,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the recently closed Phillip State Bank and Trust company. It since has been reduced to $130,000. Austin L. Wyman was attorney for the bondholders. The garage accommodates 200 cars.

GRIST OF NEWS FOR DAY OFFERS A BIT OF CHEER

Utilities Taken Care Of; Rail Net Up.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Encouraging business and financial developments occurred at many different points throughout the nation yesterday.

Of chief interest locally was the definite assurance that the refinancing problems of the three former Insull operating companies in the Chicago area—Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas and Public Service company of Northern Illinois—were taken care of.

Also cheering to this section was a general advance in grain prices, with wheat closing ⅞@1¼ cents higher and corn, oats and rye likewise turning upward. Livestock prices sagged as a result of heavy receipts and the continued hot weather.

Railroad news, too, was better. President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central in New York, attending a meeting of railway executives, let it be known that in the first half of this year his road's net earnings were about $1,000,000 greater than the amount for the corresponding period of 1931.

Earning Well Maintained.

Net income of the Norfolk & Western, also announced yesterday, was well maintained in view of the fact that the bulk of the road's traffic is represented by shipments of bituminous coal. Earnings, after all charges, were equal to about $4.50 per share on the common, compared with $6.14 per share in the first six months of 1931.

The Union Pacific system reported net operating income of $890,810 for June, which was 50 per cent greater than results for May. Kansas City Southern finished June with net of $89,002, which represented a smaller seasonal decline than last year. The first five western railroads to report for the week ended July 16 showed an increase of 16,961 cars over the amount of traffic moved in the preceding week.

The United States Steel corporation in purchasing 25,000 to 50,000 tons of No. 1 heavy smelting steel scrap from the New York Central railroad provided a feature in a steel market that had been unusually dull. According to the Daily Metal Trade, this is the largest purchase of scrap in about three years.

Will Build Refinery.

From McPherson, Kas., came word that Globe Oil and Refining company of Blackwell, Okla., would start work sometime during the next 30 days on a new million dollar oil refinery.

Most significant were the reports from many cities scattered throughout the country of men being put back to work.

At Florence, Ala., the Gardiner Warring Knitting company reported enough business to keep its 600 employés busy all summer. The Viscose corporation of Roanoke, Va., recalled to work ten per cent of the 4,500 employés it had laid off a month ago. Columbia studios at Hollywood, Cal., put 300 back to work. The Pittsburgh Plate Glass company announced that another of its plants at Ford City, Pa., which has been closed for 60 days, would be reopened next month.

More Get Jobs.

Satisfactory orders for fall have enabled the Great Western Shoe company to resume work at its plant in Portage, Wis., putting 300 to work after several weeks layoff. Wilcox-Rich corporation, maker of auto parts at Marshall, Mich., has increased its payroll 10 per cent this month.

The B. B. & R. Knight corporation mills have been reopened at River Point, R. I., giving work to 600 persons. At Corsicana, Tex., the Corsicana cotton mills have resumed operations, employing 100. After a shutdown of several months the Victory Products corporation is planning to give employment to 100 at Gettysburg, Pa.

Up in Wisconsin farmers are reported highly encouraged by improvement in prices for dairy and poultry products. In about two weeks butter prices have increased from 16 to 18 cents, and marketing experts are predicting higher cheese prices. Lower milk production and a stronger statistical position on storage supplies are credited with boosting the level of butter prices.

In the past when the nation has started to recover from a period of business depression the change has been so gradual that it has not been readily perceived at first.

May Affect 3 Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 19.—Efforts to adjust employment to the numbers needing it will be considered at a meeting here tomorrow. Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire is chairman of the committee on arrangements and governors of the other New England states are expected to attend with the hope of devising plans to add about 3,000,000 to industrial and commercial pay rolls.

In addition to state executives, there are to be various experts present as advisers in the effort to attain a "flexible work day and week." Among those expected to attend are Miss Frances Perkins, industrial commissioner of the state of New York; W. H. Hodson, head of the New York Welfare council; Wallace B. Donham, dean of the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard; John Finley, editor of the New York Times; Harry C. Knight of New Haven, president of the New England council and member of the President's organization on unemployment relief; Henry P. Kendall of the Kendall company, textiles; Robert Fechner of Washington, vice president of the International Association of Machinists; Ernest Martin Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college; Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Stanley King, president-elect of Amherst.

BY AL CHASE.

Negotiations practically have been completed for leasing the property at 4240 Lincoln avenue which is scheduled to result in the immediate erection of a two story manufacturing plant, employing more than 1,000 persons. The La Mode Garment company, which is now operating a plant at Gary, Ind., where a thousand men and women are employed, will rent the old Lincoln Mart, at 4240 Lincoln avenue, for ten years at an undisclosed rental. The lessors, who will erect the new plant, are George and Morris Kurtzon.

This old structure, according to Samuels, Lawton & Wittelle, attorneys representing all parties, is to be wrecked at once and a two story plant covering the entire property, which fronts 200 feet on Lincoln avenue, with a depth of 175 feet, will be erected. No architect has yet been engaged. It will operate a minimum of one thousand needle machines, all to be operated by women.

The La Mode Garment company operated a plant at 1733 Irving Park boulevard for ten years and then built a plant at Gary, Ind. The company manufactures women's house dresses, pajamas and underwear. Robert K. Gershenow, who lives at 519 Elder lane, Winnetka, is president of the concern.

Some Leases.

The University of Chicago has leased to the Lawndale Garment company approximately 11,000 square feet in the building at the northeast corner of Jackson boulevard and Green street, for a term of years at an undisclosed annual rental. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

The same brokers report having leased for the Wolff company to Close & Co. approximately 15,000 square feet at 2025-33 Fulton street for a term of years. Another lease reported by the same firm was 4,000 square feet of office and storage space at 1500 South Western avenue for the Midland Warehouse company to the Bata Shoe company, a European concern, at a reported annual rental of $3,000.

Apartment Building Sold.

H. K. Anderson and wife have sold their twelve apartment building at 7365-67 North Damen avenue to Max M. Gordon for an undisclosed consideration. He gave in part payment vacant property in Niles Center. John J. Kern & Co. represented both parties and will continue to manage the apartment building.

Another transaction reported by the same brokers was the sale by Grace L. Gore to Anna K. Turner of the nine apartments at 1512-16 Summerdale avenue. The latter gave in exchange her nine flat building at 6442-44 St. Anthony court.

GEN. ELECTRIC EARNINGS DROP FOR HALF YEAR

Schenectady, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—The General Electric company, in its report for the first half of this year, issued today, discloses that while both gross and net earnings declined substantially from the corresponding period of 1931, the organization more than earned its recently reduced dividends.

The company's statement shows profits available for dividends on the common stock for the six months amounted to $7,653,187, equal to 27 cents a share, compared with $21,523,722, or 75 cents a share, for the similar period last year. Sales billed totaled $80,210,498, against $141,180,091 in the 1931 period, a decrease of 43 per cent.

There are 28,845,927 General Electric common shares outstanding. The dividend on this stock is now 40 cents per share annually, the next quarterly payment being due on July 25.

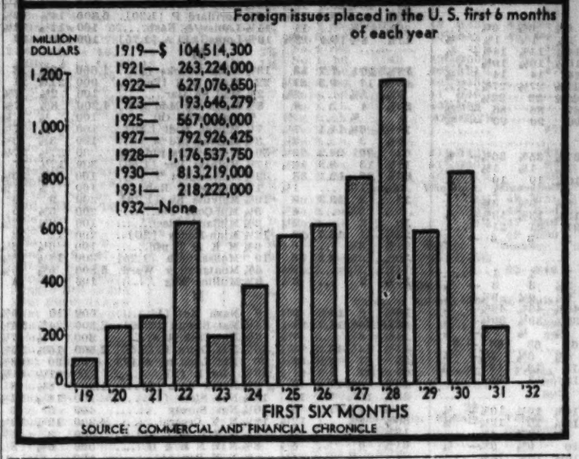
No New Foreign Security Issues Were Sold in United States During First Six Months



SHORT TERM LOAN IS FIRST SIMPSON PROJECT

Formal Refinancing to Come Later.

While James Simpson, chairman of Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas Light and Coke, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and heads of leading Chicago banks yesterday were putting the finishing touches on plans for these companies' $70,000,000 financing operations, it was reported that public offering of the securities of these companies might be postponed for several weeks or months.

An official announcement is to be made as soon as the Illinois commerce commission has passed on the changes in the companies' plans.

Plans for Short Loan.

According to report current yesterday, which was described by well informed persons as "substantially correct," Mr. Simpson has arranged, subject to the approval of the Illinois commerce commission, for a loan of $70,000,000 at 6 per cent through Chicago and New York banks for seven months.

In return, it was said, the banks are to have a five months' option on new financing. This would indicate that leading Chicago and New York bankers anticipate an improvement in the bond market during the next five months. In that case these three operating utilities would benefit by being able to float their securities at lower interest rates.

Those in Syndicate.

The banking syndicate which will handle the financing is headed by the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, the First National bank and the Harris Trust and Savings bank and includes the Northern Trust company and four New York banks, the Guaranty Trust, National City, Chase National and Bankers Trust.

CHICAGO STOCK LIST CONTINUES IN THE DOLDRUMS

Trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday continued in the doldrums, with advances, declines, and standstills about breaking even. Volume showed a slight expansion over Monday.

Commonwealth Edison, whose bankers are engaged in putting the finishing touches to a refinancing project, improved almost a point in closing at 56¼. Public Service no par in limited sales eased a fraction in finishing at 28½.

Swift International, which has been the subject of a controversy regarding its listing, in closing at 19 was off ⅞. Great Lakes Dredge, which showed an improvement on Monday, again did better yesterday. It closed up 1 point at 7½. Lynch corporation picked up a point at 14, and Quaker Oats preferred was ½ point to the good at 98. Sangamo Electric preferred took a nose dive of 25 points from its last quotation on the board. It sold at 50 yesterday.

Italy Adopts Quota for Imports of French Goods

ROME, July 19.—(AP)—Italy today started a quota system for French imports in reprisal for a similar system established by France against Italian exports. It sets drastic limits on sixteen articles, including wool, paper, glass, leather, wine, and dry goods.

The ministry of finance was authorized by a royal decree issued today to place a representative on every Italian stock exchange to sit, without a vote, on the board of directors.

Owens Illinois Glass Co. Declares Regular Dividends

Regular dividends of $1.50 a share were declared yesterday on the six per cent preferred stock of the Owens Illinois Glass company payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 15; 50c a share was declared on common stock payable Aug. 15 to stockholders of record July 13.

Thornton Out as Canadian National Head

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19.—Sir Henry Thornton gave up the fight against the government today and handed in his resignation as President of the Canadian National railways.

Since the Bennett government came into power in 1930 it has been considered only a matter of time before the American head of the Canadian railways was forced out. Thornton's contract had over a year to run at $75,000 a year. In resigning he stated that it was no longer possible to give efficient service when he did not command the confidence of his directors—all appointed by the present government.

Expense Account Attacked.

All last winter Thornton's administration was under fire before the parliamentary railway committee. His expense account—running into many thousands, was publicly aired. It was shown that he received some $140,000 a year in various government salaries and expenses and that $20,000 a year rent for his house was paid by the railway.

It had been expected that Thornton, always a fighter, would insist on his contract. Last week it was rumored that another railway job was awaiting him. There was no confirmation of this today. His resignation takes effect Aug. 1. S. J. Hungerford, one of his vice presidents, temporarily succeeds him.

Thornton came to Canada in 1924 and for the first time the government system of railways commenced to show increased earnings. Operating deficits became surpluses and until the depression set in it looked as if the system would eventually meet its fixed charges. In the last three years earnings have fallen off heavily, but the railway still meets operating charges.

Salary Is Jumped.

Thornton was hailed by the Liberal party as the savior of public ownership. His original salary of $50,000 was jumped to $75,000 and other retainers were added. But he became the target of Conservative attacks; he was accused of favoring Americans, of squandering money in the United States, and it was evident that his régime would end when the Liberals went out of office.

Sir Henry Thornton is 61 years old. He was born in Logansport, Ind. Standing six feet four inches high, the first job he ever had was coaching Vanderbilt university football team.

Thornton May Be "Czar."

New York, July 19.—(AP)—The Herald-Tribune says Sir Henry Thornton, a native of Indiana, retiring president of the Canadian National railways, is being considered for the post of commissioner of the Association of Western Railway Executives.

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway, is quoted as saying Sir Henry's name, along with others, has been under consideration by the board, but no decision has been made. The association will meet shortly in Chicago to select its commissioner.

LITTLE ACTION IN STOCK MART; TRADE CREEPS

New York Tractions Show Some Life.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 19.—The share market spent the whole day flat on its back. With congress out of the way, the international debt question tucked away for the time being and most of the big professional speculators off golfing or fishing there was nothing to worry about in any direction. The handful of floor traders who remained to stand by swapped about 500,000 shares in the five sweltering hours, but it isn't of record that any of them scalped enough profits to buy gas for the trip home.

Some of the boys who pass the time away trying to find reasons why the market doesn't respond to this or that bit of sunshine or gloom were around assuring all hands today that the failure of the rally which they were expecting to following the adjourn-

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 9,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 10,000.

Cattle and hog prices sank into lower ground under a burden of adverse news and heavier receipts. Top hogs slipped below the $5 line for the first time since June 29, the peak at $4.85 showing 20c loss, compared with Monday, and 70c decline compared with the high spot of the year established early last week.

Losses for the day ranged from 10c to 25c, light and medium weight packing sows coming down hardest. The general average for the whole day showed 15c loss at $4.35, being lowest since June 27 and 65c under the high day of the season.

Hogs scared in by the break swelled supplies to 23,000, the largest Tuesday run since May 24. Reports from the wholesale market were discouraging. Hot weather was responsible for another break in fresh pork, bringing the range for loins down to 7@12c, which compares with 13@21c at the high time. Large local packers were again the principal operators on the break, Armour, Swift and Wilson handling a combined total of about 15,000 head, including 5,000 good to choice 200@250 lb butchers bought here at $4.60@4.75. Outsiders in two days have taken only 7 per cent of total receipts against 15 per cent a week ago and 20 per cent a year ago.

Medium Cattle Hit.

Bigger receipts, the heat wave and restricted buying by retailers on the wholesale beef trade were the outstanding bearish factors working against the cattle trade. Offerings met the dullest session in recent weeks. The slashing of prices converged in medium to good grades which comprised the bulk of arrivals and before the day was over many of the $7.00@$8.00 cattle were considered 75c to $1 under the high point the middle of last week. The peak price at $9.25, paid by Swift for a "stick-out" shipment of 933@980 lbs yearling steers was only 50c under the season's top. Steers sold sparingly at $9 and above, with the day's bulk at $7.00@8.50. Downwards to $6 bought occasional loads of plain steers, while a few shipments of thin ill bred stock sold at $5.00@5.50 and lower. Cows and heifers received a drubbing and losses of $1.00 since the high point of the year were cited on numerous occasions, particularly in the yearling heifers that led the advance last week. Top yearling heifers tumbled to $7.35 at the finish. Calves broke 25c. Since the reaction in cattle prices there is less interest in stockers and feeders and yesterday's trade in that division was dull and weak to 25c lower.

Lambs Hold Steady.

Despite the sharp break in other live stock and the slow movement of dressed lamb carcasses at lower levels yesterday, lambs managed to get by with no price changes and the bulk was against disposed of at $6.00. Twenty-nine carloads of choice Idaho range lambs sold to packers at this figure, which was also their top for sorted natives. City butchers took a few lots of handpicked natives up to $6.50 and paid $6.35 for a carload of Idahos. Matured sheep and yearlings sold at steady prices, top yearlings going at $4.75 and light ewes at $2.25.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 9,000 cattle, 19,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 9,118 cattle, 18,534 hogs, and 17,813 sheep, the previous Wednesday, and 10,015 cattle, 13,573 hogs, and 8,549 sheep a year ago.

LONDON, July 19.—(AP)—Money ½ per cent; discount rates, short bills, ⅝@⅞ per cent; three month bills, ⅞@¾ per cent. Bar silver quiet and ⅛d lower at 16⅞d.

PARIS, July 19.—(AP)—Three per cent rentes 63 francs 40 centimes. Five per cent loan 99 francs 90 centimes. Exchange on London, 90 francs 92 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 52¼ centimes.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was generally easy today, reflecting declines in the hog market and weakness of lard which offset steadiness of cotton and firmness of grains. Sales were 4,950 barrels. Crude oil was quoted nominally at 3¼c in the southeast and valley and nominally in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 3.80c, July 3.90c, September 4.02c, December 4.18c, January 4.25c.

WHEAT PRICES MOVE FORWARD IN CHICAGO PIT

Reports from Canada Tell of Crop Damage.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Eight days of txeremely high temperatures in the American and Canadian northwest are bringing in numerous complaints of premature ripening of the spring wheat crop. Reports from the Red river valley section in North Dakota assert that the crop has been materially damaged and houses with northwestern connections backed the messages, indicating serious losses might be witnessed with buying orders for futures.

Commission houses were persistent buyers of wheat futures yesterday, with the southwest as well as the northwest on that side of the market. There was not the persistent hedging pressure so much in evidence of late and prices moved up readily with the close at the top. July was 45¾c; September, 47⅞@48c, and December, 51@51¼c at the last. Minneapolis led the advance and gained 1½c for the day.

Reduce Crop Estimates.

A tendency was shown in messages from Minneapolis to reduce estimates on the probable spring wheat crop due to the prolonged hot spell, one report expressing the belief that the total outturn might be only 250,000,000 bu. This compared with the government July 1 indication of 305,000,000 bu. Traders paid more attention to the unfavorable crop comments than of late and sentiment generally was somewhat more bullish.

Official confirmation of drought in parts of the Canadian northwest was received after the close. The dominion government weekly telegraphic crop summary said there was a greater variation in the outlook during the last week. Central and southern Saskatchewan and southern and extreme northwestern Alberta are suffering from drought. The outlook, however, has been well maintained in Manitoba and in northern, northeast central, and west central Saskatchewan. Wheat was reported as all headed and harvesting is expected to start around Aug. 1.

H. C. Donovan, the Logan & Bryan crop observer, after a 300 mile trip through the Regina, Sask., area, wired that prospects in southern Saskatchewan had deteriorated 10 to 30 per cent and offset any improvement in other sections and in Alberta and Manitoba since July 1.

Reports of late have shown deterioration in the wheat crop outlook or claimed spotted conditions over a liberal part of the Canadian area, which suffered from drought last year, when nearly 10,000,000 acres were involved. However, the situation is regarded as much better than in 1931, when the dry section harvested an extremely small crop.

Russia Buys Wheat.

The trade paid somewhat more attention to reports from abroad, indicating somewhat less favorable conditions for the wheat crop. Russia was reported as having bought a cargo of Manitobas for shipment to Vladivostock, in addition to recent purchases of Australian wheat and flour. Export demand was somewhat more active with the seaboard claiming 700,000 bu sold in all positions.

Liverpool wheat closed equal to ¾@⅞c per bu higher, with October at 52¼c, while Winnipeg was ⅝@⅞c higher, with October at 56⅝c. Buenos Aires August wheat was quoted at 45c at midday, or about the same price as prevailed for the July delivery in Chicago at the time.

A crop scare is regarded as in the making in corn and a few more days of hot and dry weather are expected by traders to bring in reports of actual damage. A few complaints of the crop firing due to temperatures of 100 and over were received and had some effect on the market. Scattered buying was in evidence, with the close ½@⅝c higher, selling against offers checking the upturn. July was 31⅝c and September and December 32⅝@32¾c at the last.

Country Sells Cash Corn.

In the face of the somewhat less favorable crop comments the country sold 100,000 bu of old corn to arrive and more was offered on the advance. The grain was believed to have been hedged by sales of futures. Buenos Aires August corn was quoted at 31⅝c at midday, or the same figure as the close on the July future in Chicago.

Scattered hedging sales had a depressing effect on oats, with the July selling at 18c, a new low for the season, or within 3½c of the lowest figure witnessed in 1896. The close was ¼c lower with July, 18@18¼c; September, 18⅝c, and December, 21c. Cash interests bought the latter on resting orders. Threshing is under way in parts of Illinois, with yields running somewhat under expectations, according to private reports.

Rye was affected to some extent by the action of wheat and closed ⅝@¼c higher, with July at 28⅝c, September 30⅝c, and December 33⅞c. Harvest is expected to start in the Canadian northwest in about two weeks.

HIDE FUTURES

Shoe production during June amounted to 20,750,000 pairs, according to a survey furnished the New York hide exchange by the Tanners' Council of America. This compares with 27,839,000 pairs in June, 1931. On the basis of the above estimate, shoe production during the first six months of 1932 amounted to 146,909,000 pairs, or 7.8 per cent below the first half of 1931.

Trade in hide futures was fair and prices advanced 5 to 20 points. Total sales were 1,080,000 lbs. Closing bids, old contracts: September, 5.10c; December, 5.85c; March, 6.45c. New contracts: September, 4.60c; December, 5.85c; March, 6.50c.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS.

Foreigners showed a little more interest in North American cash wheat yesterday and sales in all positions were estimated at 700,000 bu. A cargo of Manitoba wheat was sold from Vancouver on Monday to go to Vladivostock. A little export business had been done of late in hard winter but the quantities have not been given out. The grain sold was presumably owned by the farm board.

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Weekly and daily storage reports showing a heavier movement of stocks inward than last year brought out active selling in butter and egr futures yesterday, butter closing 1¼@2½c lower and eggs ¼@1c lower. Profit taking and new selling combined to send the markets off rapidly near midsession, but there was a slight improvement in support near the close. Last week's reports in butter showed a sharply heavier storage of stocks than last year and the daily report likewise indicated a much more active movement. The same was true in eggs, the four markets reporting the shortage reduced 10,200 cases. Sales: Butter, 68 cars; eggs, 106 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car. Prices follow:

CANADIAN CROP REPORT

A slight reduction in the condition of spring wheat in the three Canadian provinces during the last two weeks was shown by the reports of the Searle Grain company, Ltd., of Winnipeg. Saskatchewan and Manitoba have declined 1 point and in Alberta 5 points, but the outlook is much better than a year ago. Wheat averages 26 inches high in Alberta; 24 inches in Saskatchewan, and 31 inches in Manitoba.

Only a few scattered stations report rust present. A certain amount of damage from hot winds and drought has been reported in districts No. 3 and 6 in Saskatchewan which have 5,453,000 acres out of the 14,775,000 acres for the province, but otherwise reports of damage from these sources are very few. About the normal amount of hail damage has occurred. Conditions follow:

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan, and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the reduced rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate less than the usual small loan rate.

If you are keeping house and can make regular monthly payments, you have all the security needed for a Household loan.
